We've learned a lot in the Oregon forests since 1905.

Our company heritage goes back 73 years in the lush Northwest woods. Our holdings have now grown to 469,000 acres of carefully nurtured Douglas fir and southern pine in Willamette Industries' forests in Oregon, Tennessee and Louisiana.

That many years in the forest products industry has given us a deep respect for our important natural forest resource. We've learned a great deal over the decades about sound forest management. That's why we hire the best professionals to tend Willamette lands. Today, more than 50 percent of our timber needs come from company controlled forests . . . to supply 54 building materials and paper products plants across the country.

At Willamette Industries, we're not just growing older and larger . . . we're growing better.

Senator Atiyeh ran for Governor against Robert Straub in 1974, was defeated, then came back for a victory in 1978, in a vote of 496,792 to 408,726.

Vic Atiyeh, a 20-year veteran of the Oregon Legislature, is well-known for his independence and integrity. His peers named him the most outstanding freshman Senator in 1965. He has been Senate Minority leader since 1973. Nationally recognized legislation such as the Beach Bill, the Bottle Bill, the Billboard Removal Project and Open Spaces and Land Use Planning Laws have been attributed to his influential leadership in the Legislature. He has served on virtually every committee dealing with the concerns of Oregonians, and has been chairman of many, including the important Committee on Trade and Economic Development.

He is a nationally recognized expert on such subjects as taxation, traffic safety, education and local government. He often travels out of Oregon to speak to other state and federal governmental bodies.

Professionally, he is the President of a nationally renowned rug and carpet firm which bears his name. He is also the past President of the Portland Executive Association. He serves on the board of directors of Equitable Savings & Loan Assn.

Active in many community organizations such as the United Fund, Red Cross, Oregon Boys' Club and the Isaak Walton League, he is probably best known for his involvement in the Boy Scouts. In Scouting he has served as Columbia Pacific Council President and National Explorer Board member. He has earned the highest awards for local and regional Scouting, the Silver Beaver and the Silver Antelope.

He and his wife Dolores have a grown son and daughter.

Vic Atiyeh was born in Portland on Feb. 20, 1923 and attended public schools there. He studied pre-law at the University of Oregon.

The Governor is elected for a four-year term and is limited to serving eight years in any 12-year period. The state's chief executive devises and recommends a budget to the Legislature, coordinates the activities of state agencies, initiates planning for future state activities and serves as the focal point for coordination of federal and local governments. He is Commander-in-Chief of the state's military forces. He may call special sessions of the Legislature and may veto single appropriation items or emergency clauses on legislative bills. The Governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons. He appoints numerous agency heads, boards, commissions and other officials. He is Chairman of the Land Board.

SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS

VERNE DUNCAN

Superintendent of Public Instruction 1979-83. Previously elected Superintendent, 1975-79. (Non-partisan.) 942 Lancaster Dr. NE, Salem 97310.

Verne Duncan is a native of the state, born April 6, 1934 in McMinnville and attended school in that city, including Linfield College. He obtained his BA degree from Idaho State and an MEd from the University of Idaho. His PhD in educational administration was awarded by the University of Oregon in 1968, and he received an MBA from U. of Portland in 1976.

Duncan has been a teacher at all levels from elementary to college, from the time he was 20 years old. In addition he has been a junior high and elementary principal, local school district superintendent, University of Oregon faculty member, and superintendent of the Clackamas County Intermediate Education District from 1970 until taking office as State Superintendent.

Superintendent Duncan is a senior officer in an active Army Reserve unit. He is married to Donna Duncan and they have two daughters. Active in his community of Milwaukie, he is a Rotarian, member of the Chamber of Commerce, County Board of Health, library board, and UGN.

He has served in numerous state and national consulting and advisory roles within education, is past president of the State Intermediate and County School Superintendent's Assn., and was an appointee to the Oregon Legislative Improvement Committee.

Duncan supported the McCall school tax program in 1973 but criticized it as going too far in financing local public education with state revenues. He is on the record as opposing county equalization of school finance, and favoring its replacement with a state equalization program.

In 1975 state school support was 29%, and Supt. Duncan asked the 1977 Legislature for 40% which was achieved in 1978-79. His goal is 50% without eroding local control. He stated that he will soon make recommendations to the Board of Education on ways to improve graduation requirements. He has made major efforts in avoiding increases in the Dept. of Education budget. He was responsible for recent revisions in state regulations covering school bus safety and licensing and training of bus drivers.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction is the executive officer of the State Board of Education which is the policy-making body with responsibility for elementary, secondary, and community college education, including adult education. The seven-member Board is appointed by the governor with Senate approval. Powers and duties of the state superintendent are set forth in law (ORS 326.310 to 326.550).

MEMBER FDIC

CHIEF JUSTICE SUPREME COURT

ARNO H. DENECKE

Chief Justice of the Oregon Supreme Court 1976-81. Multnomah County Circuit Judge 1959 (appointed), Justice 1963, 69. (Non-partisan). Supreme Court Bldg., Salem 97310.

The Oregon Supreme Court elected Arno H. Denecke as Chief Justice in June, 1976. Justice Denecke, a former Portland attorney and circuit judge, has served on the state's highest court since January, 1963.

He succeeded Chief Justice Kenneth O'Connell who retired from membership in the Court at the end of 1976.

The seven members of the Supreme Court select the Chief Justice every six years. On the present court Chief Justice Denecke is senior in service. The other members are Justice Ralph Holman, Thomas H. Tongue, Edward H. Howell, Dean Bryson, Berkeley Lent, and Hans A. Linde.

The Chief Justice exercises administrative functions under policies determined by the entire Supreme Court. Its authority and supervision over the trial courts consists of supervising their general procedures, including the temporary transfer of judges or the appointment of attorneys as pro tem judges to meet special needs of the courts in keeping up with their caseload.

The Chief Justice presides over the Oregon Judicial Conference, consisting of all judges in the state system, and is also charged with responsibility for many reports, studies and recommendations on activity of the courts. Only the Legislature may prescribe the rules for actual procedure of criminal and civil cases.

Chief Justice Denecke, 62, was a Multnomah County circuit judge from 1959 when he was appointed by Governor Mark Hatfield, until he was elected to the Supreme Court in 1962.

A native of Illinois and a 1939 graduate of the University of Illinois law School, Chief Justice Denecke began his professional career in the legal department of Montgomery Ward & Co. in Chicago.

He and his wife Selma, residents of Salem, are the parents of five children, ages 31 to 19.

STATE TREASURER

CLAY MYERS

State Treasurer 1977-81. Secretary of State, 1967 (appointed), 69, 73. Republican. 158 State Capitol, Salem 97310.

Clay Myers was elected State Treasurer in 1976. Born May 27, 1927, in Multnomah County, raised in Tillamook, Treasurer Myers is a graduate of Benson High School in Portland. Following military service he received a Bachelor of Science degree at the University of Oregon, with later graduate work at Northwestern College of Law. Clay and his wife Elizabeth have two sons and a daughter and live in Salem.

Clay Myers' career has been a successful blend of leadership in business, church, volunteer community service and state government. With prior banking, property management and insurance experience. Clay was vice president of a life insurance company at age 35. He left private enterprise to become Assistant Secretary of State in 1965. Clay served as Oregon's Secretary of State from 1967 through 1977.

In reorganizing the Treasury, Myers put emphasis on establishing and sharpening administrative controls, consolidating and improving the financial operations and enhancing communication in the investment area. In addition, he has installed a better automatic data processing system that will do three to five jobs simultaneously, instead of one, will operate faster, and has much greater storage capacity, as well as costing less.

The Treasurer's office is a "profit center" for the State, making a net profit of more than $700,000 each and every working day. Total income (exclusive of some trust equities invested in by outside money managers) exceeded $150 million for trust accounts and taxpayers' funds in 1977, and in 1978 is expected to be $190 million due primarily to higher interest rates during the year, and also by the institution of several innovative new programs.

Under Myers' direction, the Treasury has just completed and is implementing recommendations from three studies on state bond issuance, in-state investments and cash management.

SECRETARY OF STATE

NORMA PAULUS

Secretary of State 1977-81. Representative 1971, 73, 75. Republican. 136 State Capitol, Salem 97310.

Norma Paulus continues her four-year term as Secretary of State which began in 1977.

Professionally, she has been in legal circles all her adult life, as secretary to a district attorney, to private attorneys, to the Oregon Chief Justice, and as an attorney herself. Law-oriented activities have figured strongly during her legislative service, augmented by a variety of other important duties and accomplishments.

The Secretary of State, among other duties, is the State Auditor and Chief Election Officer. In addition she serves with the Governor and State Treasurer on the State Land Board, supervising the administration of all state-owned land and waterway rights.

Born March 13, 1933 on a Nebraska farm, Norma Peterson lived and was schooled in Burns, an Oregon resident since age five. After moving to Salem, she took law studies at Willamette University, was an honor student, was judged first in the Moot Court competition at the University, graduated and was admitted to the Oregon State Bar in 1962. She became wife of Salem attorney William Paulus in 1958, and they live in Salem with their two children.

After a successful campaign in 1970, Mrs. Paulus became the second woman ever to be elected to the House of Representatives from Marion County. For the 1973 session of the Legislature she was selected by her fellow Republicans as minority floor leader. The same year she was the Oregon delegate to the First National Conference on Criminal Justice.

Among the professional accolades recognizing her are the 1971 Golden Torch Award given by the Business and Professional Women of Oregon, and award of a fellowship to Eagleton Institute of Politics in 1971.

Mrs. Paulus was on the board of directors of the National Society of State Legislators, 1971-72, and is a member of the State Bar. She has also served with the Salem Human Relations Commission, Marion-Polk Boundary Commission, and "Interact" Human Resources Center. In 1978 she was named to the Board of Trustees of Willamette University.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

JAMES A. REDDEN

Attorney General 1977-81. Representative 1963, 65, 67, State Treasurer 1972. Democrat. 100 State Office Bldg., Salem 97310.

During his three terms in the Oregon House of Representatives Jim Redden served on several key committees including the powerful Judiciary and Taxation committees. From his first term, he was respected by his fellow legislators and was elected to the post of House Minority Leader in the '67 session. At that session he was selected "Most Effective State Representative" by the Capitol Press Corps.

Redden's notable achievements in the Legislature, his leadership in drafting and passing many important bills such as the "Beach Bill," his efforts for property tax relief and a liveable environment earned him praise from both Democrats and Republicans.

Redden returned to full-time practice of law in 1968, and continued to remain active in Oregon's governmental and civic affairs. Governor Tom McCall appointed him to the Public Employe Relations Board where he served as chairman. He also served at McCall's request as chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Collective Bargaining in the Public Sector. In addition, he served on an advisory council to the Insurance Commissioner, the Governor's Youth Commission, the Jackson County Community Action Commission and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce. He was elected by fellow members of the law profession to the Board of Governors of the Oregon State Bar.

Redden was elected to the office of State Treasurer in 1972. His performance in that office was hailed by both parties as one of responsible and innovative changes.

Redden was born March 13, 1929 in Springfield, Mass. He did undergraduate work at Boston University College of Business Administration and earned his law degree at Boston College Law School. An Army veteran, he married the former Joan Johnson, and they have two sons. He has practiced law in Medford since 1956.

COMMISSIONER OF BUREAU OF LABOR

MARY (WENDY) ROBERTS

Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor 1979-83. Representative 1973, State Senator 1975. Democrat. 115 Labor & Industries Bldg., Salem 97310; State Office Bldg., Portland 97201.

Mary "Wendy" Roberts has acquired a varied and impressive background in public service before handily overcoming her opponent for Labor Commissioner in the 1978 election. She served three years as a caseworker for Multnomah County and is a member of the Ore. Corrections Assn. Roberts became the youngest woman elected to the House (1972) and youngest woman elected to the Oregon Senate (in 1974). Among awards she has received is the Dr. L. Michael Kuhn Award for Distinguished Legislative Service from the National Hemophilia Foundation. She has in the past worked with the hospital siting advisory committee of the State Health Commission, and the resource advisory committee of the Foster Parents Assn.

A fifth-generation Oregonian, Wendy Roberts was born in Champaign, Illinois, Dec. 19, 1944. She graduated from West Linn High School and went on to earn a BA degree at the University of Oregon and an MA in political science at the University of Wisconsin. She is the daughter of State Senator Frank Roberts (Dist. 9), and is married to State Senator-Elect Richard Bullock (Dist. 11). She is a licensed real estate agent.

As Labor Commissioner, she heads the State Bureau of Labor and administers the state labor laws including provisions of working conditions for women and minors under 18; the uniform minimum wage law; civil rights statutes and laws forbidding age and sex discrimination in employment; collection of wage claims; and other regulatory functions relating to labor and employment. The Bureau of Labor licenses private employment agencies and farm labor contractors.

The Labor Commissioner is chairman of the State Apprenticeship and Training Council and is executive secretary of the State Wage and Hour Commission. The Bureau enforces laws relating to the payment of wages and cooperates with the federal government in the enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act and other federal laws relating to employment and equal opportunity.

The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it — so fine that we often are on the line and do not know it.

1979 LEGISLATURE

While the change in numbers, Democrats over Republicans in both the Senate and the House is tiny (1), the actual political lineup is difficult for the 1979 Legislature.

The Senate will have 23 Democrats and 7 Republicans, as against the 1977 Assembly which had 24 Democrats and 6 Republicans. The House will be made up of 37 Democrats and 23 Republicans, whereas the 1977 House had 34 Democrats and 26 Republicans.

Democrats at press time were busy cutting themselves into segments, without decisive action on House Speaker, because the "Hornets", that band of 8 to 13 Democrats who helped form a coalition with Republicans, insist on chairing committees all out of proportion to their number. Republican forces appear reasonably solid, which will give them political clout out of proportion to their numbers.

Mr. C.R. Hillyer, Editor & Publisher
OREGON VOTER DIGEST
206 Graphic Arts Bldg.

Portland OR 97209

Dear Mr. Hillyer:

I am writing in response to a paragraph of discussion found in your November edition of Oregon Voter Digest. The article's topic concerns indexing for purposes of determining state income tax.

During my service to the state of Oregon as co-chairman of Joint Ways and Means committee, it became clear that the common belief that liberals are big spenders is a myth. Those with a conservative political philosophy wanted to spend just as much money, but in different areas.

You may be interested that I will be sponsoring an indexing bill similar to the one passed in Colorado...so much for liberals not being concerned with holding down spending.

Sincerely,

VERA KATZ
State Representative, District 8

VK: rfs

Regardless of the head count, and the label counting, the 1979 Legislature faces tasks as formidable as any we've seen in many years. There is no doubt that voters are discontented, and strongly oppose any added expenditures. The 1979 Assembly must come up with a property tax relief measure, or an income tax revision downward, or both to satisfy the constituency. A "better #6" as proposed by Governor-elect Vic Atiyeh may be an answer, but only a partial one. Voters want to see a "no-growth" in government.

Proponents of increasing basic school support will be in for tough sledding, for the recent increase from 29 to 40% did virtually nothing to reduce local property taxes, but instead school districts gleefully used the increase for additional programs, increases in salaries, or to take up slack caused by inflation.

As editors of OVD previously suggested, the return of the surplus may well be one step in the coming months, but a permanent if modest decrease in the income tax is definitely in order. The new Legislature must come to grips with this one. Indexing has long been advocated by this publication, now by Governor-elect Atiyeh, and hopefully will be embraced by the 1977 Legislature.

Workers Comp will come in for more heavy attack by the growing numbers dedicated to cleaning up one of the worst programs in the nation. The legislators will have big artillery leveled at them by both management and labor, and they will be caught in a murderous crossfire. We hope they are up to the dangerous task.

As with Workers Comp, Unemployment Compensation administration will be scrutinized with a microscope with the view of making major changes, most of which will tend to give employees more of an even break in claims and claims administration matters.

Energy and Environmental concerns will still be important, but will not dominate as they have in the past. It will more likely be a period of improving and refining programs already on the books or in process, and some elimination of the horrendous duplicity and overlap that exists between DEQ, EPA, and a dozen other agencies, Federal and State, that concern themselves with environmental facets.

Energy and its production will be very important matters for the Legislature to deal with. Do not be surprised if restrictions are relaxed somewhat to make it more feasible and possible to energy seeking companies to accomplish desirable goals of increased production.

Pressure to institute "lifeline" rates for utilities will come up again, perhaps a revision in the office of the PUC might get serious attention, a move to have a statewide energy financing authority, possible tax break for those conserving energy...all are very likely matters with which the solons must deal.

And look for many, many bills to be introduced dealing with retail and consumer matters, as well as a concerted move by legislators to seek out every possible special tax they can dream up to offset possible reduction of present financing of the General Fund.

It will be a lively time, and a session that every voter should pay attention to at every opportunity. We shall do our best to inform readers of the progress, or lack of progress, made during the 60th General Assembly which opens January 8 at 10 a.m., 1979.

The 1979 Legislators are listed in alphabetical order, first for the Senate, then for the House.

The paragraph preceding each biography includes identification as to Senator or Representative, duration of his current term of office, his district and its area, any previous House or Senate terms served, political party affiliation, occupation, and address.

To correspond with any Representative, address should include the appropriate "Senator" or "Representative" in the name, for instance, Rep. John Doe, or Sen. Jane Doe, State Capitol, Salem, OR 97310.

Note: One vacancy at press time is House District 6, Washington County, to be filled by Republican appointment.

OREGON STATE SENATE

JASON BOE

Senator 1977-81. District 23, most of Douglas County, extreme northern Josephine County. Representative 1965, 67, 69. Senator 1971 (two year term), 73. Democrat. Optometrist. 2078 Hawthorne, Reedsport 97467.

On the opening day of the 1979 session of the Legislature, Jason Boe became the first person in Oregon's history to be elected President of the Senate four consecutive times.

His career of public service began with his election to the Reedsport City Council in 1958. After serving a second term on the Council in 1962, Boe was elected to the Oregon House of Representatives in 1964. He was re-elected in 1966 and served as Minority Whip in the 1967 session. He was re-elected again in 1968, and was chosen House Minority Leader by his Democratic colleagues during the 1969 session.

Jason Boe was elected to fill a vacancy in the Oregon Senate in 1970. He was re-elected to the Oregon Senate in 1972, and was elected President of the Senate at the beginning of the 1973 session. He served as Senate President during the 1975 session, was re-elected to the Senate in 1976 and served as President for an unprecedented third consecutive term during the 1977 session. He broke his own record in 1979.

In addition to his many state-wide responsibilities, Jason Boe was elected president of the National Conference of State Legislatures in July, 1978. The NCSL is the national organization that speaks on behalf of all state legislatures in Washington D.C.

As a legislator, Jason Boe is closely associated with issues relating to property tax relief and education. He played a major role in the Legislature's enactment of Oregon's current Homeowner and Renter Property Tax Relief Program during his first term as Senate Pres.

He was born in Los Angeles on March 10, 1929. He received his BS degree from Pacific Lutheran University in 1951 and his Doctor of Optometry degree from Pacific University in 1955. He married the former Kathryn Reule of Hillsboro and they now live in Reedsport where Boe practices Optometry for a living. They have three sons.

WALTER F. (WALT) BROWN

Senator 1979-83. District 13, northwestern Clackamas County. Senator 1975. Democrat. Law professor. 16 SW Monticello Drive, Lake Oswego 97034.

Senator Walt Brown was reelected to a second term.

He is a lifelong Democrat, born July 28, 1926 and raised in Los Angeles. He holds three higher education degrees: BA cum laude, U. of Southern California; JD, USC Law Center; MA in government, Boston Univ. Graduate School; and a graduate year of legal studies at the U.S. Army Judge Advocates School.

He is presently an associate professor at the Northwestern School of Law, Lewis & Clark College, Portland.

Brown's Naval service was in the Pacific during World War II, and as an active reservist in Korea. He served in various legal capacities in the Reserves, and retired in 1971 with the rank of Commander, Judge Advocate General's Corps.

Sen. Brown is admitted to practice law before the California and U.S. Supreme Courts, and is a very active member of numerous major legal associations.

He has loaned his time and talents to many community and public affairs groups, including Clackamas County Citizens Assn. (pres., 1972-73); Consumer League; Loaves & Fishes; Ore. Council of Crime & Delinquency; environmental groups; veterans groups; and Democratic Party precinct committeeman and member of the Clackamas County Democratic Central Committee since 1972. In addition he is an active member of Atkinson Memorial Congregational Church in Oregon City, a Mason, Kiwanis, and likes skiing, hiking and sailing. He is married and has three sons.

Brown has received honors as an Eagle Scout, Phi Eta Sigma, Blackstonian, Phi Beta Kappa, Rhodes Scholar nominee, and numerous military awards.

In his legislative efforts, Sen. Brown supported the fluorocarbon aerosol ban; "Fair Trade" law repeal; Clackamas River scenic waterways; revisions in juvenile crime laws; lower probate legal fees; unit pricing and other consumer-interest bills.

RICHARD BULLOCK

Senator, 1978-83. District 11, southwest, suburban Portland. Democrat. Juvenile Court group worker. 105 SE 84th, Portland 97216.

Senator-elect Richard Bullock, a behind-the-scenes fixture in the Oregon Legislature last session, won his first elective office in Multnomah County's eleventh district by a margin of nearly three to two.

Richard Bullock is a Wenatchee, Washington native, born July 29, 1951, but grew up in Oregon, graduating from Lake Oswego High School. He earned a BA degree in government from Wesleyan University in Connecticut and pursued further government studies at Oxford University and the University of Hawaii.

His occupational experience has included retail merchandising, English teacher for disadvantaged youths under a federal program, research, campaign and survey work, and most

KEITH A. BURBIDGE

Senator 1979-83. District 17, portions of Polk, Marion counties north of Salem. Senator 1971, 75. Democrat. Railroad engineer. 4271 Ivory Way NE, Salem 97303.

Senator Burbidge won his third term to the Oregon State Senate.

Born in Ogden, Utah, May 16, 1920, he moved to Oregon in 1951. He attended Weber State College in Ogden. He has been an engineer with Southern Pacific for 29 years, getting his introduction to the legislature as a lobbyist for his fellow railroad employees for 14 of those years.

Sen. Burbidge was chosen assistant majority leader for both the 1973 and 75 sessions. In the recent regular session, he served as chairman of the Senate Committee on Aging and Minority Affairs, and as member of the Senate committees on Education, State & Federal Affairs, and Rules, as well as a member of the Capitol Planning Commission. In the Interim he was appointed to the State Emergency Board, chairman of the Capitol Planning Commission, chairman of the Willamette Valley Rail Study recently as Multnomah County Juvenile Court Group Worker. In government service, he was a civil rights investigator with the Bureau of Labor, administrative assistant in the British Parliament, and during the 1977 session a legislative assistant in the Oregon Legislature. He is married to the new Oregon Labor Commissioner Mary (Wendy) Roberts. Bullock's immediate predecessor in the District 11 senate seat.

As an active volunteer in civic and community projects, he has served on the OMSI Auction Committee, for two years on the Lents Education Center Advisory Board, and the East Multnomah County Community Action Agency as an alternate board member. He is a Mt. Hood Community College "Saint" (supporter), and a member of Lents Fair Share and Lents Community Concern. City Club of Portland and Portland Art Association. Sen.-elect Bullock is a Democratic precinct committeeperson.

As a legislative worker last session, Bullock supported the "Right to Die" law and the Unit Pricing law, as well as other legislative projects of Sen. Mary Roberts. He pledged attention to problems of property tax relief, government waste, and protection of small businesses.

Committee, chairman of the Legislative Facilities subcommittee, and member of the task forces on Public Contracting & Purchasing, and Nursing Homes.

Sen. Burbidge has also served during three special sessions of the Legislature. He was a member of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Oregon. He is a member of the Marion County Democratic Central Committee, serves on the board of directors of the Alcohol Counselors' Certification Board of Oregon, and served five years as president of the Oregon Democratic Fund.

Senator Burbidge and his wife Nita have a daughter and two sons.

VERN COOK

Senator 1977-81. District 12, east suburban Portland, Gresham. Representative 1957, 59. Senator 1961, 65, 69, 73. Democrat. Attorney. Rt. 3, Box 962, Troutdale 97060.

Senator Vern Cook is in his fifth term in the State Senate. He has been active in Multnomah County and state Democratic activities since 1952. He was the founder of the East Multnomah County Democratic Forum; he has been president of Young Democrats of Oregon, finance chairman of the Multnomah County Democratic Central Committee and registration chairman of the Democratic Party of Oregon.

His history in the Senate includes dedicated opposition to the "Republican" Coalition between 1961 and 71. He has supported Jason Boe for Senate President in the last three sessions. Cook was selected chairman of the Senate Revenue and School Finance Committee in 1973, 75, and 77 sessions, and was recently a member of the Judiciary, Transportation and State & Federal Affairs committees. In the '78 Interim he was chairman of the Interim Revenue & School Finance Committee and a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Cook served on the Taxation of Revenue committees all but one session in the Legislature. As chairman of the House Local Government Committee in 1959, he supported the County Home Rule Enabling Act. He was co-sponsor of the Multnomah County Charter Reform Amendments adopted in 1976.

Cook co-sponsored the "Fish" Bills in 1973, and was a leading supporter in 1974 of Ballot Measure 15 making steelhead a game fish.

Sen. Cook has been an opponent of sales tax, increased cigarette tax, and helped defeat the Governor's Tax Plan in 1973.

On the national level, Cook was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1964 and 1968, supported Sen. Church for President in 1976, and was himself a candidate for Congress in 1970 and 74, and for the U.S. Senate in 1978. In that '78 campaign, he opposed both property tax limitation measures as aiming at the wrong target; opposed the abortion restriction measure; opposed log exports; urged labor reform; and suggested lower interest rates to fight inflation.

He was born Oct. 14, 1925 on a Kansas

L.B. DAY

Senator 1979-83. District 16, Marion County. Representative 1965, 67, 69, Senator 1977 (appointed). Republican. Union officer. 1391 Warren St. SE, Salem 97302.

L.B. Day continues a notable public service career marked by independence and extreme public visibility and scrutiny. Day was originally elected to the Oregon House of Representatives in 1964 as a Democrat but later switched party affiliation to Republican. He served three elected terms before going into U.S. government employment as Dept. of Interior Northwest regional director in 1970. A year later he became the first director of the Oregon Dept. of Environmental Quality and its controversial programs. Two years later he was named as the first chairman of the even more controversial Land Conservation and Development Commission. He resigned that post in 1976 after making it one of the most public and public-participant agencies in Oregon government. Day held local and regional Teamster Union offices thereafter, and was appointed in 1977 to complete the Senate term of Wally Carson who resigned to become a judge. He was nominated by both parties to the seat this year and ran unopposed in November.

Day has served on several civic and public commissions, councils and such, and is recipient of numerous awards and recognitions, a few of which are: Salem Junior First Citizen (1966), one of Top Ten Young Men in Oregon (67), Salem First Citizen (68), Oregon Public Administrator of the Year (73), several environmental protection awards, and others.

Ed Fadeley was first elected to the State Senate in 1962 after two years in the House. In the recent election he collected some 16,500 votes against his Republican opponent's 9,800.

Fadeley was born Dec. 13, 1929 in Williamsville, Missouri, where he also attended public schools. He earned a BA at the University of Missouri, served in the Navy, and went on to gain a Doctor of Jurisprudence, with honors (top of class), at the University of Oregon. He has had his own practice as an attorney since 1957. He is husband of Representative Nancie Fadeley, and father of two.

Attorney Fadeley is admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court and all Oregon courts, and has held important posts in the American Bar and Oregon Bar Associations. He is active in Eugene's First United Methodist Church, and has participated in several civic and fraternal organizations. He is presently working on a book on State Constitutional Law. He and his family enjoy backpacking, canoeing and mountain climbing.

Besides his law school scholastic honors, Sen. Fadeley was nominated for the Eugene Distinguished Service Award. He has been president of the Lane County Assn. for Retarded Children, and chairman of the Effective Energy Policy for Oregon Committee. He is member of the Oregon Law Enforcement Council and chairman of the Law and Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

One of the senior members of the Senate, Fadeley has chaired numerous committees and is recognized as a skillful and effective floor debator.

JIM GARDNER

Senator 1979-83. District 10, portions of SE, NE Portland. Democrat. Attorney. 626 NE Mirimar Pl., Portland 97232.

Sen.-Elect Jim Gardner succeeds Democratic appointee Raul Soto-Seelig in Dist. 10 in the geographical center of eastside Portland. Gardner won the three-way Democratic race for nomination, then went on to collect 72% of the General Election votes.

Gardner was born on May 5, 1946 in Kansas City, Kansas, and attended schools in Kansas City, Missouri. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from Yale University, and presently practices with a Portland law firm. He was previously employed in the U.S. Supreme Court, and in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Portland.

Gardner has been a very active Democrat, serving as Portland Metropolitan Area Coordinator for the Party's voter registration and get-out-the-vote drive in 1976, and is former state chairman of the Oregon Democratic Party Platform & Resolutions Committee. He is a member of the City Club and Common Cause. Professional memberships include the State Bar and its Continuing Legal Education Committee, and the Multnomah County Bar Assn.

Sen.-Elect Gardner was article editor for the Yale Law Journal, Scholar of the House at Yale, a National Merit Scholar, ranking scholar at Yale College, and winner of the Newspaper Fund Scholarship for Excellence in Journalism. He has worked as a reporter for the Kansas City Star and Wall Street Journal. He served in the U.S. Army.

Jim and his wife Lynda like hiking, skiing, tennis and drama.

Gardner supports "lowering property taxes by sharing state revenues with cities; conservation and development of alternative energy resources; a more sympathetic response to the needs of senior citizens."

RICHARD E. (DICK) GROENER

Senator 1979-83. District 14, portion of Clackamas County. Representative 1955, 57, 65, 69, Senator 1959, 71, 75. Democrat. Public relations and insurance. 15014 Woodland Way, Milwaukie 97222.

He was born at Lafayette, Oregon, March 10, 1917, had education including high school in Oregon City and in Boston. Among his special skills is training in radio. He is married to Chloris Groener and they have three sons. He is a member of the Nazarene Church, Masonic Lodge, Shriners, and belongs to the North Clackamas Chamber of Commerce (charter president). He won an Outstanding Citizen Award in 1962 from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes and served as president of the Milwaukie Community Club. He is a recipient of the Liberty Award of the Oregon Seventh Day Adventist Church, and of the Kelley Lowe Memorial Award from the Oregon AFL-CIO for "outstanding community service to the working people of the state." He has been a leader with March of Dimes, United Way, Camp Fire Girls, Gresham General Hospital and advisory Board of the county Physicians association.

Groener formerly owned an insurance agency in Milwaukie, and presently is state public relations coordinator for American Income Life of Seattle.

Dick is well known in his area as an avid gardner.

Groener was president pro tem of the Senate during the 1973 regular and special sessions, and in the recent session was chairman of the important Labor, Consumer & Business Affairs Committee.

TED HALLOCK

Senator 1979-83. District 5, west Portland. Senator 1963, 67, 71, 75. Democrat. Advertising/public relations. 2445 NW Irving St., Portland 97210.

Senator Ted Hallock enters his fifth four-year term with a formidable record of accomplishments in 8 regular and six special sessions. He has been chairman of the Joint Committee on Land Use, vice-chairman of the Western States Task Force, chairman of the Environment and Energy Committee. His legislative activities have been in the areas of vocational training, statewide land-use planning (he was co-author of Senate Bill 100, passed in '73), environmental quality, tax reform and health care.

The nearly life-long Oregon resident was born Oct. 26, 1921 in Los Angeles, attended Portland schools, and obtained a journalism BS at the University of Oregon. He is married to Jacklyn, a two-term appointee to the Environmental Quality Commission, and they have two daughters and a son.

Professional recognition in his field of journalism and public relations, in which he has been active in Portland for many years, include the Peabody Award in radio, and awards from the English Speaking Union, Freedoms Foundation and the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He earned three major medals while in the Air Corps and Air Force in the Second World War.

Professional affiliations are with the Portland Assn. of Advertising Agencies, Sigma Delta Chi, American Federation of Musicians, Am. Fed. of Radio & Television Artists, and Western States Legislative Forestry Task Force. He also belongs to and advises numerous arts, service and environmental organizations.

Among his varied interests are stamp collecting, carpentry, tap dancing and painting.

Sen. Hallock looks forward to participating in "the budget-cutting process which will unquestionably take place in the 1979 legislative session," but without hurting "some services which helpless members of our society depend on." He recently supported an initiative to cut legislators' salaries.

CHARLES J. HANLON

Senator 1979-83. District 1, Clatsop, Columbia, northern Washington counties. Senator 1975. Democrat. Cattleman, wood craftsman. Rt. 1, Box 221, Cornelius 97113.

After winning his first senate term by defeating the incumbent and becoming the only independent elected to the Senate in 1975, Sen. Charles Hanlon was an unopposed Democrat in the Nov. '78 election.

Sen. Hanlon was born in Pennsylvania Sept. 15, 1918, and after completing high school he has ranched, was active in the U.S. Army Aviation Engineers for five years, and worked as assistant treasurer for a building material company. He has been involved in designing and building of custom homes, as a political writer, and is a self-employed cattle rancher.

During his first term, Sen. Hanlon was chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee, and senate chairman of the Legislative Counsel Committee. He also served on the committees for Trade & Economic Development, Agriculture & Natural Resources, Revenue & School Finance, Environment & Energy, and Labor.

Sen. Hanlon and his wife Neila have two children.

LENN L. HANNON

Senator 1979-83. District 26, Jackson, western Klamath Counties. Senator 1975. Democrat. Equipment operator. 240 Scenic Drive, Ashland 97520.

Senator Lenn Hannon won reelection to a second term from a field of three candidates in the General Election, collecting almost 60% of the vote. The City of Ashland employee narrowly upset incumbent Lynn Newbry in the 1974 election.

Hannon is a native of the region, born in Roseburg on Independence Day, 1943, and attended schools in Ashland, including Southern Oregon College. He served in active duty in the Army and six years in the Oregon National Guard.

Besides his Construction and Laborers

Union Local, he is a member of the Church of the Nazarene, Scottish Rite Masons, Shriners, Jackson County Farm Bureau and local Granges. He was nominated an Outstanding Young Man in America 1974 and 75. Lenn and Dixie Hannon have three daughters and a son.

During his first term, Sen. Hannon worked on property tax relief, public education, consumer protection, environment and economy. He served on Ways & Means in the last session. Commenting on the upcoming Legislature, Hannon says "people want less rules, regulations, taxes and programs to give money away. Energy will be critical in the next session." He also identified the need to attract business and industry to the state and "those businesses here will need incentives to stay and expand."

TOM HARTUNG

Senator 1979-83. District 3, Washington County. Representative 1967, 69, Senator 1971. Republican. Meat company manager. 13975 NW Burton Rd., Portland 97229.

After a one-term (two sessions) absence, Sen. Hartung was reelected to the Senate when he defeated incumbent Blaine Whipple, who had unseated him in 1974 by 294 votes. Hartung had previously been twice elected to the House of Representatives. His district extends from the eastern edge of Washington County through the populous corridor of Beaverton, Hillsboro, Forest Grove.

Sen. Hartung was co-sponsor of Senate Bill 10 which was the forerunner of Oregon's present land use laws, and author of meat inspection legislation. His introduction of three other primary bills led to Oregon's drug and narcotics legislation. He was chairman of Project Oregon Water, Ballot Measure No. 1 which passed in 1977, and V.O.T.E., the successful law enforcement and serial levy for Washington County.

In his '78 campaign, Hartung reiterated previous commitments to encouraging a "citizen legislature" rather than professional. He said he would work against the trend toward higher legislator pay, increasing staffing and full-time operation by proposing a 120-day limit on the daily payments to legislators during the session. He also pledges support of agricultural interests and for Oregon's land-use planning laws.

Born June 11, 1927 in Eugene, Tom Hartung grew up there and in north Portland, graduating from Jefferson High as student body president and a letterman. He served in the Navy in the Pacific in World War Two. He earned a degree in agricultural economics at Oregon State University. He is vice president and general manager of a family meat company and a director of Far West Federal Savings.

Hartung is a past director and chairman of the board of Beaverton School District No. 48. He is a Rotarian, Mason, active in the Cedar Hills Community Church, Agri-Business Council, on the boards of the OSU Foundation and Pacific University, past director and vice president of the National Assn. of Meat Purveyors, and is a member of the Restaurants of Oregon Assn. (Purveyor of the Year, 1977), and similar food service organizations.

Tom and his wife Beverly have five children and live on a 130-acre farm in NW suburban Portland.

FRED W. HEARD

Senator 1977-81. District 27, Klamath and Deschutes counties. Representative 1969, 71. Senator 1973. Democrat. Educator. 212 High Street, Klamath Falls 97601.

Fred Heard was born September 9, 1940 at Prineville, Oregon. He graduated from Klamath Union High School and received his BS in 1963, and MS in 1969. Both degrees are from Southern Oregon College.

Senator Heard served as Klamath County Democratic Central Committee Chairman, and precinct committeeman.

He was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1968, and re-elected in 1970. In 1972 he was elected State Senator from District 27, and in 1976 was unopposed for re-election.

During the 1977 Legislative Session, Senator Heard served as Senate Majority Leader and Vice-chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. In addition to these duties, he has been a member of most of the major substantive committees. He has served during each interim since his election to the Senate on the important Emergency Board. From 1973-77 Senator Heard was chairman of the Executive Appointments Committee.

During the 1978 interim, Senator Heard was Chairman of the Sunset Task Force subcommittee reviewing the Teacher Standards and Practices Commission and Police Standards. He also served as a member of the Task Force on Career and Vocational Education and the Legislative Administration Committee. He was also a member of the Committee on Tax Relief and Expenditure Limitation serving the 1978 special session.

His colleagues recently re-elected him unanimously for a third term as Majority Leader. Senator Heard also served as Oregon's 1976 Co-Chairman for the Jimmy Carter for President Campaign.

In past Legislative Sessions Fred Heard has supported and helped enact many important statutes, some of which are: the law which required all governmental meetings to be open to the public, renters and home owners property tax relief, the Fish and Wildlife merger, and the principles of local control.

Since 1971, Fred Heard has served as an Assistant Professor at the Oregon Institute of Technology. He is an Episcopalian, serves on the board of UGN and is a member of the Oregon Folk Arts Advisory Panel. Fred, his wife Adair and their three children reside in Klamath Falls.

PERFORMANCE

THAT'S WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

As a specialty Company, American Guaranty has built innovative programs into marketing successes. Not every specialty company can do this. American guaranty has, though, with several outstanding lines of business which continue to grow. For instance:

- The American Funeral Plan — Now in its 20th year and establishing new sales records. This program is being expanded into the States of Texas, Florida and New Mexico.
- And, soon to be introduced — A new line of medical insurance to supplement government medicare programs; cancer and other specified disease medical insurance.

Publicly held, American Guaranty continues to register significant growth — and has paid 10% annual stock dividends in each of the last five years.

IN FIVE YEARS, THE G-P BUILDING HAS SAVED 37 MILLION KILOWATT-HOURS...

Enough to supply 3,000 Portland homes with electricity for a year!

The water shortage of 1973 stimulated concern in our Northwest region about energy management. Georgia-Pacific Corporation accepted the challenge. In five years, consumption of energy was cut by more than 37 million kilowatt hours in the Georgia-Pacific headquarters building in downtown Portland.

An energy utilization team was assembled consisting of the building management firm, The Gilley Company, consulting engineers, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill and Portland General Electric. A three-step energy saving program was launched.

First, lighting levels in non-critical areas were lowered, and operating hours for lighting, heating and cooling systems were shortened. As a result, more than 10 million kilowatt hours were saved during the next two years.

The second step was to reduce the amount of air brought in from outside, which is heated in the winter and cooled in summer. Over a three year period, savings totalled 17 million kilowatt hours.

The third step of the program is being implemented now:

Computer equipment is being installed to automate and control the building's energy use. The goal is to save 14 million kilowatt hours per year, compared to the 1972 usage.

Interested in finding out how your company can conserve? Ask PGE. Our Energy Management Consultants are willing and able to offer specific suggestions to solve the special energy problems businesses and industries face today. For free suggestions to meet your particular company's needs, call the Conservation and Energy Management Department, 226-8474.

Thank you, Georgia-Pacific for saving electricity.

GEORGE F. WINGARD

Senator 1979-83. District 20, Eugene. Representative 1969, Senator 1971, 75. Republican. Builder-contractor. 2323 Fairmount Blvd., Eugene 97403.

Senator George Wingard entered politics in 1966 when he became a Eugene City Councilman. He served in the Oregon House in the 1969 Session, and moved to the other side of the Capitol as Senator in 1971, reelected there in 1974 and 78. The Amboy, Washington native (born Nov. 6, 1935), his wife Rhea and their son and two daughters live in Eugene where he is in business as a builder.

His educational background includes schooling in Lakeview, studies at the University of Oregon, and a BS degree from the OSU School of Engineering.

Honors to come his way include the Eugene First Citizen award in 1968, and one of five Outstanding Young Men of Oregon the same year.

As a legislator, Wingard has served four times as vice-chairperson for Senate Revenue and School Finance committee, and in the current session was also on the Environment & Energy and Human Resources committees. Wingard recently was chairperson of the Joint Interim Task Force on Transportation Policies and Funding.

Republican Wingard also won the Democrats' write-in nomination in the '78 Primary, and ran unopposed in November.

JAN WYERS

Senator 1977-81. District 6, SE and SW suburban Portland. Democrat. Attorney. 1127 SE Lambert, Portland 97202.

First-term Senator Jan Wyers is a native Oregonian, born in Hood River Jan. 2, 1939. He attended grade and high schools in Hood River, and his law and pre-law work was at Dartmouth, University of Oregon and San Francisco State U. He obtained his JD with special recognition from the Northwestern School of Law at Lewis & Clark in 1975. He spent several years in active service, Oregon National Guard and Army Reserves. He and his wife Judith have two daughters. Family activities include wilderness camping, vegetable gardening, and baking.

Wyers was president of the Jackson Neighborhood Community Assn., and executive director of the Northwest Environmental Defense Center. He is past president of the "Campaigners," and a member of the SE Portland Rotary. Professional organizations include the Oregon State Bar.

Sen. Wyers has worked to "increase public interest and involvement in the legislative process through informal meeting of citizens with legislators in the community and at the Capitol."

"In this nation, we must begin to utilize available technologies and accept the concept of buying systems on the basis of lowest energy cost, rather than lowest first cost, or simply face the inevitability of paying more and more to keep our homes and buildings less and less comfortable in the coming years."

OREGON HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TED ACHILLES

Representative 1979-81. District 27, Oregon City, Canby, Wilsonville, West Linn. Representative 1977. Republican. Businessman. 18300 S. Whitten Lane, West Linn 97068.

A West Linn resident, Representative Achilles is part-owner of an electronics firm in Salem. A graduate of Yale, he holds a masters degree in economics from Tufts University. He was born in Washington D.C. on Jan. 14, 1936.

Career experience was in international banking and bank management with a Canadian bank, and as vice president and manager of the international banking division of First National Bank of Oregon. He is vice president and director of Morrow Electronics, Salem. He served as an officer in the Army. Achilles, his wife Joan, two sons and three daughters live on and operate a family farm.

He is a trustee of the Portland State University Foundation, member of Marylhurst Advisory Council, and treasurer of the Portland-Sapporo Sister City Assn. He lists back-packing, river-running and sailing among his avocational activities.

Unopposed in his reelection bid, Achilles terms himself a "strong believer" in decentralized government. He voted against the Metropolitan Service District and successfully introduced an amendment to exclude Canby. He initiated only two bills in the 1977 Legislature, both of which passed. One requires the State to improve its financial disclosure by publishing a balance sheet, the second established a task force to begin to identify, correct or eliminate government regulations that hinder the growth and profitability of small businesses. Achilles was selected as one of the outstanding freshman legislators.

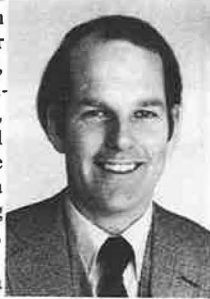

RICK BAUMAN

Representative 1979-81. District 11, southeast Portland. Democrat. Self-employed home renovation. 5527 SE 54th Ave., Portland 97206.

Rick Bauman ran away with the vote in the Nov. election, defeating his Republican and Independent opposition for a first House term.

He was born in Marinette, Wisconsin on April 26, 1950, later moved to Los Altos, California where he graduated from high school, and attended Portland State University and the University of California at Santa Cruz, earning BS and BA degrees, respectively.

He worked on a public health project in India in 1970, and later was employed as a research assistant at the University of Oregon Medical School. He currently is self employed, operating a home remodeling and investment business. Rick, his wife Judy and their two daughters live in SE Portland.

He was served as a Democratic Precinct Committeeperson.

The predominant issue in his campaign was the necessity of cutting government spending as the most important step to tax relief. He also proposes changes in utilities' electricity rate structure for "reasonable rates" and discourage waste. He opposes mandatory retirement, supports "affordable" child day care, and encourages a priority on maintaining quality education in the face of government spending cuts.

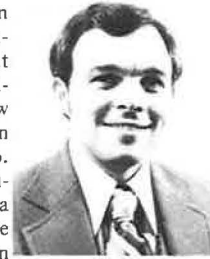

BILL C. BELLAMY

Representative 1979-81. District 55, Jefferson, Sherman, Gilliam, Morrow counties, eastern Linn and Marion counties. Republican. Vocational teacher. Rt. 1, Box 85 C, Culver 97734.

The District 55 House seat switches from Democratic to Republican with the election of Bill Bellamy to his first term as a Representative. Incumbent Jack Sumner was defeated in the Primary. Bellamy has been associated with agriculture, forestry, and small business during all of his school and working life. He has lived in the district for over 25 years.

Bellamy was born Dec. 9, 1949 in Golden-dale, Washington, but moved across the Columbia River and grew up attending schools in Boardman and Moro. He earned a BS in agricultural education and a master degree in the same field at Oregon State University, and teaches vocational agriculture in the Culver School District. He has also been an instructor at his alma mater, OSU.

Representative-Elect Bellamy is a member of the Oregon Agriculture Teachers Assn., secretary of the Oregon Vocational Assn. and on its board of directors, a member of the national arms of those associations, and on the board of directors of his local Future Farmers of America. He presently serves as a state officer of FFA, and was named Outstanding Young Agriculture Teacher in Oregon for 1978. In addition to his many talents and interests centered in agriculture, his hobbies include horses, leather-working and woodworking.

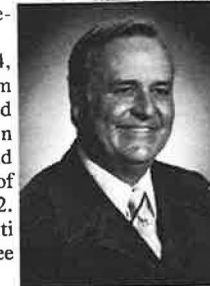

Bellamy maintains that the rural parts of Oregon need strong and effective representation to compete with the urban legislators.

ROBERT A. BROGOITTI

Representative 1979-81. District 58, Wallowa, Union, eastern and southern Umatilla counties. Representative 1977. Republican. Farmer. 1511 Adams, LaGrande 97850.

Union County cattleman and wheat farmer Bob Brogoitti was returned for a second term from his northeast Oregon district.

He was born June 14, 1920, graduated from Helix High Schools, and attended Washington State University, and has been a resident of the county since 1962. He and Marian Brogoitti are parents of three grown children.

His community and professional memberships have been numerous, and include the Oregon Agri-Business Council (president), Pacific International Livestock Assn. (board of directors), Oregon Wheat League, Oregon Farm Bureau, Oregon Forestry Committee, Eastern Oregon State College Foundation, La Grande School Board, and La Grande Chamber of Commerce. He recently completed a three-year term on the National Grains Advisory Committee to the Secretary of Agriculture. He is a member of the Episcopal Church and Masons.

Legislative service during the first term was on the Agriculture & Natural Resources, Education, and Transportation committees. He was appointed to the Western States Legislative Forestry Task Force.

As a leader in his district, Brogoitti was instrumental in keeping the Ideal Guest Home as an operational facility for the aged, supported the phase-out inheritance taxes, was a mediator for ranchers and game management people in Wallowa County, and worked on Milton-Freewater redistricting.

He supports tax relief and tough crime laws.

THEODORE T. (TED) BUGAS

Representative 1979-81. District 2. Clatsop County, portions of Columbia, Washington counties. Representative 1977. Republican. Food processing management. 1608 Irving, Astoria 97103.

Ted Bugas, long-time lobbyist for the Lower Columbia River fishing industry, was the first Republican to win the District 2 House seat since 1954, and was reelected for a second term in 1978.

Born in Wamsutter, Wyoming on June 6, 1924, Bugas came to Clatsop County in the '50s as an FBI agent. He joined Bumble Bee Seafoods in 1960 and worked his way up to vice president of the foods department of its parent firm, Castle & Cooke. He became part-owner of Barbey Packing in 1974 and is the company's president. He was executive secretary of the Columbia River Salmon & Tuna Packers Assn. for several years and lobbied for commercial fishing interests in Oregon's legislature since 1961 and in Washington's legislature since 1965. He is a member of the National Food Processors Assn., and an advisor to the Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission.

Bugas is a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church, American Legion, Elks, Astoria Chamber of Commerce (past president) and Clatsop County Economic Development Committee (past chairman). He is a recipient of the B&PW Torch Award.

Ted grew up in Wyoming, attended the University of Wyoming, University of Colorado, and graduated from the University of Notre Dame with a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree. He was in U.S. Navy service during World War II.

Besides his family, which includes his wife Patricia and ten children, his interests take in golf and travel.

Representative Bugas has stressed the goal of containing taxation and government expense, and sees tax relief as necessary especially for fixed income and elderly taxpayers.

MARY McCAULEY BURROWS

Representative 1979-81. District 41, north Eugene, Coburg. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Republican. Homemaker. 3105 Firwood Way, Eugene 97401.

Representative Mary Burrows was returned by more than a two-to-one margin, back for a fourth term from the 41st District which covers northwest Eugene, stretching north to the Lane-Linn county line.

He has been active in state United Way. He is president of Jack Duff Ranches, Inc.

As an active community affairs participant, Duff is a member and has held office in Elks, Mason, Shrine, First Presbyterian Church, Pendleton Chamber of Commerce, is an FFA Honorary member, and was chosen First Citizen of Pendleton in 1967.

Jack and his wife Ruth have three boys.

As a legislator Duff worked on legislation allowing Irrigation Districts to be formed providing state bonding for water projects. In the recent Regular Session he was appointed to the Education and Aging committees. In the Interim he served as member of the task forces on Minimum Competencies, Transportation, and Sunset Review. He reiterates his view that "I am not in favor of state programs that require county support — they should be funded at the state level. All state departments should be required to use a program budget with a performance audit each year. There should be a limit on the number of bills that can be introduced in the Legislature."

C.H. (CHICK) EDWARDS

Representative 1979-81. District 33, north and west Salem. Republican, Management consultant. 2230 Emmet Dr. NW, Salem 97304.

Representative-elect Chick Edwards narrowly edged the incumbent Democrat Bob Vian in the General Election by a vote of 7466 to 7392. It will be the Salem Republican's first experience in public office.

Edwards was born on July 6, 1945 in Spokane and grew up in Kennewick, Washington. He attended college at Willamette University in Portland, where he earned a BA in economics and a BA in political science. He went on to gain an MBA at Portland State University.

Edwards used his economics training as a management analyst in the City of Portland's Office of Management Services, then most recently was a fiscal administrator in the Police Bureau. Presently he is self-employed as a management consultant in the area of commercial development.

A member of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, Rep.-elect Edwards likes water and snow skiing, tennis and racquetball.

A campaign statement expressed the conviction that "a smaller, more efficient, less expensive government is a worthy goal we can achieve."

NANCIE P. FADELEY

Representative 1979-81. District 42, Springfield. Representative 1971, 73, 75, 77. Democrat. Freelance writer. 260 Sunset Dr., Eugene 97403.

Representative Nancie Fadeley was returned for a fifth consecutive House term with more than 60% majority in the November election. She is the wife of reelected State Senator Edward Fadeley.

Her childhood and education were in Missouri, from birth in St. Louis July 11, 1930 through her BA degree from Central Methodist College, with high honors and recognition in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." She has since been listed in several other directories and who's who compilations. Graduate work was done at Duke University and at the University of Oregon (MA, 1974). In 1973 she was named Distinguished Alumna of the Fayette, Missouri College. Nancie was recently made an honorary state member of Delta Kappa Gamma, an organization of distinguished educators.

Rep. Fadeley has been active in the League of Women Voters; on the Wesley Board at the University of Oregon; in the Methodist Church; and in PEO.

Reading, biking and hiking are among her leisure interests, besides home life with her husband and two children.

Legislatively, she has worked for property tax relief and education, and encourages the preservation of liveability of Oregon. She supports the concept of a combination of state and federal funds to finance public education. She contributed to Oregon's energy programs and authorized the Displaced Homemakers Act.

WAYNE H. FAWBUSH

Representative 1979-81. District 56, northwestern Clackamas, Hood River, northern Wasco counties. Representative 1977. Democrat. Photographer. 5000 O'Leary Rd., Hood River 97031.

A freshman legislator in the 1977 session, Wayne Fawbush narrowly edged his predecessor Paul Walden in 1976 and '78 after losing to the same opponent in 1974. A native of Hood River (Mar. 17, 1944), he and his wife are purchasing an orchard in the Valley.

Fawbush earned a BA and a master's degree in political science from the University of Oregon, following four years as intelligence officer with the Air Force. He was student body president at Wy'east High School.

Representative Fawbush was a legislative aide for a part of the 1973 session, and later worked as migrant health coordinator for the State Health Div. During the 1972 presidential campaign he was an active worker for the McGovern nomination, and has been active at the local level in other campaigns.

Community activities involve him as a training officer for the rural fire department, and with the Lions Club.

DAVID B. (DAVE) FROHNMAYER

Representative 1979-81. District 40, south Eugene. Representative 1975, 77. Republican. Law professor. 2875 Baker Blvd., Eugene 97403.

Dave Frohnmayer was overwhelmingly reelected with 75% of the votes cast in his district — the largest margin of any House race in the state.

A native of Medford, born July 9, 1940, he attended schools there, winning an AB degree magna cum laude from Harvard, BA and MA degrees from Oxford, and JD from the University of California (Berkeley) School of Law. He is presently a professor of law at the University of Oregon School of Law. Previous positions were with federal agencies and with a private law firm.

His affiliations are with the American, Oregon, California and Lane County Bar Associations, American Assn. of Rhodes Scholars, National Assn. of College and University Attorneys, Round Table of Eugene, Downtown Rotary, Rubicon Society and Oregon Common Cause.

Frohnmayer was special assistant to the U.S. Secretary of Health, Education & Welfare in 1969-70; a consultant in the civil rights division of the U.S. Dept. of Justice, 1973-74; and public interest member, Oregon Field Burning Committee; member, Governor's Select Committee on Conflict of Interest Legislation, and chairman, American Council on Education Equal Employment Opportunity Task Force. For six years he was a consultant on the advisory committee on probate law revision, Oregon Law Improvement Committee.

He served on the Interim Judiciary Committee and co-chaired the House Task Force on Rules & Procedures during the 1977-78 Interim. A recent Eugene First Citizen and one of five Outstanding Young Men of Oregon (both 1975), and winner of numerous law and civic recognitions, Dave lives in Eugene with his wife Lynn and two daughters and a son. His hobbies include swimming, music, skiing, travel and gardening.

MARK GARDNER

Representative 1979-81. District 4, central Washington County, Hillsboro, Forest Grove. Representative 1977. Democrat. Attorney. 880 NW 10th Ave., Hillsboro 97123.

Mark Gardner, who won reelection to a second term by one of the largest landslides of the election, is a native of Hillsboro, born there March 13, 1949 and educated locally. He went to college at the University of the Pacific (All-American in track, 1968), and earned a BA in political science, and a JD law degree from Hastings Law School. He practices law in Hillsboro with his father.

Gardner was recently a city councilman in Hillsboro, and is a member of community groups such as BPO Elks, Jaycees, Optimists and Hillsboro Chamber of Commerce. Professionally he belongs to the Bar associations of Oregon and Washington County. He is a member of the Hillsboro United Methodist Church. He continues active in athletics and likes bridge.

During his first term as a representative, Gardner worked on bills that dealt with tougher criminal sentencing laws, property tax relief, increases in basic school support, deductibility of adoption expenses and tax relief for some constituents in the Unified Sewerage Agency bonding area. He said he intends to continue to work for support for senior citizens and long-range funding of the state educational system.

JEFFREY L. (JEFF) GILMOUR

Representative 1979-81. District 30, western portions of Marion, Linn counties. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Farmer. Rt. 1, Box 108, Jefferson 97352.

Jeff Gilmour represents the basically agricultural district including Stayton. The 31-year-old Democrat and his wife Joan live near Jefferson where Jeff is a third-generation farmer operating a seed and row-crop farm with his brother and father.

Representing the 30th District since 1973, Rep. Gilmour has served on a number of committees and in 1977 was vice-chairman of the Trade & Economic Development Committee and a member of the State Government Operations Committee.

During his tenure as a representative, Gilmour has been instrumental in the passage of a reduction in workers' compensation rates for farmers and in the establishment of a third party grading system for agricultural commodities delivering to canning processors. He has directed efforts toward holding down government spending and seeking further relief of property taxes through increased homeowners' and renters' refunds. He proposes welfare reform based on a program to put able-bodied welfare recipients to work.

Born Dec. 28, 1947, Jeff is a lifetime resident of Jefferson. He attended Salem Academy High School and Oregon College of Education. As an agricultural producer he is a member of the Stayton Canning Co-op, belongs to the Jefferson Lions, and likes to fish and hunt.

PAUL A. HANNEMAN

Representative 1979-81. District 3, Tillamook and parts of Yamhill, Washington and Polk Counties. Representative 1965, 67, 69, 71, 73, 75, 77. Republican. Owner, boat building firm. 35010 Resort Drive, Cloverdale 97112.

Representative Paul Hanneman soundly trounced his Democratic opponent for election to an eighth House term from the third District.

During his relatively long legislative career, Rep. Hanneman has fought for the causes of agriculture (tansy ragwort control, Veterinary Medical School, preservation of farm land), conservation and environment (author of Bottle Bill, recycling, forest management), education (local control of schools, increased state support). He is a commercial fisherman, boat-builder and charter operator, and has supported the interests of fishing and other coastal industries.

Hanneman was born July 20, 1936 in Portland, and attended public schools in Tillamook County, and Portland State University. He is owner/partner in Cape Kiwanda Boat Builders and in Cape Kiwanda Wood Products. He is a member of two chambers of commerce, the Oregon Coast Association, the Outdoor Advertising Council, and other related groups. He has served on many civic, charitable, trade and public service organizations over the last 25 years. Among public recognition was selection as one of five Outstanding Young Men of Oregon in 1968. He is married to Sandy Hanneman and has two sons.

WILLIAM N. GRANNELL

Representative 1979-81. District 47, north-eastern Coos County, Coos Bay, North Bend. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Newspaper publisher. 438 Northwood Rd., North Bend 97459.

Representative Bill Grannell returns for a fourth term.

While in his first session, he was honored by being selected an Outstanding Freshman Legislator (1973), and gained recognition among Outstanding Young Men of America the same year.

He was born January 6, 1938 in Denver, and graduated from the University of Denver with a BA and a teacher's certificate. He spent a decade as a teacher first in Denver, then in Oregon at Reedsport and at North Bend. He was a field organizer for the OEA, and is presently editor and publisher of the Empire Builder, Coos Bay's weekly newspaper.

A former majority whip, last session he chaired the House Business & Consumer Affairs Committee, and for the past two terms has co-chaired Legislative Counsel Committee.

He has been a proponent of increased property tax relief.

Representative 1979-81. District 49, Josephine County. Representative 1975, 77. Republican. Farmer-businessman. 3515 Upper River Rd., Grants Pass 97526.

Cecil Johnson, prominent cattleman, and long time resident of southern Oregon, was returned unopposed to the Oregon House for a third term.

Born Sept. 23, 1917, Lodi, California, he moved to Grants Pass in 1927 and attended schools in Josephine County, graduating from Grants Pass High. He and his brother have operated the Valley Rogue Guernsey Farms for 26 years, where registered guerneys are bred and dairy products are produced, processed and distributed. His civic activities are many and varied, serving as president of the Oregon Dairyman's Assn., Southern Oregon Dairyman's Assn., County Purebred Breeders' Assn., County Young Farmers Club, and Oregon Producer-Distributors' Assn. He is a member of Rotary, Oregon Farm Bureau and Elks.

He has received many awards for his work in agriculture and public service, from both state and local groups. He has served as chairman of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture.

In the 1977 session he served as vice chairman of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, and on the Aging Committee. During the recent Interim he served on the Forestry Task Force, Teachers Standards and Practice and Police Standards and Practice Task Force. Johnson also serves on the Western Conference of State Governments Conference-Committee on Agriculture.

Cecil and Arlene Johnson have two daughters and a son.

ELDON JOHNSON

Representative 1979-81. District 51, southwestern Jackson County. Republican. Retired businessman. 3650 Ross Lane, Medford 97502.

Representative Johnson was appointed in 1977 to complete the unexpired term of former Rep. Brad Morris who resigned. District 51 includes Phoenix, the southern part of Medford and the rest of southwest Jackson County. (Eldon Johnson is not to be confused with Leigh Johnson, 1971-75 Representative from Ashland, who now lives in Medford and was considered for the Morris vacancy appointment.)

Representative Johnson was born in West Point, Nebraska on Aug. 16, 1930. He graduated from high school in Tucson, Arizona. For 15 years he was a partner and manager of Beaver Electric & Plumbing Supply in Medford, and is a member and chairman of the Medford School Board. A member of the United Methodist Church and an Air Force veteran, Eldon is married to Barbara Johnson and they have a daughter and a son.

Following his appointment, Johnson was assigned to the Interim Task Forces on Workers Compensation, Small Business and Nursing Assistants.

Rep. Johnson has stressed his opposition to a full-time Legislature, and advocates improving existing programs before creating new ones. He also favors less state control over public education and more state funds to finance programs mandated from Salem.

D.E. (DENNY) JONES

Representative 1979-81. District 60, Lake, Harney, Malheur counties. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Republican. Semi-retired cattle rancher. 1461 NW 3rd Ave., Ontario 97914.

Representative Denny Jones, returning for a fourth term, was born in Lone on Sept. 21, 1910, but has lived in Malheur County most of his life. He operated a cattle ranch in Juntura for over 40 years, now lives in Ontario.

Representative Jones was active for many years and is a past president of the Malheur Livestock Assn. and the Oregon Cattleman's Assn. He has been on the board of directors of the American Cattlemen. He was first introduced to the Oregon Legislature as an active lobbyist for the Cattlemen's Assn.

County service includes six years on the Malheur Budget Board, and three on the County Juvenile Council, as well as nine years on his local school board. He belongs to the Elks and Masonic Lodge, and the Chamber of Commerce.

He has been the recipient of Cattleman of the Year award, an honorary lifetime membership in the Harney Livestock Assn., and Certificate of Appreciation from the Ontario Chamber of Commerce. He recently reigned as Grand Marshall of the Vale Fourth of July Parade.

He and his wife Mildred have a grown son and daughter.

Representative Jones served on the Agriculture and Natural Resources, and Elections committees, and in the Interim on the Water Law Committee and on Rules & Procedures.

He recently stated: "I believe we need to retain our present law regarding our vested water rights and protect our present priorities for water use." He also supports "use of our fuel and vehicle tax for maintenance of our highways. Opposed to any new tax."

GRETCHEN KAFOURY

Representative 1979-81. District 13, close-in S.E. and N.E. Portland. Representative 1977. Democrat. Civil rights technical coordinator. 1508 N.E. Stanton, Portland 97212.

Gretchen Kafoury was first elected to the House seat vacated when the incumbent, her former husband Stephen Kafoury, ran for the state Senate in '77.

Representative Kafoury is a native of Walla Walla, Washington, born June 23, 1942, and attended schools there including Whitman College, and U. of Michigan and Portland State. She is a technical assistance coordinator with the Oregon Civil Rights Division, and has experience in teaching, child care, and has lobbied for the Oregon Consumer League in the Legislature. She has two daughters and is remarried.

Her association activities include women's equality groups, Oregon Consumer League and ACLU. She was selected state legislative coordinator for the National Organization for Women.

Gretchen Kafoury's legislative priorities are increasing civil rights protections, gay rights, more state funding for child care, regulation of nuclear power, alternative energy sources and revision of school funding.

VERA KATZ

Representative 1979-81. District 8, west and northwest Portland. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Homemaker. 2068 NW Johnson, Portland 97209.

Representative Vera Katz was returned for a fourth House term from the most densely populated district in Oregon. She has obtained a good deal of experience from public service and legislative activities during the 15 years she has resided in Portland.

Rep. Katz was born Aug. 3, 1933 in Germany, and earned a BA and did graduate studies at Brooklyn College in New York. She worked as a market research analyst and citizen's lobbyist before being elected to her first term. Ms. Katz was a lecturer at Portland State in 1976. She and her Nel have one son.

She has served on numerous councils, committees, and groups concerned with health and safety, housing and human services, community and urban affairs, women's and liberal causes. She has been rated by Democrats and liberals as an outstanding legislator and is the recipient of several awards for her legislative and community service.

Vera Katz is currently on the Mayor's Task Force on Downtown Housing, on the board of the Northwest Health System Agency, and on the boards of several community service groups. She is a member of the National Conference of State Legislatures, the Council of State Governments, and the recent National Urban Policy Roundtable.

In the recent Legislature, she was co-chairperson of the Joint Ways & Means Committee, and for the Interim served as chairperson of the Task Force on Urban Renewal Financing, member of the Emergency Board, and member of task forces on Juvenile Corrections, Mental Health, Sunset Legislation of OLCC, and Tax Expenditure Limitation. She is on the State Health Coordinating Council.

Campaign comments included promises to work for a limit on state spending, increasing basic school support and property tax relief with surplus funds.

GRATTAN KERANS

Representative 1979-81. District 39, northwest Eugene. Representative 1975, 77. Democrat. Journalist. 1015 Willa St., Eugene 97404.

Rep. Kerans was reelected to a third term. He is a native of Washington D.C., and has lived in Oregon for nine years. Born Jan. 2, 1941, he received his early education in Maryland and attended Montgomery College there before moving to Oregon. He studied political science at the University of Oregon and edited the UO student newspaper. He later edited the Valley News weekly, hosted a radio show and edited the Oregon Democrat Magazine. He is currently owner of a publications design company.

Kerans gained a practical introduction to the Oregon Legislature in 1973 as top staff aide to two legislative committees. He is co-author of the Common Cause initiative measure.

In the recent regular session, 1977, Rep. Kerans was chairman of the House Elections Committee and was a member of the House Consumer & Business Affairs and Legislative Operations & Procedures committees. He was also majority whip.

Kerans and his wife Janet have a son and live in Eugene.

In his campaign for reelection, Kerans said he will introduce a bill "to reduce the Oregon personal income tax by allowing an inflation adjustment," based on the Consumer Price Index. He calls it a more "responsible" alternative to a Republican-sponsored initiative petition to force all state surpluses to be refunded to taxpayers.

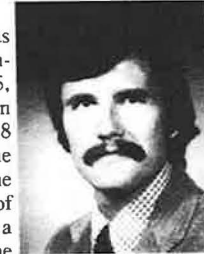

JOHN KITZHABER

Representative 1979-81. District 45, north-eastern Douglas County. Democrat. Doctor. 1033 W. Brown, Roseburg 97470.

Dr. John Kitzhaber defeated incumbent first-term Representative Al Shaw, Republican, for election to the district which includes Roseburg.

A Roseburg resident since 1974, he has been very active in professional and public interest activities involved in health.

John Kitzhaber was born in Kolfax, Washington on March 5, 1947, and has lived in Oregon for the past 18 years, mostly in Eugene where his father is on the staff of the University of Oregon. (His mother is a prominent leader in the Oregon League of Women Voters.) He graduated from South Eugene High, and attended Dartmouth College where he earned a BS in biology. He then went on to the University of Oregon Medical School, receiving his MD in 1973. His medical practice has been in Roseburg, mostly at the Mercy Medical Center and at Douglas Community Hospital where he is currently on the emergency staff.

He is a member of the American College of Emergency Physicians, and a member of the Douglas County Medical Society. He was formerly on the board of directors of the Oregon Diabetic Assn.

Dr. Kitzhaber has been a leader in public health activities in the Roseburg area. He was a founder of the Umpqua Chapter of the Oregon Diabetic Assn., of the Douglas County Committee on Child Abuse, was medical advisor and helped train the Glide Fire Rescue Unit, led the initial training program which helped establish the Winston/Dillard Fire Rescue Unit and is its present medical advisor. He conducts public information medical programs throughout the area dealing with diabetes, heart disease, hypertension, and child abuse.

Representative-Elect Kitzhaber is actively concerned with various problems concerning his district, including economic diversification, maintaining the county timber yield, regional water supply problems, and senior citizens. He considers of statewide interest and importance the issues of health care costs, tax reform and the necessity of "a definitive lid on governmental spending," favors indexing of the state income tax to adjust for inflation, and the problem of waste at the state level.

The Central Point Oregon native, born Nov. 13, 1949 in Tillamook, attended Roseburg High, and earned a bachelor's degree in political science and economics from Southern Oregon State College. Klein was reelected to a second House term.

Klein has been very active in the Democratic Party on the county level. Until his election he worked as an aide to Congressman Jim Weaver.

He appears in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities 1973, and in the National Student Register for '73-74.

Klein has expressed support of "lifeline" power rates for senior citizens, limiting campaign spending in state races, and increasing the progressive aspects of the state income tax system and broadening property tax relief. During his first term, he worked on the important Forest Policy Task Force.

ED LINDQUIST

Representative 1979-81. District 26, north central Clackamas County. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Firefighter. 620 SW Portland Ave., Gladstone 97027.

Representative Ed Lindquist was returned for a fourth House term by a two-to-one margin in his Clackamas County district.

Born February 14, 1938 in Portland, Lindquist got his early education in Clackamas County, and attended Portland State, Clackamas CC, and Portland CC. Today he has two daughters attending Oregon City High School and is a Captain in the Milwaukie Fire District. He is active in two related groups: International Assn. of Firefighters Local No. 1159 (past secretary and president), and Clackamas County Labor Council (president).

Rep. Lindquist served as House Majority Leader for the past two sessions, and in the 1977

Legislature was chairman of the House Rules Committee, member of the Labor, Water Resources Problems, and Trade & Economic Development committees. In the special session he served on the Committee on Property Tax Relief & Tax Limitation.

During the recent Interim Ed Lindquist chaired the House Management Committee and the Small Business Task Force, and was a member of the Task Force on Emergency Medical Services and the Special Task Force on Limitation.

He is a member of the Executive Board of the National Council of State Governments and its Transportation Task Force.

BEN (KIP) LOMBARD, JR.

Representative 1979-81. District 52, eastern Jackson, western Klamath counties. Representative 1977. Republican. Attorney. 133 Manzanita, Ashland 97520.

Ashland attorney Kip Lombard won a second term by a substantial margin in the general election. Following the 1977 session, he was recognized as one of the outstanding freshman legislators. He has maintained his law practice in Ashland since 1972, having practiced as an associate in a Portland firm for five years before that.

Lombard was born in Seattle Sept. 2, 1940, and the family moved to Ashland in 1945. He graduated from Ashland High, received a BA in economics from the Honors College, U. of Oregon and won his LLB at the U. of Michigan Law School. He is married to Bernadette Lombard and has three sons.

During the 1977 session, Rep. Lombard served on the House Elections and Judiciary committees. In the Interim, he served on the Interim Judiciary Committee, the Urban Renewal Financing Task Force, OLCC Sunset Review Task Force, Water Policy Advisory Committee, and was chairman of the Water Law Revision Sub-Committee.

He is a member of many area and local groups concerned with education, the arts, and community serve, legal professional affiliations. The former Eagle Scout has worked as a leader on many community projects.

Lombard's campaign included issues for which he voiced support: curbing the sprawl of government and bureaucracy, tax reform and criminal law reform.

At Standard, people make the difference: our own people, who are dedicated to excellence for policy-owners, and the thousands of people that we serve.

We've been serving Oregon people since 1906, offering life and disability insurance and retirement plans to both individuals and groups.

Today, Standard has more than $5.5

TOM MASON

Representative 1979-81. District 9, southwest Portland. Democrat. Attorney. 348 SW Bancroft, Portland 97201.

Democrat and attorney Tom Mason was the victor in a field of three for the Representative seat in District 9. The incumbent Mary Rieke had announced in late 1977 her retirement from the Legislature. It was Mason's third attempt in District 9, twice losing to Republican Rieke.

Tom Mason was born Aug. 27, 1944 in Los Angeles, attended schools in Nevada and in Oregon, graduating from Sherwood Union High School. He earned a BA and an MA at Portland State University with other graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. He earned his law degree at Lewis & Clark Law School. He was an executive officer in the Air Force. Tom and his wife Renee live in Portland. Recreational interests include jogging and upland bird and water fowl hunting.

A resident of his district for 14 years, Mason is a member of the Oregon Environmental Council, Portland City Club, Portland Art Assn., Oregon Roadrunners, Ducks Unlimited and Northwest Steelheaders. He is former president of the Downtown Community Assn. As an attorney, he holds memberships in the major bar and trial lawyers associations.

A former teacher and journalist, Mason was campaign staff member to Senator Wayne Morse, was a legislative aid in 1973, was intern deputy district attorney for Multnomah County, and has been a precinct committeeperson.

He identifies property tax reform as the top priority for the coming legislature, plus increased basic school support, containment of housing costs, state zero-based budgeting and other spending limitations.

W. ROD MONROE

Representative 1979-81. District 12, SE Portland. Representative 1977. Democrat. High school teacher. 3950 SE Woodward, Portland 97202.

Representative Monroe first won election to the Oregon House in 1976 by defeating 11-term Representative Grace Peck in the Primary then going on to an easy win in the General. He repeated his landslide victory over his Republican opponent for a second term.

Monroe was born of U.S. parents in McBride, B.C., Canada on Aug. 20, 1942. He attended Portland's Franklin High, Warner Pacific College, and holds Bachelor and Master degrees from Portland State University. For several years he was a bakery worker, and for the last 13 years has been a high school teacher, principally of history and government and politics. He presently teaches at Tigard High. He lives with his wife who is a day school director, and their son. His activities include jogging and long distance running, and skiing. He is a member of the Holladay Park Church and the King Choral Ambassadors, as well as professional membership in the Oregon Education Assn.

Public affairs interests have kept him active in the SE Quadrant Board, the Advisory Citizens Board to East Moreland General Hospital, and the Executive Board of the Richmond Neighborhood Assn., among others.

As a freshman legislator, Representative Monroe was vice chairman of the House Committee on Revenue and School Finance, and member of the Intergovernmental Affairs Committee. In the Interim he served on the Joint Committee on Revenue and School Finance, Joint Task Force on Minimum Competencies/Graduation Requirements, Joint Task Force on Annexation and Boundary Commissions (vice-chairman), Joint Task Force on Police Standards and Practices and Teacher Standards and Practices Commission, and the Legislative Counsel Committee.

HARDY MYERS

Representative 1979-81. District 19, portions of southeast, northeast Portland. Representative 1975, 77. Democrat. Attorney. 132 NE Laurelhurst Place, Portland 97232.

Hardy Myers, Portland attorney, won the representative race in District 19 with nearly three-quarters of the General Election ballots in his favor. He returns to the House for a third term.

He is a native of Electric Mills, Mississippi, born there on Oct. 25, 1939, and received his schooling in eastern Oregon, receiving his high school diploma from Crook County High School in Prineville. He earned his BA at the University of Mississippi, and his LLB at the Univ. of Oregon School of Law. He has been first an associate, then a partner, in a Portland law firm for more than a decade. He and his wife Mary Ann have three sons.

During the 1977 Legislature, Capital news reporters, committee staff members and legislators rated Hardy Myers the most outstanding of the 24 tri-county representatives. As chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Myers directed the shaping and passage of some of the session's key legislation. He has played a major role in tax relief and reform and corrections.

In the last session, Myers served as Speaker Pro Tem, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and member of the Elections Committee. He was elected one of the six members of the House Rules Committee.

Rep. Myers served as chairman of the Interim Committee on the Judiciary.

On the local level, Myers is former president of the Portland City Planning Commission ('73-74); former chairman of two City Club study committees; and member of the Portland Citizen Budget Review Task Force.

He is a member of the American Bar Assn., and of the Oregon State Bar and its Committee on Continuing Legal Education. He serves as Demoforum state chairman, and as Multnomah Co. Democratic Central Committee treasurer. He is active in All Saints Church.

Rep. Myers asserts: "The central issue in politics today is the public's demand for tax relief and control of government spending. Meeting that demand will be the major responsibility of the next session."

GLENN E. OTTO

Representative, 1979-81. District 23, eastern Multnomah County. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Electrician. 1225 E. Columbia, Troutdale 97060.

Representative Glenn Otto was reelected by almost three to one in the general vote in his district which includes Gresham, Troutdale, Fairview, an area along the Columbia River, and Multnomah County east.

Otto was born in Portland on Dec. 21, 1924, attended the old Vanport College and Reed College, and was in the Navy in World War Two. As a journeyman wireman he works with an electric firm in Portland, and is a member of the local IBEW. He belongs to the VFW, Grange, Gresham Chamber of Commerce, and St. Henry Catholic Church. Glenn and his wife Helen have five children.

Otto has long been a leader in public affairs activities, including school, youth and civic. For six years he was Troutdale's mayor, during which time the city grew sevenfold and many major improvements were made.

Representative Otto has been active in the Democratic Party in the East Multnomah Democratic Forum, Demco Gavel Club, and as past alternate County Central Committee chairman.

He was chairman of the Intergovernmental Affairs Committee during the last Session. He also served on the Labor Committee of the House. During the Interim he served on six task forces and on the Land Use Interim Committee.

Involvement in the main issues in his district have kept Otto in the public eye. He opposed city-county consolidation, was co-chairman of the Save Edgefield Manor Committee, co-chairman of the Citizens for Usable Freeways Committee and co-chairman of the Reform Our County Charter Committee.

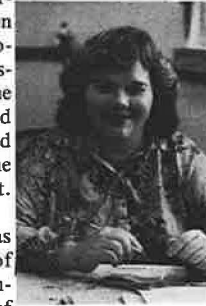

We received a fascinating piece of direct mail this morning. It read: "are you one of the three million Americans who can't read?"

Several times a year the minister gives a talk on the church's financial problems. It's called "The Sermon on the Amount."

SUSAN PISHA

Representative 1979-81. District 21, southeast Portland. Democrat. Labor union officer. 18026 SE Main, Portland 97233.

Lifelong Portland resident Sue Pisha has been very active in community affairs. Although a newcomer to the Oregon Legislature, she has served on the Governor's Commission on Women, the Metropolitan Youth Commission, is a member of the City Club, and second vice president of United Way. She belongs to the Rockwood School Dist. PTA.

Rep-elect Pisha was elected president of Local 9201 of the Communications Workers of America, a full-time position she has held for three years. Prior to that she was employed by Pacific Northwest Bell for 13 years. She has been active in other leadership capacities in the Local over the years. Sue has also served on the executive board of the Multnomah Co. Labor Council as secretary of the Labor Community Services Agency, on the AFL-CIO Workers' Comp. Advisory Committee, secretary of the State AFL-CIO Organizing Committee, and as a member of the Willamette Democratic Society.

Sue, who counts tennis, reading and swimming among her interests, was born in Portland Jan. 31, 1943, grew up in north Portland, graduated from Roosevelt High, and attended Portland State University and Portland Community College. She has a daughter and a son.

In her campaign she pledged support of property tax relief, "adequate" financing of education at all levels, improvement in the quality of education, economic relief for senior citizens, to alleviate unemployment and underemployment, and supports "affordable," quality health care.

Fixed investment in the U.S. — the key to expanding output, jobs and living standards — from 1960 to 1973 amounted to 17.5 per cent of real national output, placing this country last among the 11 major industrial nations. Meanwhile, U.S. capital investment needs over the next decade are estimated at between $4 trillion and 4.5 trillion — three times that of the past decade.

WALLY PRIESTLEY

Representative 1979-81. District 16, north-east Portland. Representative 1965, 67, 69, 73, 75, 77. Democrat. 6226 NE 32nd Ave., Portland 97211.

Representative Wally Priestly begins his seventh term in the House, having served three consecutive terms, suffering a 1970 defeat, then returning in 1972 and since.

Born in Portland July 17, 1931, he graduated from Jefferson High, and attended college for six years at Oregon, Oregon State, Portland State, and William & Mary in Virginia. He served in the Navy.

Priestley has a real estate sales license.

Priestly has been a member of the Portland Metropolitan Study Commission, an organizer of the Citizens Committee for Clean Air, and has been active in the Democratic Party, holding many party offices and serving as a delegate to conventions.

His activities as a liberal activist in Portland are legendary. He "took part in every civil rights demonstration held in the Portland area during the late 1950s and early '60s"; organized a large March on Washington rally in Portland; organized many of the anti-Vietnam War rallies, including 1969's "Vietnam Moratorium" rally; and organized the well-known 1971 Rose Festival Fleet anti-war demonstration. He has worked as a volunteer labor organizer with Chavez's United Farm Workers Union in California.

Representative Priestley successfully sponsored referrals which reversed the legislated gas tax increase in 1975 and vehicle registration tax increase in 1978.

He was elected to both the Portland and Multnomah County school boards in 1976. Rep. Priestley cites legislative work in the interests of senior citizens, consumers, labor, sportsmen, environment, equal rights and government reform including tax relief.

SANDY RICHARDS

Representative 1979-81. District 22, north-east Portland. Representative 1977. Democrat. Homemaker. 19103 NE Hassalo, Portland 97230.

Sandy Richards came to her first Oregon House term two years ago with a background of political and civic work to prepare her for legislative duties. She has served on the Wilkes Planning Group, Oregon State Parks Special Projects Fund Committee, League of Women Voters, and 1000 Friends of Oregon. She participated in authoring the 1975 legislation to expand public notice of zoning hearings, participating in the 1973 PGE rate case, and was a steering committee member on the Committee to Save Edgefield Manor.

In her first term as a Representative, Sandy ran up a "100%" voting record as rated by the Oregon Environmental Council. She served on the House Environment & Energy Committee, Judiciary Committee, and Oregon Energy Policy Review Committee. In the Interim she was assigned to the Joint Judiciary Privacy Subcommittee, Joint Judiciary Tort Liability Subcommittee, Worker's Compensation Medical Services Task Force, and the Cost of Housing Task Force. She is a member of the OSU Energy Extension Advisory Committee, the State Parks Special Projects Fund Committee, and the State Parks Advisory Planning Committee.

She is a Democratic Precinct Committee-woman in her district, and has lectured in social studies and political science classes in area schools.

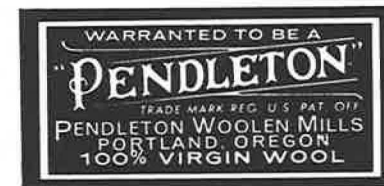

She counts among her first term accomplishments support for important energy bills, including tax incentives for installing alternative energy devices in homes, expansion of the Veterans' Home Loan Program to provide for loans for solar equipment, and establishment of an Energy Extension Service through Oregon State University for public information on alternative energy. She intends to work in the 1979 Session on proposals to charge the cost of utility advertising to stockholders instead of ratepayers, to create a utility consumer advocate office to represent ratepayers in rate cases before the PUC, and to require utilities to choose the most inexpensive energy supply, whether or not it proves to be nuclear.

Born July 18, 1945 in Anchorage, Alaska, she grew up and attended schools there, then studied at Marylhurst and the University of Portland. Sandy and her husband Jim have three sons.

ALAN (AL) RIEBEL

Representative 1979-81. District 31, extreme western Marion County, south Salem. Representative 1977. Republican. Insurance. 3235 Sumac Dr. S, Salem 97302.

Partner in a Salem insurance firm, Al Riebel won a second term from the Salem district. A native of Grants Pass, he was born there Aug. 19, 1927, and educated in schools there, graduating with a BS degree from the University of Oregon.

As a freshman representative in the seat vacated by Secretary of State Norma Paulus, Al Riebel served on the Labor Committee and Social Services Committee in the 1977 Session.

MAX C. RIJKEN

Representative 1979-81. District 38, Lincoln County, western portions of Lane, Benton counties. Representative 1975, 77. Democrat. Paper tester. 1250 NW Lake St. (P.O. Box 576), Newport 97365.

Max Rijken of Newport was successful for a third consecutive term for the central coastal district. A native of Indonesia, born in Tjipatat (Java) on March 24, 1920, and educated in Holland. He moved to Newport in 1962 and became a naturalized citizen.

As a Dutch citizen, he was a rubber planter, was involved in the import business and has many years of experience in insurance. For the past ten years he has been employed with Georgia-Pacific as a quality control paper tester and is a member of the Pulp & Paper Workers' local. He received his education and business training in Dutch schools and was an insurance broker in that country.

After World War II service in the Dutch Army and labor as a prisoner of war in Japan, he lived in Holland, then emigrated to the U.S. under sponsorship of the First Presbyterian Church of Newport in 1962, becoming naturalized in 1967.

He is now a member of that church and many fraternal, social service and civic organizations.

In the Interim his assignments were on the Legislative Administration Committee, as chairman of the Mandatory Auto Insurance Task Force, and member of the task forces on Nursing Homes, Boundary Commissions/Annexation, and Public Contracting & Purchasing.

In both his legislative campaigns and during the 59th Legislature he supported limited growth of government and more efficient use of tax money.

A U.S. Navy veteran who likes golf, racquet ball and jogging, Rep. Riebel is a member of the Oregon State and National Independent Insurance Agents Assns., the boards of the YMCA and Red Cross, a founder of Citizens for Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation, member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and an active supporter of the U. of O. Development Fund. His many community service activities have won him several honors and awards.

Al and Marianne Riebel are parents of two daughters and two sons.

He was 1970-72 Lincoln County Democratic Central Committee chairman and has served as a precinct committeeman.

Committee assignments in the last session were Agriculture & Natural Resources and Aging. In the Interim he served on the Task Forces on Nursing Homes, Mandatory Retirement, Small Business and Sunset Review.

BILL ROGERS

Representative 1979-81. District 44, eastern Lane County. Representative 1975, 77. Republican. Insurance agent. PO Box 109, Vida 97488.

Representative Bill Rogers, Vida filbert grower and insurance agent, was reelected to his third term in the district which includes the southern edge of Eugene, Cottage Grove and the eastern half of Lane County.

Born December 8, 1929, in Ben Wheeler, Texas, Rogers is a retired Air Force officer who moved to Oregon in 1970. He is a member of several agricultural, civic and professional organizations. He holds the Chartered Life Underwriter designation in his profession. He is a Mason and member of the local Grange.

Besides his 15 acres of filbert trees, Rogers has 30 acres of farmland. His farm-home in Vida is shared by his wife Mary; they have two married daughters and a son.

Representative Rogers received his bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Omaha, and spent his military service in the Air Force, entering in 1948 as an enlisted man, retiring in 1969 as a major.

Representative Rogers served on Labor and Social Services committees in the House during the last regular session; and on Labor &

WILLIAM D. (BILL) RUTHERFORD

Representative 1979-81. District 29, northwestern Marion, eastern Yamhill counties. Representative 1977. Republican. Attorney-businessman. Route 2, Box 53, McMinnville 97128.

Representative Rutherford was named the outstanding legislator in the mid-Willamette Valley region in a survey conducted by the Salem Capitol Journal. Rutherford lost a close race for the seat in 1972, was first elected in 1976 and returned in 1978.

Born Jan. 14, 1939 in Marshalltown, Iowa, he attended McMinnville schools and earned degrees from the University of Oregon and from Harvard Law School. He is a member of the county, state and American bar associations. He was awarded a Defense Service Medal in active duty in the Army.

Commerce Interim Committee, and the Joint Interim Task Force on Forest Slash. He has indicated advocacy of overhaul of election laws including a change back to 30-day residency and registration requirement prior to elections. Reflecting the concerns of citizens in his district, Rogers stated he will direct his attentions toward taxes and government spending, and on the problem of dwindling supply of timber.

He is very active in community activities, as chairman of the committee on Redevelopment of Downtown McMinnville, a director of the Kiwanis Club, president of the Chamber of Commerce. He has been appointed a Circuit Court Judge pro-tem and District Court Judge pro-tem. He practices law in McMinnville and is owner of a small business and a farm. He and his wife Janice have a daughter and a son.

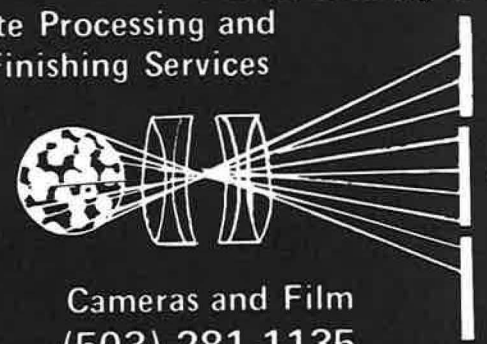

In his first term he was successful in drafting, introducing and securing passage of two pieces of legislation — one increased the limits for veterans' farm and home loans and the other provided tax credits to families insulating their homes. Rutherford was also chief sponsor of a measure, passed by the House but stopped by Senate Democrats, which would have permitted independent voters to cast a full ballot in the primary election. He intends to reintroduce the latter in the new Session.

He stated that he will introduce a measure to exempt the first $100 interest earned on savings. Representative Rutherford's record also shows support of expansion of the property tax relief program, increase in basic school support, and phase-out of the inheritance tax.

NANCY RYLES

Representative, 1979-81. District 5, suburban Portland in eastern Washington County. Homemaker. 3125 SW Christy, Beaverton 97005.

A long list of public service activities and a well organized campaign helped Nancy Ryles gain a healthy winning margin in District 5. She has been acquiring a good deal of familiarity throughout her district for several years through activities on the Beaverton School Board (elected in 1972 and 75), work with United Way agency Metropolitan Family Service (past president, director), Beaverton Chamber of Commerce (member, former treasurer), State Advisory Council on Career and Vocational Education, Oregon Schools Study Council, Advisory Council-Oregon Assn. for Talented and Gifted, and other state and local committees. Nancy is the current recipient of the annual Oregon Vocation Assn. Distinguished Service Award, and was chosen to receive major awards from Delta Kappa Gamma and the Oregon Education Assn. She was a finalist for the 1977 Beaverton First Citizen honor.

Born Dec. 18, 1937 in Portland, Nancy Ryles attended Jefferson High, and Willamette University and Portland State University. She is married to Vern Ryles, Jr., president of Poppers Supply Co. in Portland and chairman of the board of Goodwill Industries of Oregon. They have a son, 18, and daughter 15. Nancy is a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church. She back packs, plays tennis and golf for recreation, and enjoys movies and books.

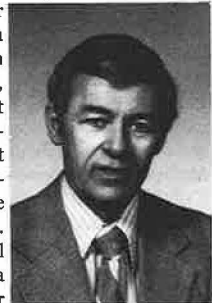

During the campaign Rep.-Elect Ryles identified government growth and expense as the main issues; supported "reluctantly" Ballot Measure 11 over 6; and opposed capital punishment, abortion funding abolition and dissolution of LCDC. She outlines the major tasks of the 1979 Session: "The Legislature will be faced with some very serious decisions in terms of tax revenues and expenditures. This will require a serious reappraisal of the role of government; the setting of realistic priorities; the effective use of 'Sunset Laws' to eliminate outdated services; and a continuing re-evaluation of how we are spending our tax dollars."

JOHN SCHOON

Representative 1978-81. District 34, Polk and Benton counties. Republican. Banker. 7090 Zena Rd., Rickreall 97371.

The only Republican candidate in the Primary, John Schoon (pronounced "skoon") was elected to the District 34 representative seat vacated when Bob Marx, Democrat, decided not to run for a fourth term.

Schoon is an assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Oregon, serving as a commercial loan officer at one of its Salem branches. He was born in Indiana on July 9, 1929, and earned a BS at the University of Maryland and an MBA at Portland State University. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps. John and his wife Carol have two sons and a daughter and live near the town of Rickreall, between Salem and Dallas. The Schoon family raises sheep and hay on a 20-acre farm there.

One of his legislative concerns is improved education, and he has worked on the budget committee and curriculum advisory committee of Amity High School, with the Oregon Business Education Council, and on the Salem Housing Advisory Committee.

Professional associations include the American Institute of Banking (chapter first vice president), National Assn. of Accountants, and Consumer Credit Counseling Service (past president). He is a member of the Lions Club.

Schoon has voiced support of reduced government spending, work for welfare recipients, improved education standards and training for jobs in the private sector.

JOSEPHINE H. (JO) SIMPSON

Representative 1979-81. District 10, southwest and part of southeast Portland. Republican. Homemaker. 13345 SW Iron Mountain Blvd., Portland 97219.

One of the few upsets of the recent election was newcomer Josephine Simpson's defeat of nine-term House veteran and recent speaker, Phil Lang. In her campaign, she considered her lack of political experience an asset.

She was born March 20, 1937 in Brush, Colorado, but grew up in northeastern Oregon, attending schools in the Milton-Freewater area, graduating from McLoughlin Union High School there. She obtained her BA in journalism and social science at Willamette University. Jo is married to Robert Glenn Simpson and they have two daughters and a son.

She is no stranger to public service activities, having served on the Portland Campfire Council, her Parents-Teachers Board for five years, on the Mann Home Board, and is one of the prime movers of Friends of Tryon Creek which helped create Tryon Creek State Park. She is a member of Christ Episcopal Church.

A resident of District 10 for 17 years, Jo Simpson campaigned on issues of halting the growth of state government, and in the interests of senior citizens, property tax payers, and neighborhoods.

MAX SIMPSON

Representative 1979-81. District 59, Wheeler, Crook, Grant, Baker, extreme northern Malheur counties. Representative 1975, 77. Democrat. Self-employed. Sumpter Stage Route, Baker 97814.

Max Simpson, a Baker resident self-employed with a background in timber, ranching and retail, has been closely involved in Democratic Party activities both locally and statewide. He has been county Democratic chairman, precinct committeeman, Congressional district delegate, and a delegate to the national convention.

Born in Seattle, June 11, 1917, he is a lifetime Oregon resident, educated in Eugene schools and the University of Oregon. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce in his city, belongs to church, fraternal and interest groups which indicate his love for the outdoors, sports and animals.

Rep. Simpson served in the last session on the Joint Committee on Trade (second term), House Committee on Transportation (vice-chairman), and on the Transportation Committee of the Western Council of State Governments. In the Interim he was appointed to the Joint Committee on Trade & Economic Development (co-chairman).

Representative Simpson and his wife Paula have a daughter and a son.

NORMAN J. (NORM) SMITH

Representative 1979-81. District 7, southeastern Washington County. Republican. Attorney. 8705 SW 75th Ave., Tigard 97223.

Portland attorney Norm Smith upset incumbent Pat Whiting, collecting about 60% of the vote in his district which includes Tigard, Progress, Tualatin, King City, Sherwood, Scholls and the southern fringes of Beaverton.

Norm Smith was born Feb. 24, 1947 and grew up on a century-old farm on Boones Ferry Rd., attending Wilson High (honors graduate), studying for a summer in Europe, earning a BS in communications at Northwestern University in Illinois, and winning his JD from Willamette University School of Law. He practices law in a partnership in Portland.

He has used his legal expertise as law clerk to Oregon's Education Dept., Justice Dept., Highway Div., Children's Services Div., Welfare Div., and the public affairs department of Weyerhaeuser Co. For a year he was attorney to the Board of Mines Operations Appeals, of the U.S. Dept. of Interior. He was admitted to the Oregon State Bar in 1972.

Smith is a member also of the American Bar Assn., the Oregon Bar's Public Service & Information Committee (chairman), Washington County Bar, U.S. Dist. Court and U.S. Court of Appeals. He has been active in the Metro-Southwest Chamber of Commerce, Washington Co. Unified Sewerage Agency Advisory Commission (vice-chairman), Portland City Club, Multnomah Athletic Club, and Northwestern Univ. Portland Alumni Club (president).

He is married to Kathy Smith and likes to hike, ski, play squash and travel.

Representative-Elect Smith has stated his position in favor of cutting state spending, tax relief, road repair and better transportation.

GEORGE W. STARR

Representative 1979-81. District 17, north-east Portland. Representative 1975, 77. Democrat. Railroad conductor. 909 NE 114th Ave., Portland 97220.

Representative George Starr was first elected to the Oregon legislature in 1974 following 16 years of participation in government affairs and experience in the legislature, was reelected unopposed in 1976 and returned by a substantial margin in '78.

He came to the Northwest from his native Little Rock Arkansas (born there Nov. 4, 1914), and attended schools in Seattle and Portland. He and his wife Irene have a son and two daughters.

Starr is a conductor for the Union Pacific Railroad in Portland, and has served as assistant state legislative director for the United Transportation Union. As a legislator and member of Common Cause, he works for political reform and to eliminate "money power" in politics. He supports reduced property and income taxes without creation of a sales tax. Starr stated that he "favors revisions to the Peoples Utility District statutes to make it easier to qualify for BPA preferred power for lower utility rates." He supports a state-owned bank, and increased state support of schools to reduce the local burden on property taxes.

Assignments in the 1977 legislature were on the Labor Committee, Transportation Committee, Agriculture and Natural Resources Committees. He was assigned to Interim task forces concerned with Workers' Compensation, Nursing Assistants training, and sunset review of the OLCC.

EDWARD (DOC) STEVENSON

Representative 1979-81. District 48, Curry County, most of Coos County. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Real estate sales. 933 S. 1st Ave., Coquille 97423.

Representative Ed "Doc" Stevenson was returned to the Oregon House of Representatives for a fourth term from the southern coastal district.

He is a father of five children and lives with his wife and family in Coquille, not far from his native Coos Bay, where he was born December 22, 1925. He grew up in Coquille and earned a BS degree in business administration after three years at Oregon State U. and one year at U. of Oregon.

He is a licensed real estate salesman, and spent eight years as the elected Coos County treasurer. He has had political experience, besides legislative, as precinct committeeman. He is a U.S. Army veteran.

Representative Stevenson has been very active in community and youth activities. In addition to his professional realtor association memberships, he is recipient of a Distinguished Service Award from the Coquille Jaycees, and is a past president of the Oregon Assn. of County Treasurers and Finance Officer.

As representative Stevenson served the last four years on the Emergency Board, and last session chaired the Trade Economic Development Committee.

He supports economic diversification, welfare reform, closing tax loopholes, and protection of family farms.

GLEN W. WHALLON

Representative 1979-81. District 25, Clackamas County. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Insurance agent. 13340 SE Rusk Road, Milwaukie 97222.

Rep. Glen Whallon, a retired Portland firefighter, failed election attempts for ten years before winning his first House term in 1972 and being reelected since. His district, 25, includes part of Milwaukie, Oak Grove, Happy Valley, Clackamas, Damascus and Boring.

Committee assignments for the last session were on State Government Operations (chairman), where he worked for successful passage of zero-base budgeting and for the sunset law. In the Interim he chaired the Task Force on Apprenticeship.

He has been an active Democrat in addition to non-partisan public service with various statewide and local groups.

Representative Whallon and his wife Esther have a daughter and a son.

He was born Nov. 7, 1921 at Nampa, Idaho, and attended schools in Portland, following which he was a World War II Navy man. He has resided in the Milwaukie area since 1947. He is a Presbyterian, member of VFW and Elks, and likes boating and swimming.

Representative 1979-81. District 53, Klamath Falls. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Republican. Telephone company manager. 3869 Madison St., Klamath Falls 97601.

Representative Gary Wilhems is a lifelong Oregon resident, born in Astoria Jan. 17, 1938.

He was raised in Beaverton, graduating from high school there, and has taken several DCE classes beyond high school.

Shortly after high school, Wilhems was employed by Pacific Northwest Bell, with whom he has been associated until present, with locations at Klamath Falls, Portland, Baker, and back at Klamath Falls as manager of the office there.

His PNB occupation was interrupted by a stint in the Army, where he was an Honor Graduate of the Seventh Army Non-commissioned Officer Academy.

Wilhelms has been a leader in a number of organizations and civic projects including Beaverton Jaycees and Baker Rotary Club. He was singled out as recipient of a distinguished service award as Klamath Falls' Outstanding Young Man of 1971.

Other civic affiliations and activities include Oregon and U.S. and International Jaycees, County Chamber of Commerce, County UGN, St. Pius Church, Kiwanis, Grange, YMCA, and Telephone Pioneers.

During the 1977 session, Rep. Wilhelms served on the House Management Committee, the Joint Committee on Trade and Economic Development and the Legislative Administration Committee. He was and continues as Minority Whip for the House.

Gary is a member of the National Conference of State Legislatures, and was a delegate to the 1976 Republican National Convention.

CURTIS (CURT) WOLFER

Representative 1979-81. District 28, western Clackamas, northeastern Marion counties. Representative 1973, 75, 77. Democrat. Investment manager. 458 Monte Vista, Silverton 97381.

Representative Curt Wolfer won re-election in his district which covers the cities of Silverton, Woodburn and Molalla.

The Oregon native, a partner in an investment firm, was born near Pratum, February 17, 1949, and is a graduate of Oregon State University with international business as his major.

Wolfer begins his fourth consecutive term as a representative.

Representative Wolfer lives with his wife and son in Silverton and is the son of former eight-term representative Martin Wolfer of Salem. He is active in his chamber of commerce and civic activities.

Nothing is so good as it seems beforehand.

DONNA ZAJONC

Representative 1978-81. District 32, central and east Salem. Republican. Registered nurse. 4789 Sesame St. NE, Salem 97303.

Salem community affairs figure Donna Zajonc upset incumbent Democrat Peg Dereli by a substantial margin in the General Election.

The 28-year-old Representative-elect is a registered nurse, and in related activities has been a health planner for Klamath Indians, a mental health nurse in Marion and Klamath counties specializing in alcoholism and drug problems, and a nursing education consultant with the Education Coordinating Committee. Born in Appleton City, Missouri, she was raised there and received a BS in nursing from the University of Missouri. She went on to earn a masters degree in public affairs at the University of Oregon in 1975. She is married to Edward R. Zajonc.

In the last legislature, she worked as a legislative aide to Representative Sam Johnson. Community activities have included the League of Women Voters Juvenile Study Committee (co-chairperson), delegate to the National Women's Conference, executive committee for Salem's Multi-Purpose Center Task Force, board of directors of the United Methodists Home for the Aged, and the advisory committee of Salem Juvenile Service. She was chosen one of the 10 Most Outstanding Young Women of America for 1975 and Oregon's Outstanding Young Woman for 1975.

Recreational activities include river rafting, cross-country skiing, bicycling, tennis, backpacking and raquetball.

MAE YIH

Representative 1979-81. District 36, Albany area of Linn County, Benton County. Representative 1977. Democrat. Homemaker. Box 274-L, Rt. 2, Albany 97321.

Incumbent Democrat Mae Yih won re-election with a landslide victory. During the 1977 legislative session, Mae Yih was vice-chairman of the Education Committee and served on the Social Services Committee. During the interim, Mae served on the Revenue & School Finance, Nursing Home Task Force, Emergency Medical Services Task Force and Graduation Requirements Task Force.

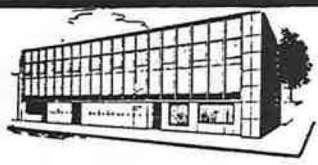

Mae Yih was born May 24, 1928 in Shanghai, China, where she received her early education. Schooling continued at Barnard College, New York, where she earned a BA in economics, and further education in business administration at Columbia University. She is married and has two sons.

Mae has been very active in education and social concerns in her community. She intends to continue her position on the Albany Union High School Board and has just completed her ninth year of the Clover Ridge Board.

Rep. Yih has expressed support for property tax relief, careful review and justification of all government expenditures, strong support for education, and a more equitable tax system.

She sees as important issues in the impending legislative session the need to control escalating taxes, government spending and "reforming the legislative process."

The get well card chosen by 625,000 Oregonians

The Blue Cross of Oregon card. It gives you a lot more than just something to smile about.

When you need it, this Blue Cross card can be your key to the most complete and comprehensive health care program available. Including hospital, medical, surgical and major medical coverage. And, if you belong to a group, dental and vision care, and even life and disability insurance.

What's more, the protection it provides goes where you go. If you change jobs. Retire. Or just go on a trip. And it's recognized everywhere. So you can visit the doctor, clinic or hospital of your choice anywhere in the United States, and even in many locations around the world.

More than 90 million Americans, including 625,000 people right here in Oregon, are Blue Cross subscribers. If you're not one of them, you're settling for second-best in health care plans.

BE THANKFUL NOBODY WANTS TO TURN WHEAT FIELDS INTO WILDERNESS.

If they did, we'd all pay dearly. For bread, muffins, cookies and cereal.

There's only so much land on this planet. And when we take productive land and make it unproductive, the price of the crop is going to jump.

That's just basic economics.

Look at our national forests. More and more commercial timberland is being labeled "Federal Wilderness" and taken out of production. And that affects the price of every forest related product from the 2x4 to the paper plate.

Now obviously, America needs her Wilderness. And she already has quite a bit. Some 14.7 million acres to be exact. An area bigger than New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island combined.

Here we allow no motorized vehicles. No cabins, no roads, no bridges. No piped water or restrooms. Here man himself is just a visitor.

That was money well spent. And while we may all feel the pinch, at Louisiana-Pacific, we believe the size of the federal Wilderness could reasonably be increased. We support the recommended goals under the Resources Planning Act that could increase the total number of acres set aside to 25 to 30 million.

But if that kind of increase is to be made, it is absolutely necessary that we intensify the management and harvest schedule on those federal timberlands still designated for commercial use.

It is also time we learned when enough is enough. Today, some 350 million acres are either being proposed for Wilderness designation, or study, or may eventually qualify for study. That's an area three and a half times the size of California.

Even the studies can be painful to the economy. Take the RARE II study, for example. Here some 66.4 million acres, including a tremendous amount of working forest, have been locked up while the government tries to choose those with Federal Wilderness potential. Until RARE II is complete, billions of board feet of timber are being withheld from market. Enough growth to build another 270,000 new homes each year.

Our position is simple. We'd like the whole question of Wilderness dealt with quickly and responsibly. Those areas that would make truly outstanding examples of Wilderness should be designated such. And the rest of the land put back into production. Promptly.

Because we want America to have her Wilderness. And her harvest. With a little clear thinking, and quick action, we can have both.

VICTOR ATIYEH, GOVERNOR
State Capitol
Salem 97310 378-3111

Vic Atiyeh was sworn in as Oregon's 32nd governor in January 1979. Before his election as governor, he represented Washington County for three terms in the House of Representatives and four terms in the Oregon Senate.

Born in Portland in 1923, Atiyeh attended Washington High and the University of Oregon. He holds an honorary doctorate in public service from Willamette University and is a trustee emeritus of the University of Oregon Foundation.

Governor Atiyeh holds several national leadership positions. He is a member of the National Governor's Association's Committees on Energy and Environment and on International Trade and Foreign Relations. He is also chairman of the Education Commission of the States' National Task Force on Indian Education, a member of the Republican Governors' Association Campaign Committee, and liaison between the Western Governors' Conference and the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education.

He has received numerous awards for public service, including the Lloyd Center 1980 Metro Achievement Award. He is Knight Commander of the Court of Honor of Scottish Rite Masons and a member of the Portland Interscholastic League Hall of Fame. In 1981 he received several awards for his stand against racial harassment: the Golden Aztec Award of the Oregon Human Development Corporation, a special award from the Oregon Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Community Relations Services' Meritorious Service Award from the U.S. Department of Justice, a special award from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the Distinguished Public Service Award of the Anti-Defamation League of B'Nai B'Rith of Oregon.

The governor and his wife Dolores have been married since 1944. He collects antique guns and is an avid fly fisherman and golfer. Atiyeh volunteers much of his free time to the Boy Scouts. He has served in most scouting leadership positions and is a member of the National Board of Exploring.

NORMA PAULUS, SECRETARY OF STATE
136 State Capitol
Salem 97310 378-4139

In 1970, Norma Paulus was elected a Marion County Representative, and she spent three terms in the legislature. She was elected Secretary of State in 1976, and re-elected in 1980. Her duties as Secretary of State include roles as Chief Elections Officer, in which capacity she has pushed for election reform, State Auditor, and member of the State Land Board.

Norma Paulus was born in Nebraska in 1933, but her family moved to Oregon five years later, settling near Burns. She worked as a legal secretary for the Harney County District Attorney, then in the same capacity for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in Oregon.

She was accepted into Willamette University Law School in 1956, where she was an honor student. She graduated and passed the state bar exam in 1962, then practiced as an appellate lawyer until her election as Secretary of State.

Mrs. Paulus is married to a Salem attorney, Bill Paulus, and they have two children. She currently serves on the Willamette University Board of Trustees, and on the Board of Directors of the Benedictine Foundation of Oregon. She was recognized by the Editorial Board of the Ladies Home Journal in 1979 as one of the nation's Women of the Future.

The security of nations is like happiness in love: a happy miracle which it is necessary to create anew every day.

How do CPA's help make major financial decisions in industry, government, and education?

Ask a CPA.

CPAs in top management positions in government, industry and education perform much more than accounting functions. They provide leadership toward financially sound decisions.

As a key member of the management team, the CPA aids in financial structuring, budgeting and forecasting, analysis of accounting systems, taxes and tax planning.

It's good to know that highly qualified professionals — CPAs — are helping to make the major financial decisions that affect the use of our tax dollars and impact our economy. CPA's services, whether in management or in public practice, are important to everyone because they lend stability to the financial community.

Your CPA is uniquely qualified through education, training and experience, to:

- Help you avoid unnecessary taxes
- Set up information systems so you can track financial progress
- Help you with estate planning
- Lend credibility to financial information for lenders, shareholders and others
- Help put your resources to work

CLAY MYERS, STATE TREASURER
 158 State Capitol
 Salem 97310 378-4329

Born in Multnomah County in 1927 and raised in Tillamook, Clay Myers is a veteran and a graduate of Benson High in Portland. He won his degree from the University of Oregon and undertook graduate studies at Northwestern College of Law.

When Tom McCall was elected Governor in 1967, Myers was appointed to complete McCall's term as Secretary of State. He won re-election to the post twice, serving a total of ten years. Myers was elected State Treasurer in 1976 and was re-elected in 1980, bringing his years of service in state government to seventeen.

Myers is active in the Episcopal Church and voluntary community service. He has served as Western Region Vice President of the National Association of Lieutenant Governors, and in 1981 became President-elect of the National Association of State Treasurers.

DAVID B. FROHNMAYER
 ATTORNEY GENERAL
 100 State Office Bldg.
 Salem 97310

Before his election as Attorney General in 1981, Dave Frohnmayer served three terms as a State Representative. He was special assistant to the U.S. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, a consultant in the civil rights division of the U.S. Department of Justice, and chairman of the American Council on Education's Equal Employment Opportunity Task Force.

Frohnmayer was born in Medford in 1940 and attended school there. He won an AB degree (magna cum laude) from Harvard, BA and MA degrees from Oxford, and a JD from the University of California (Berkeley) School of Law. He has been a professor of law at the University of Oregon School of Law since 1971.

He is affiliated with the American, Oregon, California, and Lane County Bar Associations, the American Association of Rhodes Scholars, and the National Association of College and University Attorneys. He is also a member of the Round Table of Eugene, the Downtown Rotary, the Rubicon Society, and Oregon Common Cause. He was named Eugene Junior First Citizen and one of five Outstanding Young Men of Oregon in 1975.

Dave Frohnmayer lives in Eugene with his wife, Lynn, and their three children. His hobbies include swimming, music, skiing, travel, and gardening.

Bill Nickleberry and Max Pittman practice what we preach...conservation. And save PGE customers about $110,000 a year.

This year, Bill, Willamette Center building Manager, and Max, the Center's Superintendent, along with the rest of the PGE Watt Watching staff will help save about $110,000 through conservation measures being practiced at the Willamette Center building complex, PGE's headquarters.

Bill and his co-workers are putting to use many of the conservation techniques we've been advising customers about for more than eight years. The conservation techniques in use include thermopane glass windows, insulation and weather-stripping. Since the Center was first occupied, the air in the building has been heated mainly by body heat, office machine heat and the heat from overhead lights.

As a result of their efforts and by making more efficient use of construction pre-planning, Bill, Max and fellow employees and tenants have been able to reduce the energy use at the Willamette Center by 12 per cent, or almost 3 million kilowatt-hours. At today's rates, that's a savings of almost $110,000 a year. Savings that are more important now than ever before.

Electricity costs are going up everywhere, it's not just here. Both private and public utilities throughout the country are facing soaring costs. Higher equipment costs, fuel costs and interest rates have everyone on a tight budget. And the rapid increase of new residential and business customers in the region is another strain on existing supply.

But, at PGE, we are fortunate to have people like Bill and Max working hard to keep costs down for customers wherever they can. People who care.

People with cost-saving ideas for you.

VERNE DUNCAN, SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
 700 Pringle Parkway S.E.
 Salem 97310

Now in his second term as Superintendent of Public Instruction, Verne Duncan has held the post since 1974. He is a native Oregonian, born in McMinnville in 1934. He attended high school and Linfield College in his hometown. He went on to receive a bachelor's degree from Idaho State, a Master of Education degree from the University of Idaho, and a PhD in educational administration from the University of Oregon. He also holds an MBA from the University of Portland.

Duncan has been a teacher at all levels from elementary to college, and has held virtually all the administrative posts in the field of education. He has been an elementary principal, junior high principal, district superintendent, and superintendent of the Clackamas County Intermediate Education District.

He is past president of the State Intermediate and County Superintendents' Association, and is on the Board of Directors of the Educational Credit and Credentials Commission of the American Council on Education. He serves on the national legislative committee and has chaired the policy and priorities committee of the Council of Chief State School Officers.

MARY (WENDY) ROBERTS LABOR AND INDUSTRIES COMMISSIONER
 1400 S.W. 5th Ave.
 Portland 97201 229-5735

As Labor and Industries Commissioner, Mary (Wendy) Roberts administers state labor laws and heads the Bureau of Labor and Industries. The bureau licenses private employment agencies and farm labor contractors, in addition to other regulatory functions concerning labor and employment.

The Commissioner chairs the State Apprenticeship and Training Council and is executive secretary of the State Wage and Hour Commission. The Bureau also cooperates with federal agencies to enforce the Fair Labor Standards Act and other federal laws governing employment and equal opportunity.

Roberts was born in Illinois in 1944, but is a fifth-generation Oregonian. She attended West Linn High School and received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Oregon and a Master of Arts from the University of Wisconsin. Her father, Frank Roberts, and husband, Richard Bullock, are both serving in the Oregon Senate.

She has worked as a curriculum consultant for Mt. Hood Community College, a juvenile court counselor, a social service worker with the Children's Services Division, and a caseworker with the Public Welfare Division. Roberts was the youngest woman ever elected to the Oregon Legislature, serving first as a State Representative, then as a State Senator.

Roberts was a delegate to the 1980 Democratic National Convention and to the 1978 National Women's Conference. She won the Liberty Award in 1979 for contributing to the preservation of personal and religious liberties, and the Mary Rieke Award in 1978 for her political defense of the rights of women. In 1981, Oregon Magazine designated Roberts one of Oregon's most powerful women.

Let us not pray to be sheltered from dangers but to be fearless when facing them.

PAUL E. BURKET, ADMINISTRATOR AERONAUTICS DIVISION
TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT
3040 25th St. S.E.
Salem 97310 378-4880

The Aeronautics Division is responsible for registration of all pilots and aircraft in Oregon, as well as air search and rescue operations. Paul Burket became Administrator of the division in 1972, after serving for two years as Director of the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics.

Burket was born in Pennsylvania in 1924 and lived there until he entered the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1942. He served 22 years as an Air Force pilot and staff officer, then became Assistant Supervisor of Operations at the Lincoln, Nebraska Municipal Airport. While in Nebraska, he attended the University of Omaha part-time, earning a Bachelor of General Education degree.

He is a past president of the National Association of State Aviation Officials, a member of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, and an officer of the Transportation Officials Division of the American Road and Transportation Builders Association.

Burket is also active in local church and Kiwanis activities. He often serves as a public speaker on aviation and still pilots light aircraft for business and pleasure.

LEONARD KUNZMAN, DIRECTOR AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT
635 Capitol N.E.
Salem 97310 378-4152

Born in Oregon City in 1925, Leonard Kunzman was raised on a farm and operates several farms to this day: a family farm he runs with his brothers, and his own sheep and cattle farm. He was appointed Director of the Agriculture Department in 1975, after many years of service in management positions in the Department of Education and three years as Executive Vice President of the Oregon Farm Bureau.

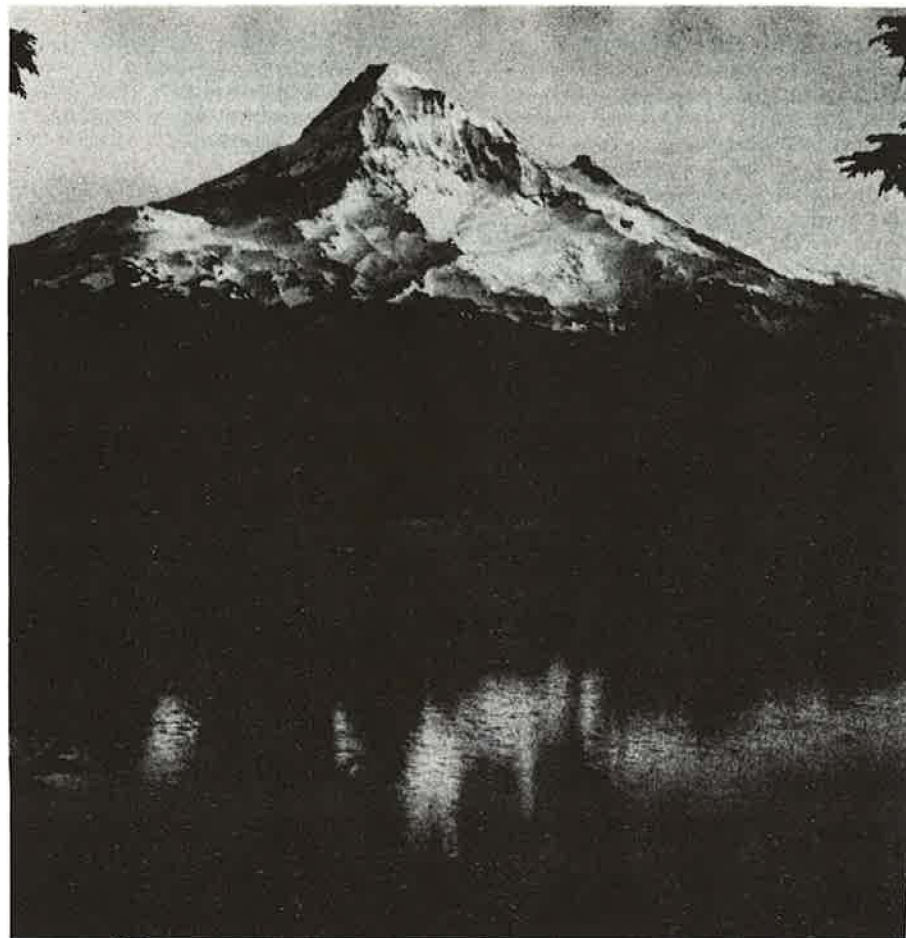

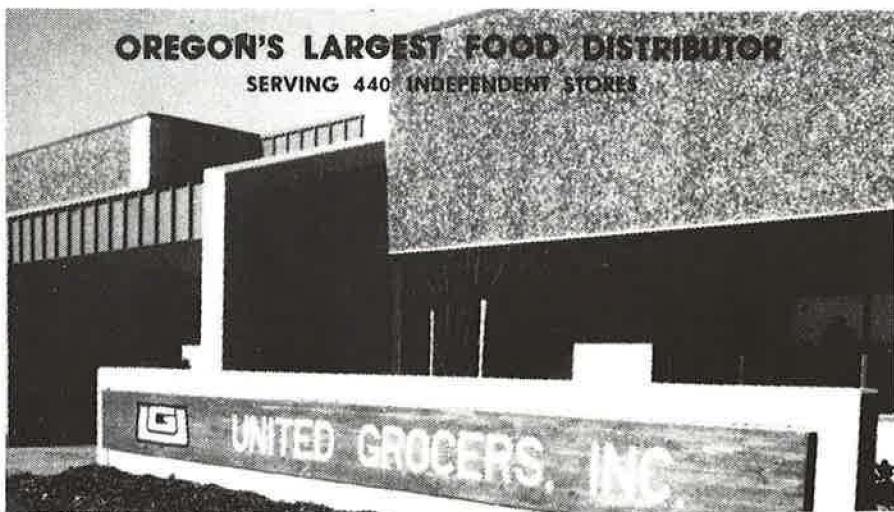

As Agriculture Director, Kunzman guides long-range development of the state's agricultural resources, conducts authorized inspections, assures regulatory compliance, and encourages new markets for Oregon's agricultural products.

He attended Oregon State University, earning both bachelor's and master's degrees. He and his wife maintain a residence in Salem and have three daughters.

A Klamath County Commissioner at the time of his appointment, Ray Thorne was named to head the Employment Division in 1977. The division administers unemployment insurance, employment services, and labor market information through 39 local offices in 30 counties.

Thorne was born in California in 1945, but went to school in Klamath Falls. He graduated from Oregon State University with a BS in science education and an MS in biology. He taught in Klamath Falls for seven years, both at Klamath Union High School and through the OSU Continuing Education Division at Oregon Institute of Technology. He now lives in Salem with his wife, Jean, and daughter, Valerie.

He has chaired the Governor's Conference on Handicapped Individuals, as well as the Oregon delegation to the White House Conference on the same subject. In 1976, he was honored as one of the Oregon Jaycees' Five Outstanding Young Men. Thorne was 1977 Handicapped Oregonian of the Year, and he was cited in 1978 for meritorious service by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Track Facts . . .

- Horse racing and breeding in Oregon is a year-round multi-million dollar industry upon which thousands of people depend for their livelihood. Moreover, racing and breeding supports a host of related businesses including horse transportation, boarding, shoeing, veterinary care, insurance, grooming, feeding, training, tack and equipment.
- At least 3,500 persons – owners, trainers, jockeys, grooms, racing officials, and track employees – participate directly in Oregon horse racing, and Portland Meadows account for 70 percent of that number. It is equal to the combined total of all other professional sports in Oregon.
- Since the 1920s, hundreds of thousands of acres of Oregon land have been kept clean and green by the horse breeding industry. There are about 500 breeders of race horses in Oregon, most of whom own farms ranging from a few acres to 80,000 acres.

- Income from horse racing supports various activities, from the Oregon State Fair and Pendleton Roundup to the Pacific Coast Turkey Exhibit, county fairs throughout the state, and higher education. Since 1946, when Portland Meadows opened, racing has generated more than $70 million for those activities.
- Horse racing is the world's most regulated and controlled sport. During the racing season, Portland Meadows and the Oregon Racing Commission employ a force of 30 uniformed and plainclothes officers who work around the clock to protect the integrity of racing. In addition, 11 officials preside over every race to ensure that the rules of racing are strictly observed.
- Portland Meadows has one of America's finest wet weather racing surfaces.
- Every one of Oregon's 36 counties receives income from racing. In 1980, nearly a million dollars was distributed to Oregon counties.

At Louisiana-Pacific we believe that individuals can make a difference. By their attitude and their effort. By their hope and their muscle. By taking responsibility for changing the way things are—at work, at home, in the community, in the country. By saying "Yes We Can!" when challenged by jobs that aren't easy—by circumstances that seem out of control. Today, more than ever, it takes guts to say "Yes We Can!" But, more than ever, it's the only attitude that will make a difference. We invite you to join us.

FIRST STATE BECOMES PACIFIC WESTERN BANK

Pacwest Bancorp has announced the selection of a new name for its lead bank. The new identity is tentatively scheduled to be put into use in June or July when the branch systems of Pacwest's two largest subsidiaries, First State Bank of Oregon and Citizens Bank of Oregon, are combined to form a single institution.

Robert W. Franz, Pacwest's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, announced that the name "Pacific Western Bank" had been chosen from among a sizeable list of potential names.

The new name will be adopted by First State Bank's 34 branches and Citizens Bank's 9 offices. The combination of the two banks will produce a single institution with assets of more than $650 million after the merger and name change.

Pacwest Bancorp is headquartered in the Portland suburb of Milwaukie (OR). Other Pacwest subsidiaries include The First National Bank of McMinnville, Hood River County Bank and Associated Computer Services. All three of these corporations will continue to operate under their existing names and management.

ENERGY AWARD TO FIB BY PPL

First Interstate Bank has been honored by Pacific Power & Light Company for energy conservation in Oregon's tallest building — the 536-foot First Interstate Tower.

In presenting the commercial energy conservation award to First Interstate Bank, Bill Krusee, PP&L energy consultant, said, "Since the early days of the First Interstate Tower Building, you have been continually seeking ways to reduce energy use. You have gone to an automated control system, installed energy-efficient window surfaces, and you have installed new and more efficient ways to light and control lighting in the building."

Krusee added, "The commercial energy conservation award is not made annually or on any other regular basis. We make the award only when outstanding achievements in energy conservation have been demonstrated over a period of years. Only a handful of buildings in the Portland area have been selected for this award. The First Interstate Tower is by far the largest of these."

The 40-story First Interstate Tower and the adjacent five-story operations building were completed in 1972. Together, they compose the First Interstate Center, which covers a two-block area bounded by Third and Fifth avenues and Jefferson and Columbia streets in downtown Portland.

RESTAURANT BIZ TO PICKUP

The National Restaurant Association is forecasting that restaurant sales in Oregon will total $1.4 billion in 1982 — up 11.9 percent from its estimated total for 1981 — and President Wes Peterson of the Restaurants of Oregon Association is hoping the NRA is right.

The NRA forecast that Oregon restaurant sales would increase at a greater rate than the average of 11.1 percent for the Pacific region states, Alaska, California, Hawaii, Oregon and Washington, and at a rate greater than that forecast for any of the other states in the region, except Alaska. Nationally, only Alaska, Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, South Dakota and Texas are expected to gain at a rate faster than Oregon's.

G-P MELDS P/R, GOVT. AFFAIRS

The Georgia-Pacific Corp. state government affairs group nationally is being consolidated into the company's corporate advertising and public relations department, according to Stephen K. Jackson, vice president.

Regional public relations and state government affairs activities were combined into a public affairs unit under the direction of Lawrence W. Burke, corporate public relations director of G-P.

The new unit is designed to strengthen communications links at state and regional levels. G-P will maintain public affairs offices in eight cities: Portland, Ore.; Salem, Ore.; Sacramento, Calif.; Baton Rouge, La.; Crossett, Ark.; Atlanta, Ga.; Darien, Conn.; and Augusta, Maine.

The organization change follows the announced departure from G-P of William J. Moshofsky, vice president-government affairs, to campaign in Oregon's 1st Congressional District.

Did WE Create The Soviet Frankenstein?

Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, Nobel recipient and Russian refugee, has repeatedly warned that it is our own United States which has rescued the tyrannical Soviet government from collapse time after time -- and made possible the Soviet military juggernaut. Confirming Lenin's prediction that Communism will be built by its enemies--"useful idiots."

Fearless Nobel dissident Andrei Sakharov smuggled a similar warning to the West in 1980 from his exile in Gorky.

Referring to the West, Marxist idol Lenin mocked "They will fight with each other to sell us goods...we will give a rope to the bourgeoisie...the bourgeoisie will hang itself with this rope."

The time for polite academic discursing is over. It is time we stop standing in awe of the monster we have created; begin to nullify Soviet armed blackmail; shatter the Marxist ring of iron forming around our Republic; help to return Russia's government to its people; restore respect for America and bring peace to the world.

VETERAN BANKER RETIRES

The First National Bank of McMinnville has announced several important changes in its senior management staff.

John J. "Jake" Wortman, President of the McMinnville bank has announced his retirement effective January 31, 1982. Mr. Wortman's retirement comes after more than 45 years as a member of the bank's staff. Wortman attended Linfield College, and is past treasurer of the Yamhill County Cancer Society. He is the great grandson of Jacob Wortman, who was one of the bank's founders.

Tom Gunness, Executive Vice President and Chief Executive Officer since April, 1980, was promoted to President to succeed Wortman. He will be only the fifth President in the bank's 97 year history. Gunness joined the bank in 1947 after attending the University of Oregon. Prior to that, he spent several years in military service.

Hunt M. Compton, head of the bank's lending function, was also promoted. He was named Executive Vice President. Compton has been involved in a number of civic organizations. He was active in the United Way, and is a Past President of the McMinnville Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Compton was named McMinnville's "Junior Citizen of the Year" in 1975, an honor his wife Patti received in 1979. Compton is a graduate of Lewis & Clark College and the Pacific Coast Banking School. He joined the McMinnville bank in 1959 after spending three years as an Assistant National Bank Examiner with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

The First National Bank of McMinnville was founded in 1883, and is the oldest bank in Oregon still operating under its original identity.

WOMEN CAUCUS WESTERN CONFERENCE

Kathy Wilson, chair of the National Women's Political Caucus, will keynote the organization's Western Regional Conference being held Friday-Sunday, March 5-7, 1982 at the Portland Hilton.

An estimated 250 registrants from 11 western states will participate in the three-day conference dealing with such topics as lobbying, federal budget cuts, legal rights, pay equity and employment and diverse role choices for women.

Area leaders of other women's and minority organizations will appear on a panel during the Saturday luncheon. Groups to be represented include: AAUW; Business & Professional Women; IMAGE/Cosspo; League of Women Voters; NARAL; NOW; Planned Parenthood; Portland Junior League; Urban Indian Council; Urban League Guild, Women in Communications, Inc., and the YWCA.

Onsite registration will open at 1:00 p.m. on Friday. A reception honoring Oregon elected women officials begins at 5:00 p.m. followed by the appearance of Cris Williamson in concert at the Civic Auditorium at 9:00 p.m. to benefit the Oregon Women's Political Action Committee. Williamson, a feminist performer originally from the Black Hills of South Dakota, has sold over 100,000 copies of her first album "The Changer and The Changed." The concert will be signed.

The conclave will close Sunday at noon with the development of an action plan for the 80's facilitated by Julianne Johnson, management communications consultant with JARL Associates.

Conference co-chairs are Carol Kirchner and Gina Whitehill. For further information, contact the Oregon Women's Political Caucus at 224-2588.

research!

Controlled pollination to help us develop superior trees is one part of our forestry research.

And research is just one part of our High Yield Forestry. Also involved are planting millions of seedlings, fertilizing, thinning, harvesting, and complete utilization of the fiber from the forest.

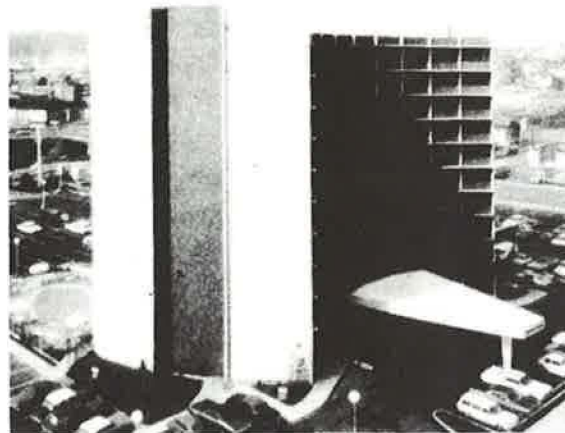

Besides products, our forests provide recreational opportunity, serve as a habitat for wildlife, protect watersheds, and return oxygen to the atmosphere.

Just a Thought . . .

There is much potential mischief in a headlong plunge into deregulatory overkill. Too many pending proposals, intentionally or otherwise, mask gold-plated wrecking tools for lawyers; impose new, unproductive costs; create greater bureaucracy, not less; cause delays building upon delays, and the flooding of courts already floating in regulatory appeals.

American Can.
We're proud to be part of your home.
We're proud to be part of your community.

When you think of American Can, you probably think of products for your home: cans, containers and other packages containing your favorite brands. Or perhaps you think of one of our Consumer Products brands — Dixie® cups and plates; Northern®, Aurora®, Brawny® or Gala® towels, tissues and napkins, or Butterick® and Vogue® sewing patterns.

You may not realize that American Can is a major international company with subsidiaries and affiliates around the world. Or that we are leaders in the growing field of resource recovery. You may be surprised to learn, too, that through our Pickwick International subsidiary, we are involved in the sale or distribution of one of every five records and tapes sold in the U.S. And that Fingerhut Corporation, whose products are mailed directly to consumer homes, is also part of American Can.

To carry out these activities, we rely on more than 50,000 employees living and working throughout the country and overseas — and of course, right here in the area. People who not only do a fine job for American Can but often dedicate after-hours time to their communities. They lead Scout meetings, collect for fund drives, carry out the work of religious groups and do the many other unpaid jobs that help bind our community together. As good corporate citizens, we're proud of their energy and commitment and proud to work alongside them at American Can.

THE PAST

Founded by the late great C.C. Chapman in 1915 and carried on by Walter May from 1955 to 1965, the Oregon Voter Digest has for over 65 years been the political and financial bible for the state's leaders. Politicians, businessmen and professional men of all kinds have found the Oregon Voter Digest an indispensable handbook and guide. It has provided a stream of clear, concise and complete information and analysis on citizenship, public affairs, taxation, business and finance. The influence of the Oregon Voter Digest in Oregon's public affairs is legendary.

PORTLAND CIVIC THEATRE MATURES

Just because Portland Civic Theatre is 55 years old, is the venerable institution ready for retirement? Not at all! That's the resounding answer, supported by bigger budgets, more exciting theatre, larger audiences, and expanded theatre classes for all ages.

The challenge of PCT's staff and directors lately has been coping with increased costs, while keeping ticket prices at competitive levels. Theatre supporters have been extremely responsive to this challenge, and the high calibre of plays, musicals, and theatrical instruction continues.

1980-81's budget was $425,000. Of this sum, earned income accounted for over 75%, leaving corporate, individual, and foundation contributions of $100,000.

With a 55-year-old thriving theatre and a vibrantly alive Theatre Arts School (established in 1932), Portland Civic Theatre is striding confidently forward into its 56th successful season.

IN CAPITOL CORRIDORS

By C. R. "Bob" Hillyer

No better example of legislators putting their own re-election before the public need may be found in the 1981's legislative session, both regular and special, in lip service given to closing some tax loopholes on "exempted" property. Rep. Vera Katz, with whom we probably disagree more than agree, has hit the target center with her five proposals, defeated, to reduce the numbers and kinds of properties exempted - lodges, fraternal groups, museums. And as if that group isn't impressing you, try this: fallout shelters, alternative energy systems, pollution control facilities, ship cargo containers, gasohol plants, and geothermal-wind-and water energy generating systems. The 1982 Legislature further added to the list such goodies as: day care centers, farmer's frost control systems, hop trellises, bean poles, and shop tools. Veterans homestead exemption went up to $10,000 and veterans' widowers are now included in veteran's benefits. At least the Federal government pays us "in lieu" monies for BLM holdings, USFS, and the many federal buildings on miscellaneous lands.

The Port of Portland must have taken a leaf from the book of Florida land sellers - those who sell you acreage, but it's under water! The Mock Bottom, recently filed from dredge spoils, is now being peddled for industrial plants, one of which is already built. A promotional mailing to some 1800 industrial firms inviting them to look the marsh over has been made. Let's hope respondents arrive at a time other than right after a rain!

It's high time serious attention is given to doing something about the Federal Reserve Board. The Fed is unaccountable to anyone. It is undemocratic, autocratic, and inconsistent with a free economy. The Federal Reserve Act of 1914 created an independent banking system that was purposely separated from the political branches of government. The terms of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors were staggered in order to insulate the President's appointment powers from his political needs to inflate the economy temporarily to win an election. In spite of this commendable goal, the Fed's power is overly expansive . . . it can manipulate the price of credit. Some financial experts think the Fed has even more power over the price of credit than the Politburo has in communist countries! Professor Lester Thurlow is right when he wrote: "We have grown accustomed to leaving monetary matters to the financiers. Just as war is too important to leave to generals, monetary policy is too important to leave to the bankers." Senator Mark Hatfield should be commended for his willingness to come out front and open the entire matter to public view. He says in a bulletin "I have been frustrated . . . with the ability of the Fed to undermine the efforts of Congress and the President to cut spending, reduce taxes and encourage growth." As Professor Thurlow says, "the Fed can undo the effect of any tax cut the President proposes."

Tri-Met, the best Oregon example of high-handedness in bureaucracy, not only continues its autocratic ways in buying equipment sure to add to mounting operating losses, taxing self employed (yet to be defined) without voters having a chance to express themselves, increasing fares to one of the highest in the nation, but now stubbornly clings to: getting its fleet to 886 buses by end of 1985 (566 now); completing a light rail to Gresham (sure to be obsolete and totally inflexible the day it's finished); operating 125 articulated buses in streets too narrow for such thereby disrupting all other forms of traffic; using trolley buses on the five most heavily used routes (we've come full circle, folks!); and improving

"communications". Tri-Met better improve 'em! Unhappy taxpayers will increase in number, and the anger level will rise to new heights unless something is done to curb this voracious agency's insatiable appetite for public funds.

Harried and oppressed taxpayers will find small solace in these briefs: the country's 10 biggest banks paid an average U.S. income tax of 2.2%; 10 largest oil companies paid 15.1%. The working taxpayer paid between 23 and 33%! Citibank had pre-tax profits of $830 million yet showed a $5.5 million loss; Mobile paid 12.9%; and Bank of America paid 3.1%.

We agree with Governor Atiyeh that more money could be allocated to the Department of Economic Development PROVIDED: (1) That the Dept. truly promote new business, (2) not use up the funds for useless jaunts, (3) concentrate on labor-intensive businesses to invite to Oregon . . . (4) but in NO WAY subsidize companies with land gifts, tax moratorium or deferral, or other goodies that simply shift a tax load to Mr. and Mrs. Oregonian.

While on the subject . . . are we EVER going to have those entities empowered to issue Industrial Development Revenue Bonds monitor and report to us such essentials as: Did the company actually spend the money as the applications alleged? Did the company actually create the number of jobs it alleged it would? Was the whole matter "cost effective"? And will somebody please tell us what happens when one of the recipients fails?

To no one's surprise, these legislators got good good marks by labor: Reps. Bill Bradley, D-Langlois; Joyce Cohen, D-Lake Oswego; Peter Courtney, D-Salem; Wayne Fawbush, D-Hood River; Margie Hendricksen and Grattan Kerans, both D-Eugene; and Rick Bauman, Gretchen Kafoury, Vera Katz, Hardy Myers, Wally Priestley and Dick Springer, all D-Portland.

Add: Senators Walt Brown, D-Lake Oswego; John Kitzhaber, D-Roseburg; Ted Kulongoski, D-Junction City; and Rod Monroe, D-Portland to complete the list. Notice any republicans in the group? Those consistently voting in opposition to labor: Reps. Denny Jones, R-Ontario; Fred Parkinson, R-Silverton; and Al Riebel, R-Salem, plus Senator Jim Simmons, R-Tigard.

Assessors, arise! The confusing maze of regulations and rules under which you're supposed to calculate property tax relief are enough to send you "round the bend"! And who better to recommend to the amateurish legislators some changes badly needed? And election heads also should unite to abolish the register-to-and-including-election-day fiasco, promote ballot by mail, and to widen their authority in establishing election procedures.

Were you ever interested in how much electric power we use, and how much is from what source? PGE's experts come up with these figures . . . which, if they hold for the few PUD's and PP'L and CP National are revealing: hydro produced 1,174,015 megawatts for the first 6 months of 1981, nuclear produced 1,767,981 megawatts, coal 387,112 MW.

Our recently departed managing editor, Ken Hillyer, now with his family in Germany and landing a job there, says that we should "get with it." Nuclear plants are all over Germany, he writes, and there is hardly a whisper of opposition and little worry about disposal of nuclear waste. Meanwhile we continue to over react, overkill, and display the extremes of emotionalism which makes for better headlines for the vocal few.

Equipment fights pollution.

This waste water system has enabled us to prevent chemicals used in our manufacturing process from being discharged into nearby water sources.

It is sophisticated pollution control equipment like this that allows industry to operate in harmony with the environment.

A review of Employment Division memo's proves what I already knew... utter confusion reigns. Takes me back to my Army days! One day there's a directive... next day it's countermanded by another... the third day the whole matter is cancelled, and the next day it's re-instituted! I returned the file to my informant... but I got a lot of chuckles before so doing. Meanwhile about 163 people are doing the work that it formerly took 306 to do! How effectively, we don't know... but guess that when the pressure is on, as now, performance at all levels rises... even in government bureaus!

FEBRUARY 1983

OUR 69TH YEAR, NO. 1

WHO'S WHO IN THE 1983 OREGON LEGISLATURE

30 Senators — 60 Representatives

Governor: Victor Atiyeh
Secretary of State: Norma Paulus
State Treas.: Clay Myers
Attorney General: David Frohnmayer
Commissioner of Labor & Industries:
Mary "Wendy" Roberts
Superintendent of Public Instruction:

Supreme Court Chief Justice:

Henk Pander, the artist of the Tom McCall portrait, was educated at the State Academy of Fine Arts, Amsterdam, and has painted, exhibited and taught in the Netherlands and the United States—the latter has been his home since 1965.

Mr. Pander received first prizes in two prestigious Dutch portrait competitions: the Talens Prize (1961) and the Therese van Duyl Schwarze (1964). He has completed notable portrait commissions in Oregon, including: Friends of Timberline to paint C.S. Price, and from Encore Magazine of the Arts for cover portraits. Pander's work has been included in numerous publications, including Sky and Telescope, Parabola, and the New York Review of Books, among others. Since 1967 he has designed stage sets and posters for theatre and dance groups.

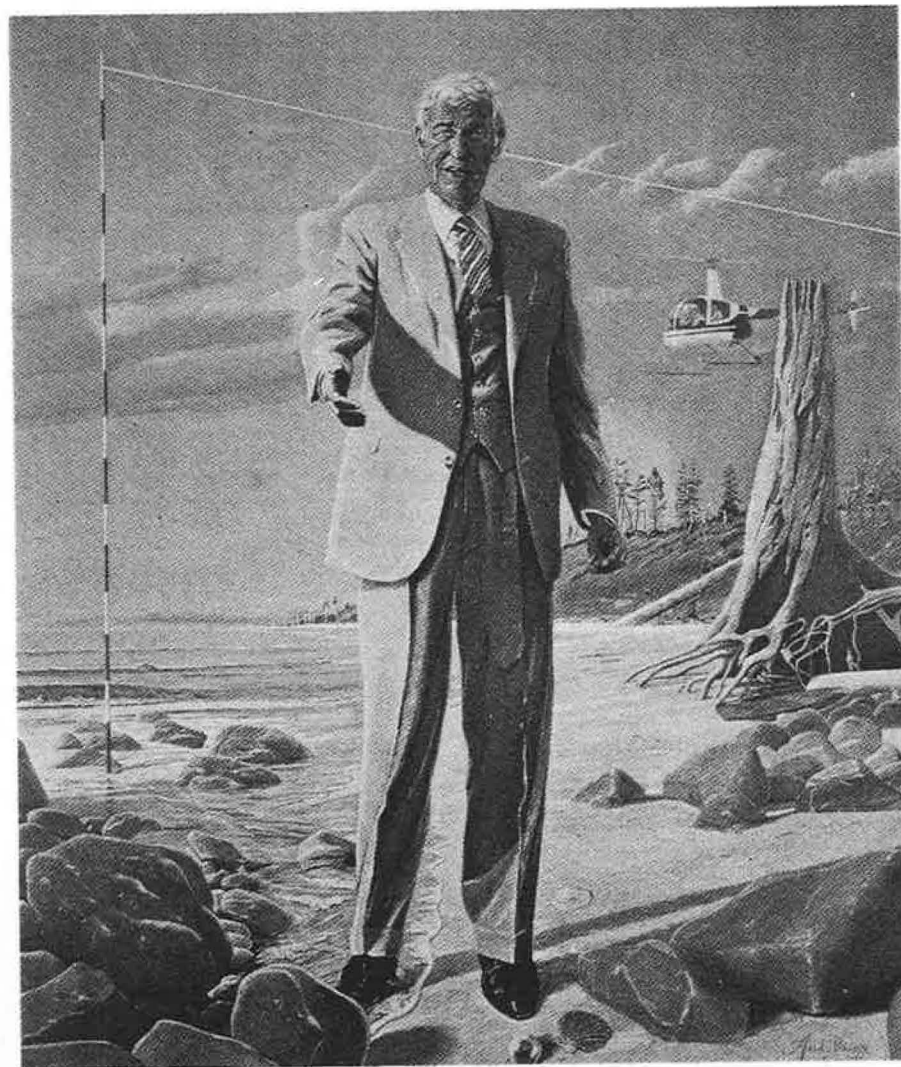

Mr. Pander's work is in the collections of the Dutch government, City of Amsterdam, State of Oregon, City of Portland, Portland Art Association, and private and business collections in England, Brazil, the Netherlands, and the United States.

Henk Pander commented on this commission to portray Governor Thomas Lawson McCall:

"A maverick soul, tuned to public need and to enhancing Oregon's loveliness," as Governor Tom McCall described himself in his autobiography, caused me to set him in a grand Oregon landscape that reflected the impact of one of his many far-reaching environmental actions.

The landscape is Cape Meares, for as governor he championed the passage of the Beach Bill to preserve Oregon's shoreline for the public, thereby fulfilling the legacy of Governor Oswald West. McCall personally participated in defining the domain of the ocean on the land. This measurement seemed to me to be both elegant and an act of reason.

McCall's immense stature, physical as well as political, demanded a large, full-standing portrait. Getting to know Governor McCall and having him pose had a profound effect on the painting; I was struck with his acuity, straightforwardness and warmth, and quickly discovered that he liked to talk and to reach out to people.

I think the Governor McCall portrait is tremendous! The artist, Henk Pander, captured the outgoing, friendly maverick personality of McCall, and in creating the slightly out-of-step-with-reality background the artist let us see through his eyes the environment McCall loved. The picture has great power—I predict the public will love it—some of them later.

—Cecil L. Edwards
Senate Historian

“I think it is a splendid painting. Tom McCall liked it very much and that pleases me.”

Oregon Voter Digest, February 1983

The 1983 Oregon Legislative Assembly faces crucial decisions that will affect the state for years to come. Governor Victor Atiyeh's proposed budget leaves a large deficit which requires new tax levies.

Among the significant issues that will be addressed are economic development and industrial diversification; crime prevention and control; assistance to the faltering timber industry; restoration of quality in the system of higher education.

Budget decisions will be made in the shadow of Measure 3—the 1½ percent tax limitation. Property tax limitation was defeated again by the Oregon voters on November 2nd, but its message remains clear to the Legislature.

Budget cuts, the imposition of taxes, and program adjustments must be determined with the people of Oregon in mind.

“People must and will continue to be the number one priority of state government,” Governor Atiyeh said in his Inaugural address. “It has never been more important to remember our commitment to human rights, human dignity, and equal opportunity for every Oregonian.”

Speaker of the House Grattan Kerans said of the 62nd Legislative Assembly: “As seldom before in our history, the caucuses of this House must work together. The House and the Senate must cooperate, and the legislative and executive branches of government must communicate. It is the wisdom of our law making that will be remembered by history long after the temporary expediency of political judgements has been forgotten. In that lawmaking it is for the common future of Oregon that we must work.”

The Oregon Voter Digest presents the 1983 issue of Who's Who in the Oregon Legislature as a citizens guide to our legislature. Each legislator, elected to represent the voters of one of the 30 Senate districts or the 60 House districts, brings a unique background, education, career, experience and expertise. The ninety individuals will write, research, lobby, meet, speak and vote on hundreds of bills. It is their responsibility to cooperate, write and produce the body of law and the sound budget decisions that will become the legacy of the 62nd Assembly.

How well each legislator carries out his/her responsibility depends in part on the voters. Representative government works best when the citizens are involved. All of the meetings of the Legislature are open to the public and testimony is welcome in committee hearings. Legislators appreciate a letter or a phone call on specific bills and issues.

Participate in your government and you will find it will work better for you and for all the people of Oregon.

Oregon's Budget: An Action Plan For A Brighter Future

Oregon's state budget is a two-year fiscal plan for the state which balances state spending against expected revenues. On December 1st of last year, I released my recommendations for the two-year period beginning July 1, 1983.

Those recommendations now await action by the Oregon legislature.

I went into the budget process with a specific philosophy uppermost in mind. Many of you know that philosophy. Oregonians have seen it at work in state budget matters since 1979.

It is a philosophy that says we must separate the essential from the merely desirable. We need to ask again and again: "Is this something government should do?"

We must provide a minimum level of essential state services. We must get maximum mileage from scarce tax dollars. We must limit the growth of property taxes. And we must try to avoid tax increases while terminating temporary measures—and seek a broader lasting reform of our tax system.

That is the philosophy I brought to our budget process in November.

I applied that philosophy to every budget decision we made. In every piece, every section, every program of state government, we took a long hard look at the critical needs of our state. And we took an equally hard look at the impact of further budget cuts.

When that process was complete—then and only then—did I turn again to the revenue side. It showed anticipated General Fund revenues of approximately $2.8 billion over the biennium, matched against critical minimum needs of approximately $3.3 billion.

The budget I have presented to the Oregon Legislature reflects, in all of its parts, that philosophy. It is a budget that is a collection of elements, small and large. Each element has been analyzed for the effectiveness and the worth of what it does. These elements include the small, such as the Pest and Disease Control Program for Oregon timber—a $190,000 investment in the future of our most essential economic resource. And these elements include the large, such as $20 million for prison space desperately needed in our overloaded prison system.

The great majority of state agencies and programs have been held to their reduced budgets of the current biennium. Significant restorations have been made and forward momentum restored in only a very few critical areas: higher education, public safety, and economic development.

My revenue package has been constructed with caution, sensitivity, and care. It supports only the hold-the-line state budget with minimal critical additions I have described.

We have forecast an improvement in Oregon's economy in 1983-85. But our recovery will only be gradual. State General Fund revenues from existing sources will grow only a few percentage points. Furthermore, almost $500 million in temporary revenue increasing measures and one-time pickups passed during this biennium will not, by my recommendation, be available in 1983-85. I am recommending that our temporary revenue-increasing measures be just that—temporary. The bulk of them should be allowed to terminate in accordance with my promise and the legislature's implied commitment.

At the same time, my revenue package proposes an important tax reform designed to broaden our tax base, meet the minimum needs of our state, yet have the least impact on lower income Oregonians. The net receipts tax will fairly and equitably accomplish this. It will raise $587 million in personal and corporate income tax revenues.

The net receipts tax proposal has been planned very carefully as part of a tax package which features tax reductions in many other areas, and the elimination of most of the temporary tax measures of the current biennium.

For example, the personal income tax rate schedule will be reduced.

The largest reductions are proposed for the lowest income groups, but the tax rate in every personal income tax bracket—lowest to highest—will be at least partially reduced.

We will also ease the tax burden by:

- allowing the 1982 income tax surcharge to expire;
- reconnecting to the federal tax code;

Oregon Voter Digest, February 1983

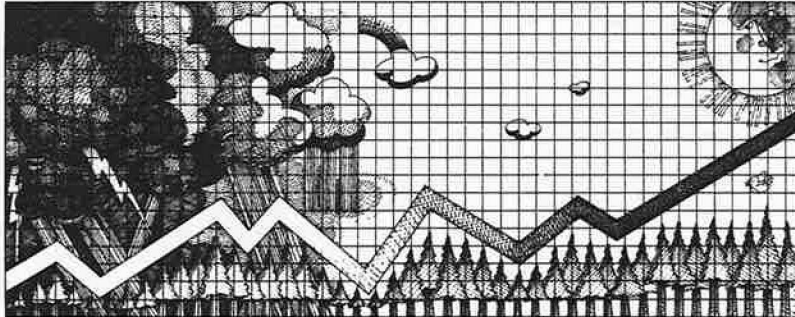

- resuming indexing of personal income tax exemptions;
- dropping the most recent cigareet tax increases from 7¢ to 3¢;
- substituting a tax credit for the personal exemption;
- limiting property taxes; and
- expanding the relief program provided by HARRP, while establishing an income lid for that program.

These recommendations are interwoven and interdependent. They must be considered as part of a total revenue package of limitation and reform.

Because reform we must. And limit we must.

No message was clearer in the November election than those twin messages.

It is a good plan. It will work for Oregon.

VICTOR ATIYEH

Governor 1983-87. Representative 1959, 1961, 1963. Senator 1965, 1969, 1973, 1977. Governor 1979. Republican. State Capitol, Salem 97310.

Oregon's 32nd Governor, Vic Atiyeh, took office January 8, 1979, after serving for 20 years as a member of the Oregon Legislature. A native Oregonian, he was educated in Portland (Washington High School) and Eugene (University of Oregon) and was a Portland businessman before becoming Governor.

He was elected to a second four-year term in 1982.

A champion of senior citizens, handicapped, and those who need help, the majority of bills the Governor introduced as a legislator dealt with human resource issues. Atiyeh played a significant role in the writing of Oregon's famous clean air and clean water legislation in the mid-1960s, and he was actively involved in other landmark environmental legislation.

Born February 20, 1923, in Portland, Gov. Atiyeh was a standout football lineman in both high school and college. Atiyeh turned down an offer to play professional football with the Green Bay Packers to help run Atiyeh Brothers, the family rug business started in 1900 by his father and uncle. Atiyeh's parents both immigrated to this country from Syria.

Atiyeh was the Republican candidate for Governor in 1974, suffering his only political defeat out of 17 lifetime races, when he lost the election to Bob Straub. In his second try for Governor in 1978, he won a three-way primary victory over State Representative Roger Martin and former Governor Tom McCall, tallying about 47 percent of the vote. In the general election rematch, Atiyeh defeated incumbent Governor Straub by 90,000 votes statewide.

Accomplishments of Governor Atiyeh's first term include reductions in the size and cost of state government; significant improvements in state management and productivity; progress and reform in problem areas such as workers compensation and welfare; and major new programs in energy and economic development.

Announced priorities of Governor Atiyeh's second term include property tax limitation, reforms in land use planning, renewed aid to higher education, continued emphasis on economic development, and the implementation of special programs on behalf of law enforcement, the forest products industry, and Oregon's sport and commercial fishery.

Active in many community organizations and foundations, the Governor has volunteered most of his free time to the Boy Scouts. From scoutmaster to regional council president, Vic Atiyeh has served in most scouting leadership positions, earning the highest council and regional volunteer awards. He is a member of the National Board of Exploring.

The Governor is an active antique gun collector, fly fisherman, and golfer. He and Dolores Atiyeh have been married for 36 years.

Oregon's Governor is elected for a four-year term and is limited to serving eight years in any 12-year period. The state's chief executive duties include coordinating the activities of state agencies, initiating planning for future state activities, chairing the State Land Board, and developing and recommending a budget to the state Legislature.

The Governor serves as the focal point for coordination of federal and local governments. He is Commander-in-Chief of the state's military forces. He may call special sessions of the Legislature and may veto single appropriations items or emergency clauses on legislative bills. The Governor may grant reprieves, commutations, and pardons.

NORMA PAULUS

Secretary of State 1981-1985. Representative 1971, 1973, 1975. Secretary of State 1977-1981. Republican. 136 State Capitol, Salem 97310.

Norma Paulus, Oregon's first woman elected statewide to serve as a state official, moved to Burns, Oregon with her family in the 1930s from a farm in Nebraska. After high school graduation, she worked as a secretary, first in Burns for the Harney County D.A. and later in Salem for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

In 1956 she was accepted into law school at Willamette University, where she became an honor student and in 1962 was admitted to the Oregon State Bar.

Mrs. Paulus was elected to the Legislature in 1970. She was a Republican minority floor leader for the 1973 session.

Following three terms in the House, she was elected Secretary of State in 1976 and re-elected in 1980. The Secretary of State, among other duties, is the State Auditor and Chief Election Officer, as well as a member of the State Land Board, along with the Governor and State Treasurer.

Mrs. Paulus has received many professional accolades, some of which are the 1971 Golden Torch Awards given by the Business and Professional Women of Oregon and the award of a fellowship to Egleton Institute of Politics in 1971. In 1980 Norma Paulus received recognition as one of ten "Women of the Future" as Oregon Voter Digest, February, 1983 selected by the Ladies Home Journal editorial board. In 1982, she received the first annual "Woman of the Year" award by the Oregon Women Lawyers.

Willamette University named Mrs. Paulus to its Board of Trustees in 1978 and in 1980 she was appointed to the Board of Directors of the Benedictine Foundation of Oregon. She was on the board of directors of the National Society of State Legislators during 1971-72 and also served with the Salem Human Relations Commission, Marion-Polk Boundary Commission, and "Interact" Human Resources Center.

Norma is married to attorney William Paulus. The Paulus', who live in Salem, have two children.

CLAY MYERS

State Treasurer 1981-1985. Secretary of State 1967 (appointed), 1969, 1973; State Treasurer 1977, Republican. 158 State Capitol, Salem 97310.

Clay Myers, the current President of the National Association of State Treasurers, also serves on the Executive Committee of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers. In June of 1983 he will host the Western States Treasurers annual convention being held for the first time in Oregon.

Trust and taxpayer funds net earnings in 1982 approached $700,000,000 for the first time on investments in or overseen by the State Treasury.

Mr. Myers serves on the Boards of Directors of Missouri-Pacific Corporation and Unit Drop Forge; Board of Overseers of Lewis & Clark College; the Bishop of Oregon Foundation (Episcopal); the Executive Committee of the National Interfraternity Council; as well as other business, volunteer community service, church leadership and seven state government-related bodies.

Born May, 1927, in Multnomah County and raised in Tillamook, Myers is a veteran and a graduate of Portland's Benson High. He obtained a degree from the University of Oregon and went on to graduate studies at Northwestern College of Law.

Oregon Voter Digest, February 1983

Assistant Secretary of State, 1965 and 1966, Myers was appointed to fill out Tom McCall's term as Secretary of State in 1967 when McCall was elected Governor. Myers subsequently won re-election twice to that office, thus serving two more years than the maximum eight years. As Secretary of State, he served one term as Vice-Chairman for the western region of the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors.

Myers was elected State Treasurer in 1976 and re-elected in 1980.

Clay and Elizabeth Myers have two sons and a daughter.

State Flag

The Oregon state flag is navy blue with gold lettering and illustrations. On the face of the flag are the words, "State of Oregon." Below is the shield from the state seal, supported by 33 stars. Below the shield is the date, "1859," the date of Oregon's admission to the Union as a state. On the reverse side of the flag is a beaver.

State Seal

The state seal consists of a shield, supported by 33 stars depicting the 33 states that formed the Union in 1859. It is divided by a ribbon with the words, "The Union."

In the upper half are the mountains, forests, an elk with branching antlers, a covered wagon with ox team, the Pacific Ocean with setting sun. A British man-of-war is departing, an American merchant ship arriving.

Below the ribbon are a pick-axe, plow and sheaf of wheat, which represent agriculture and mining interests.

On the crest is the American Eagle and around the perimeter the words, "State of Oregon."

State Tree

The Douglas Fir (Pseudotsuga menziesii) was named the state tree in 1939. Found on the western slopes of the Cascades to the coast, the Douglas fir is a principal timber species of Oregon. Its stiffness and strength, together with its moderate weight, give it many uses. The Douglas Fir grows to a height of 200 feet and a width of 4 feet or more. It was named for David Douglas, a Scottish botanist who explored much of the Pacific coast in the 19th century.

DAVE FROHNMAYER

Attorney General 1980-1985. Representative 1975, 1977, 1979. Republican. 100 State Office Bldg., Salem, OR 97310

Dave Frohnmayer was elected Attorney General in November 1980 with 63 percent of the votes cast in his race. A native of Medford, born July 9, 1940, he attended schools there, winning an A.B. degree (magna cum laude) from Harvard, B.A. and M.A. degrees from Oxford where he was a Rhodes Scholar, and J.D. from the University of California (Berkeley) School of Law.

Frohnmayer was a professor of law at the University of Oregon School of Law from 1971 to 1981. He served as the District 40 State Representative for three terms (1975-77-79). He was Special Assistant to the U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in 1969-70 and was a consultant to the Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Department of Justice in 1973-74.

Since assuming office as Attorney General, Frohnmayer implemented a reorganization of the State's Department of Justice, which is State Government's law firm. As a part of that reorganization, he emphasized several goals and objectives in order to achieve his inauguration day pledge: "To build the finest Department of Justice in the nation." Under Frohnmayer's direction, the efforts of many of the Department's divisions have received national recognition. Frohnmayer himself personally argued before the United States Supreme Court. The resulting unanimous opinion of the Court greatly assisted clarifying the law for criminal prosecutors throughout the nation.

Among Frohnmayer's stated objectives for the state's law firm are further consolidation of all state legal services under the central direction of the Attorney General. This, Frohnmayer says, is essential to the maintenance of quality and consistency of the state's public policy. He strongly believes the state's legal policy must be articulated with a single voice.

The Attorney General feels that state legal services must be enhanced in quality, since the greater volume and higher dollar exposure of the state actions vitally affect the ability of government to function effectively. Major efforts have been made by the Frohnmayer administration to insure recruitment of high quality professional staff.

Frohnmayer's legislative agenda for the 1983 Legislature includes modification of the state's insanity defense laws. Long an advocate for reform, he has proposed a bill to eliminate the insanity defense in Oregon. Frohnmayer also has proposed a series of bills which deal with the increasing problem of frivolous litigation. The state and federal legal systems, Frohnmayer says, are drowning in a sea of litigation. Individuals with pressing and legitimate claims that affect their economic livelihood and their personal lives must compete with sham and frivolous lawsuits for precious docket space. Frohnmayer has initiated six legislative proposals to correct that expensive injustice.

The Eugene Republican chairs the Governor's Special Commission Against Violent Crime and also the state's Organized Crime Commission.

Frohnmayer is the recipient of numerous legal and civil awards. He was the Eugene Junior First Citizen (1975), one of five Outstanding Young Men of Oregon (1975), national first prize winner of two constitutional law essay competitions and national first prize winner of the prestigious American Bar Association Ross Essay Award.

Dave lives in Eugene with his wife, Lynn, and three children. His hobbies include swimming, music, skiing, travel and gardening.

COMMISSIONER MARY ROBERTS

Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor and Industries 1983-1987. Labor Commissioner 1979. Representative 1973, Senator 1975. Democrat. Room 203, 555 13th Street N.E., Salem OR 97310/1400 SW 5th Avenue, Portland, OR 97201.

Mary Roberts has the distinction of being the youngest woman elected to the House (1972), the youngest woman elected to the Senate (1974), and the first Democratic woman elected to statewide office (1978). She won re-election in 1982 with the highest percentage of the votes statewide.

Born in Champaign, Illinois on December 19, 1944, while her Oregonian father was in the U.S. Army Air Force, Commissioner Roberts is a fifth generation Oregonian. The West Linn High School graduate received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Oregon and a Master of Arts from the University of Wisconsin. Both of her degrees are in political science.

She is the daughter of State Senator Frank Roberts (District 9), and is married to former State Senator Richard Bullock (District 11), a management and governmental relations consultant. They have one child, Alexandra, the first born to a statewide elected official in the United States.

Roberts has been the recipient of numerous awards, including the 1978 Mary Rieke Award for outstanding political contribution to rights of women given by the Oregon Women's Political Caucus and the 1979 Liberty Award for outstanding contribution to preservation of personal and religious liberty. Roberts was a speaker at the 1980 National Democratic Convention. In 1981, she was one of a 10-person delegation to the People's Republic of China sponsored by the American Council of Young Political Leaders and because of her efforts, a Chinese delegation toured Oregon in 1982.

As Commissioner, Roberts heads the State Bureau of Labor and Industries and administers the Bureau's four divisions: Apprenticeship and Training, Civil Rights, Wage and Hour and Support Services. The Bureau has an annual budget of 7.5 million dollars and approximately 140 full and part-time employees in seven offices around the state.

Roberts is credited with restoring the balance at the Bureau, which is now called "Labor and Industries," between labor and business and has been active in promoting economic growth in Oregon.

VERNE DUNCAN

Superintendent of Public Instruction, 1983-1987. Superintendent 1975, 1979. (Non-partisan.) 700 Pringle Parkway S.E., Salem 97310.

Verne Duncan is in his third term as Superintendent of Public Instruction. He was elected to the nonpartisan position in 1974 and re-elected in 1978 and 1982. Duncan is a native Oregonian, born in McMinnville, April 6, 1934. His early schooling was in his hometown, through public education and Linfield College.

Oregon's 16th Superintendent received a Bachelor's degree from Idaho State, a Master of Education degree from the University of Idaho, and his Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of Oregon (1968). He has continued his studies, receiving an MBA degree from the University of Portland in 1976.

Superintendent Duncan has been a teacher at all levels from elementary to college, since the age of 20. He has held virtually all the administrative posts in the education field, including: elementary principal, junior high principal, district superintendent and Intermediate Education District superintendent (Clackamas County IED).

He has served in numerous state and national consulting and advisory roles within education. Oregon Voter Digest, February, 1983

tion, and is past president of the State Intermediate and County Superintendents' Association. He serves on national legislative and policy committees of the Council of Chief State School Officers, and was appointed by U.S. Secretary of Education T.H. Bell to serve on the National Advisory Board on International Education Programs.

Duncan is a Trustee of Marylhurst Education Center, the Oregon Historical Society and the Sons and Daughters of Oregon Pioneers.

As Superintendent, one of Duncan's highest priorities has been maintaining a high level of state support for schools to decrease the portion of school costs supported by property taxes.

In his 1982 State of the Schools address Duncan initiated a comprehensive study to determine the impact technological advances and economic changes will have on what students need to learn and how educational services are delivered. The study will help provide direction for Oregon education in preparing students for the 1990s and into the twenty-first century.

Verne Duncan is a Presbyterian, a member of Rotary International, and an active citizen in his community. He and his wife, Donna, have two daughters.

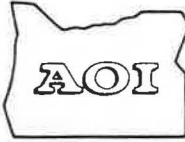

by Verne A. Duncan

Education in Oregon is at a crossroads. The advances in technology are rapidly expanding the amount of knowledge available to our students, as well as changing the skills our students must have to become successful in the adult world of the 1990s and into the twenty-first century. Technology is also impacting the way we provide education to students.

Meanwhile our economy is demanding that we continue to provide these educational services within declining resources. The major focus of education over the next few years must be to utilize available technology to improve our productivity and reduce costs while expanding and improving the education of our students.

This will require all the creativity we can manage for a fresh look at what it is students will need to know to be successful, and how they can best be provided that information within the resources available. It may mean some major changes in our traditional education delivery system—changes which may not come easy because of attitudes and methods developed over many years.

BERKELEY LENT

Chief Justice, Oregon Supreme Court, 1982-1988. Representative 1957, 1959, 1963, 1965. Senator 1967, 1971. Multnomah County Circuit Judge 1971 (appointed). Supreme Court Justice 1977, 1981.

Since July 1, 1982, Berkeley "Bud" Lent has been Chief Justice of the Oregon Supreme Court. Under a new court reorganization plan adopted by the 1981 Oregon Legislature, the Chief Justice has direct executive responsibility for the Oregon court system and about 1,100 employees.

The Chief Justice has the authority to appoint presiding judges of district and circuit courts and is responsible for a court administrator who handles budgeting, record keeping and personnel.

Beginning on January 1, 1983, the state is gradually taking over all of the costs of the court system. The state will be paying all costs of the 20 circuit courts and 27 district courts.

Lent was raised in the Lents district of Portland, which was named for his pioneer ancestors. He attended Franklin High School, Reed College, Occidental College in Los Angeles, and Willamette University College of Law. He planned a career as a math teacher but lost course time during illness and then changed his goal to the law.

Lent was General Counsel to the Bonneville Power Administration 1950-1951 and 1952-1953. He was a partner in several Portland law firms including Peterson, Pozzi, and Lent and Lent, York, Paulson and Bulloch. He also practiced law alone, both in Coos County in 1951 and again in Portland in 1970.

Bar activities include Chairman of the Oregon State Bar Committee on Civil Rights, 1960-1961; President, Western Trial Lawyers, 1960-1961; Third and Second Vice President, OBA, 1970 and 1971.

Lent is married and has raised four children.

Lent, a Democrat, was elected to the house of Representatives in 1956. He was vice-chairman of the Committee on Labor and Industries and a member of the Judiciary Committee and the Alcoholic Control Committee in the 1957 Session. During his years in the House he was a member of the Rules Committee, Planning and Development, Constitution Revision, Taxation. He was chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the 1963 Session and Minority Whip in the 1965 Session. He was elected to the Senate in 1966 and 1970 and was chairman of Labor and Industries, and served on several committees including Special Beach Bill Committee, Financial Affairs, Judiciary, Education. In the 1971 Session he was Chairman of Ways and Means and Majority Leader.

In 1971 he was appointed by Governor Tom McCall to the Multnomah County Circuit Court and was elected to the Oregon Supreme Court in 1976.

EDWARD N. FADELEY

Senator, 1983-1987. District 21: Lane County. Representative 1961, Senator 1963, 1967, 1971, 1975, 1979. Democrat. 777 High Street, Eugene, OR 97401.

Edward Fadeley was first elected to the State Senate in 1962 after two years in the House. In the recent election he collected some 18,400 votes against his Republican opponent's 10,100.

Fadeley was born December 13, 1929, in Williamsville, Missouri, the state in which he also attended public schools. He earned a B.A. at the University of Missouri, served in the navy, and went on to gain a Doctor of Jurisprudence, with honors (top of class), at the University of Oregon. He has had his own practice as an attorney since 1957, and since 1981 has been in partnership with his son, Charles.

Attorney Fadeley is admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court and all Oregon courts. Besides his law school scholastic honors, Senator Fadeley was nominated for the Eugene Distinguished Service Award and, in 1979, received the U. of O's first Pioneer Award. He has been president of the Lane County Assn. for Retarded Children, and chair of the Effective Energy Policy for Oregon Committee. He is a past member of the Oregon Law Enforcement Council, past chair of the Law and Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures, and is a member of the Oregon Commission on the Judicial Branch. Last May he was elected by many Northwest Publicly-owned Utilities to be their participants' committee member to hold down the costs of terminating WPPSS Plants 4 and 5.

One of the senior members of the Senate, Fadeley has chaired numerous committees and is recognized as a skillful and effective floor debater. His understanding of the state budget picture is recognized as an asset to the legislature and his Eugene-Springfield constituency.

OREGON'S BIGGEST BARGAIN

Fellow Oregonians:

Webster defines a bargain as "an advantageous purchase," and as taxpayers we are always keenly interested in how our state and federal tax dollars are spent. What do we get for our tax dollar? I am convinced the best bargain Oregonians are offered is the Oregon National Guard.

Although the primary mission of today's Army and Air National Guard is to provide combat units for the defense of the nation, unlike other Reserve Forces, the National Guard serves another highly important function. It is the only major state organization trained and equipped to aid in state emergencies upon order of the Governor. Fire, flood, civil disturbance—any disaster—the National Guard is there ready to answer the call.

Participation in local community activities is also an important part of the National Guard mission. Our citizen-soldiers live and work in local communities, and are taxpayers vitally interested in their areas. Community service work concerns them personally. During 1982 alone, over 46,000 man-hours were spent in community service projects throughout the State of Oregon.

During Fiscal Year 1982, Army and Air Guard pay checks generated more than 31 million federal dollars into the Oregon economy. Economists estimate that each $1 in federal pay yields $2.25 to the state economy, so the actual impact is nearly $80 million. In return less than four-tenths of one cent per day per Oregon citizen is expended in State fund support of the Guard.

A bargain? I call it Oregon's Biggest Bargain!

RICHARD MILLER

WALTER F. (WALT) BROWN

Senator, 1983-1987. District 12: Northwestern Clackamas County. Senator 1975, 1979. Democrat. 3710 SE Concord Road #95, Milwaukie, OR 97222

Senator Walt Brown was reelected to a third term in November, 1982.

He is a lifelong Democrat; born July 28, 1926, and raised in Los Angeles. He holds four higher education degrees: BA cum laude, U. of Southern California; JD, USC Law Center; MA in Government, Boston Univ. Graduate School; and a MLS (Library Science), U. of Oregon. He also has post-graduate work at Harvard Law School and The Judge Advocate General's School, U.S. Army.

BROWN

Senator Brown lives in Oak Grove with his wife and three sons.

He has loaned his time and talents to many community and public affairs groups, including Clackamas County Citizens Assn. (Pres., 1972-73); Oregon Consumer League; Oregon Fair Share; Loaves & Fishes; Ore. Council on Crime & Delinquency; Crime Prevention Assn. of Ore.; National Eagle Scout Assn.; United Nations Assn.; Ore. VFW (State Legislative Officer, 1973-74); and various environmental, agricultural and veterans organizations. In addition, he is a member of Atkinson Memorial Church in Oregon City, a Mason, Kiwanis, and likes skiing, hiking and sailing.

Sen. Brown has authored legislation banning fluorocarbon aerosols, repealing Oregon's so-called "Fair Trade" law, adding the Clackamas River to Oregon's scenic waterways system, mandating auto insurance, reforming the people's utility district law, and lowering legal fees in probate cases. He has received awards for his legislative initiatives from the Oregon League of Conservation Voters, Northeast Steelheaders, the Oregon Civil Liberties Union, and the American Legion.

In the past Legislative Session, Brown was chairman of the Business & Consumer Affairs Committee, Senate co-chairman of the Legislative Counsel Committee, vice-chairman of the Elections Committee, and a member of the Justice Committee.

Senator, 1983-87. District 16: Linn, Marion and Polk Counties. Representative 1965, 1967, 1969. Senator 1977 (appointed), 1979. Republican. P.O. Box 3048, Salem 97302.

L.B. Day continues a notable public service career marked by independence and extreme public visibility and scrutiny. Day was originally elected to the Oregon House of Representatives in 1964 as a Democrat but later switched party affiliation to Republican. He served three elected terms before going into U.S. government employment as Dept. of Interior Northwest Regional Director in 1970.

A year later he became the first director of the Oregon Dept. of Environmental Quality and its controversial programs. Two years later he was named as the first chairman of the even more controversial Land Conservation and Development Commission. He resigned that post in 1976 after making it one of the most public and public-participant agencies in Oregon government. Day held local and regional Teamster Union offices thereafter, and was appointed in 1977 to complete the Senate term of Wally Carson, who resigned to become a judge. He was nominated by both parties to the seat in 1978 and ran unopposed in November of that year. He was re-elected to another four-year term in the Senate in 1982.

Coast Janitorial Services, the contractor providing cleaning services for the Willow Creek Building, has been nominated by EG&G Idaho for the Small Business Award of the Year.

The three years of outstanding service that the company has provided EG&G Idaho was recently recognized with a certificate presented by C.H. Ferguson, of the Small Business Administration.

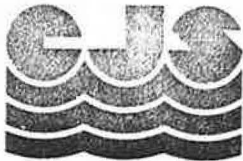

Chosen over 12,000 EG&G Idaho suppliers, including a number of high technology and engineering firms, Coast Janitorial was rated superior in nine areas of performance, including quality of work, prompt consistent delivery and competitive costs.

According to Tonya Pierson, subcontract administrator who nominated the company, "Coast Janitorial has been extremely cooperative, responsive and dependable."

The company's stable work force (80 per cent of the employees are still with the company after 3 years) lives up to its equal opportunity philosophy, employing the handicapped, minorities, the elderly and women managers. Also shift accommodations are made to allow those receiving social security benefits to work without risk of benefit loss.

Henry Scott, president of Coast Janitorial Services, Inc., founded the company as a part-time maintenance job. Three years later his brother, Manuel, joined him. Since then it has grown to include five other brothers and a number of the brothers' children.

Coast presently has 231 full-time employees in three states, with sales of $2.4 million.

GRATTAN KERANS

Representative, District 29: portions of Lane County. Representative 1975, 1977, 1979, 1981. Democrat. 1015 Willa Way, Eugene 97404.

Legislative: Grattan Kerans first became associated with state government in 1974 as a top staff aide to two committees in the Oregon Legislature. In 1974, he was elected to the Oregon House of Representatives from District 39 and served on the Revenue and the Transportation committees. Re-elected in 1976, Kerans was selected by his Democratic colleagues as Majority Whip for the 1977 Session. During that Session, he chaired the Elections Committee and was a member of the Business & Consumer Affairs and the Legislative Operations and Procedures Committees.

KERANS

He was reelected in 1978 and elected as House Majority Leader, the top position in the Democratic caucus after the Speaker. During that Session, Grattan was a member of the Legislative Rules & Operations, Transportation and the Agriculture & Natural Resources committees. During the '79 interim, he served on the Aging & Minority Affairs Committee, the Legislative Administration Operations Subcommittee, and the Congressional & Legislative Reapportionment Committee.

Kerans was reelected in 1980, again serving as Majority Leader. He chaired Legislative Rules & Operations, served on Labor, State & Federal Affairs and Legislative Administration committees as well as the caucus Policy Committee.

Having won a fifth term in the House in the November 1982 elections, Kerans will serve as Speaker of the House, having been the consensus nominee of the Democratic caucus and elected by the full House membership on the opening day of Session. By rule, he serves on the Trade & Economic Development Committee, the Policy Committee (as chair), and the Legislative Administration Committee. During the interim, he will co-chair the Legislature's Emergency Board.

Kerans was born in Washington, D.C. in 1941 and attended Montgomery College in Maryland and the U. of Oregon, where he majored in political science. He is a writer, journalist, publication and design specialist and consultant, and former newspaper editor. He and his wife, Janet, have one son.

Precipitator controls industrial pollution.

The recent installation of this one-half million dollar electrostatic precipitator is just one example of the many tools we use to control air pollution.

A sophisticated “scrubbing” system, this device captures submicron particles and prevents them from being released into the atmosphere.

It is advanced pollution control equipment like this that allows essential industry to operate in harmony with the environment.

Liz VanLeeuwen was elected to represent District 37 in Linn County in November, 1980, following a two-vote victory over five-term legislator Bud Byers in the primary. She was elected to a second term in 1982.

During the 1981 Session, VanLeeuwen served on the Energy and Environment Committee, the Housing and Urban Development Committee and the Ad Hoc Legislative Bonded Debt Advisory Committee.

Rep. VanLeeuwen was born on January 11, 1930 in San Francisco. She attended school in Lakeview and earned a B.S. from Oregon State University. She has served on state, county and local committees including the Governor's Day Care Task Force, the Mid-Willamette Valley Air Pollution Authority Advisory Committee, the Linn County Economic Development Committee. She is a past state president of Oregon Women for Agriculture and of Willamette River Green Rights Association. She received the 1975 Distinguished Service Award from the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation.

Rep. Van Leeuwen and her husband, George, have been involved in a large scale experiment in producing steam and electricity from agricultural waste. They have four children.

Wanted: Long Range Solutions

by Ivan Congleton, President, Associated Oregon Industries

Once again a study of general manufacturing business climates finds Oregon's among the worst in the 48 contiguous states.

This is hardly news. The Fantus Company ranked our state 40th in 1975. Alexander Grant & Co., ranked Oregon 39th in 1979, 35th in 1980 and 36th in 1981.

The Alexander Grant study for 1982 describes our business climate as the worst yet—43rd, with just five states rating lower than Oregon.

Associated Oregon Industries, which has participated in these studies through the Conference of State Manufacturers Association (COSMA), has objected strenuously and across the nation about our most recent rating because data used in one of 22 business climate measurements was inaccurate and produced misleading results.

If proper data had been used, Oregon's rating likely would have improved—reflecting diligent efforts by many to improve that climate.

News media nationwide have helped us point up this discrepancy and we appreciate their efforts. But the fact remains that even without this unfortunate circumstance, Oregon likely would remain close to the bottom fourth of all states in this type of comparison.

Naturally we are chagrined about the flawed results and distressed by our low ranking. But flawed or not, this most recent study pinpoints areas that tend to hurt our business climate and should reinforce activities toward improvement.

Basically these studies deal with subject matter that reflects the cost of conducting manufacturing enterprises in the several states.

Manufacturing is vital to the economy of all states because that basic activity converts resources into usable products. In the process it generates service-type business activity to accommodate workers to transport and market those manufactured products. This all boils down to more jobs and taxable payrolls that provide the revenue to sustain necessary government activity.

Rather than continue to bemoan inaccurate results of the current study or attempt to justify our low ranking by other means, we should be examining the criteria on which we are measured and determining what can be done to improve those that need bettering.

Twelve of the 22 factors utilized by Alexander Grant are influenced by governmental activity. And by working with government, conditions affected by those factors can most readily be modified.

The business community should not be the only source of concern for Oregon's predicament.

Government should be equally concerned and willing to help improve this climate. This becomes obvious as our Legislature struggles to find revenue adequate to provide government services. So far, our lawmakers appear to be seeking a short range solution to a long-range problem. It looks as if they will attempt to obtain more revenue by just increasing our tax burden.

Wouldn't it make more sense to modify conditions in our business climate so there were more privately employed workers gainfully working and paying existing taxes on more paychecks?

Perspectives '83

by Grattan Kerans, Speaker of the House

This legislative assembly faces some very difficult decisions and Oregon's tax system is at the very heart of this session and will be a dominant theme. Changes in the tax system must be made if we are going to adequately fund property tax relief, education and other essential state programs. Exactly what those changes will be is far from determined and is the challenge we face in the coming months.

I have always been committed to the concept of property tax relief and tax reform and the adoption of significant reforms by this assembly during this session; reforms that will be fair and equitable for the citizenry of this state.

That is the challenge we face in the coming days and weeks ahead.

by State Senator Tony Meeker, Oregon Senate Republican Leader

Oregon's voters have issued a demanding challenge to this Legislative Session not as an idle threat but as a promise. That challenge is one of realistic change for Oregon's future. In November 1982, the voters provided a "last chance" opportunity to each member of the legislature to make property tax and land use reform top priorities. Not to honor this "last chance" will mean another property tax limitation will be placed on a statewide ballot alongside of another comprehensive planning abolishment. These two issues when joined by Oregon's concern for economic development and diversification form the "big three" questions requiring action. This definitely is not a "stick your head in the sand" session but rather one which must set the state's direction, perhaps, for decades to come.

As you know, both the House of Representatives and the Senate are heavily controlled by elected Democrats and because of those large majorities are able to determine the success or failure of many issues. The Republican members of the House and Senate, in addition to meeting the voters' challenge, have an additional responsibility. We must attempt to keep the majority on track with the will of the people. We believe Oregonians are fed up with ever-increasing property taxes and won't tolerate more. We believe Oregonians have reached their "threshold of pain" when it comes to income taxes and won't tolerate large increases. We believe Oregonians want a budgetary microscope taken to each and every state agency budget and cuts made in a crisp fashion whenever possible and compassion applied where realistic "people needs" are demonstrated. We believe Oregonians want a constitutional limit placed on tax increases which will allow some flexibility but place a cap on the total. We believe Oregonians want land use planning which is less complex but still gets the job done.

There is no magic formula sitting on a shelf to answer this challenge... but the challenge remains. Those that run from the questions, avoid Oregon's future by placing band-aids where a complete body cast is required, or think Oregon's voters have short memories, will themselves be remembered at the ballot box.

The issues are broad and they require action. Limited vision applied to property tax reform, land use reform, or economic development will result in a myopic future for Oregon. This is a legislative session to take off the blinders and get on with the business of Oregon and its people.

A Lottery For Oregon?

by Jim Chrest
Former Oregon State Representative

The controversy over a state lottery and the attention given to one in Oregon has never been greater than at present. As of February 1st, less than one month into the 1983 regular session of the Oregon Legislature, no less than three bills have been introduced to create a state lottery, in one form or another, each having its own idea of how to use the revenue raised.

The fact that there are three bills and three ideas on how to spread any money raised, only adds to the confusion and controversy concerning a lottery.

But before we discuss how to spend the money we first have to look closely at what a lottery is and isn't; and what a lottery will and will not do.

Taking an historical perspective, lotteries have played an important and significant part in the founding of our country as well as its funding.

The vast majority, and in some cases the only revenue raised for the thirteen original colonies and later states, was obtained from lotteries—state or government run lotteries. Lotteries continued to be a major source of revenue until the mid-1800s.

There were no controls or regulations on who might run a lottery or how it should be run. Private "entrepreneurs" proliferated. Hundreds of lotteries of every description were being operated across the country, most of which were out and out rip-offs. A total ban on lotteries was soon imposed.

It wasn't until 1964 that the State of New Hampshire passed and commenced operation of a new lottery, soon followed by thirteen other states, mostly in New England, but including New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Michigan.

In the past three years, three states in the West—Arizona, Colorado, and of course Washington—this past year have adopted lotteries. All have had major successes.

Why has not Oregon adopted a lottery? It has been tried before. First of all, it requires a State Constitutional Amendment approved by the voters. The legislature has refused to act on a bill to refer the issue to the voters. As the author of a "lottery bill" during the 1981 regular session I can speak from first-hand experience as to the reasons for its lack of success. Even facing a $300 to $400 million deficit, the majority of my colleagues and the governor refused to take it seriously.

The reasons given were varied; however, they could be boiled down to no more than four or five:

(1) Poor people will spend their welfare checks on lottery tickets; (2) It will attract organized crime; (3) it won't raise enough [whatever that means]; (4) the state shouldn't be involved in promoting gambling; (5) it's immoral.

First, let me state that I have said time and again that an Oregon lottery is not a panacea. It is not an answer to our terrible deficit problems. My estimate in 1981 was that an Oregon lottery would raise approximately $25,000,000 net profit for the state. A gross figure of about $60,000,000 of which another $30,000,000 would be paid out to winners and about $5,000,000 for overhead, promotion, etc.

The legislative revenue office now supports my figures.

Even at that, $25 million is only a drop in the bucket compared to a total state budget of over $3 billion.

Now, back to the detractors.

I for one will not condemn anyone for feeling it's immoral, as long as they feel the same way about all gambling, including church bingo games.

As for the first four, let me take them one at a time.

I have yet to see any empirical data, one study, that confirms this truism, that "poor people" buy a greater percentage of lottery ticket than any other group. It just isn't so. In fact, independent studies for the U.S. Congress and for the State of Connecticut show just the opposite. Any so-called "poor people" or welfare recipients who do will gamble anyway they can whether there is a lottery or not. No one can prevent that from happening.

Since 1964, organized crime has not been a factor in any state operated lottery. Any fraud or tinkering, and there has been very little, has been quickly discovered and dealt with. The major studies I have seen and one just out by Stanford Research Institute flow that argument out of the water quickly. These studies showed that on the East Coast where organized crime is rampant, legal state lotteries have actually cut into the illegal numbers game.

As to the amount of money it will raise I can only say that the present session of the Legislature is proposing several "smaller" programs, all worthwhile, to deal with the tremendous unemployment problem of young people, as well as adults. Among those is allowing unemployed workers to continue receiving unemployment benefits while receiving retraining at a community college for other employment. Cost is about $3 or $4 million from the unemployment trust fund. I support that program strongly but if we had passed my lottery bill in 1981, we could today be using that revenue for this program rather than employer's unemployment tax revenue.

As for the position that the state should not be involved in gambling, I can only point to the horse and dog racing that the state promotes and receives revenue from and has for years.

The Governor and the Legislature have been scraping for dollars to put into economic development the past two years. I suggested in 1982 that we adopt a lottery and dedicate the $20-$25 million to that effort, in the form of low interest loans to cities, counties and small parts for development of industrial parks, built by private contractors. For grants to our state colleges and universities for development of graduate engineering programs; to community colleges to train workers for expanding and new businesses; for promotion of tourism; and to fund the State Department of Economic Development.

I believe the economic return to Oregon, its businesses and its people would be tremendous.

Again, a lottery will not impact on our present deficit. It will not lower property taxes for homeowners, but neither will it turn Oregon into a Sodom and Gomora.

But they can be fun. Ask the first million dollar winner from Washington State.

Visit Your Capitol

The 1983 Session of the Oregon Legislature has now convened and probably will extend into the summer. A visit to the capital can be an effort to influence legislation or just a look at history.

By law, all meetings of the Legislature and its committee are open to the public.

The main entrance to the Capitol is through the revolving doors on Court Street. This entrance leads to the older portions of the building—the rotunda with the State Seal embedded in the floor, and the wide marble staircases leading to the House and Senate Chambers. Also on the second floor is the Governor's ceremonial office, which is open to public view.

The first stop should be to the visitors information center on the first floor at the entry to the legislative wings. Guides conduct tours of the building, time permitting.

Each legislator has a private office in the upstairs sections of the wings. Directories of office numbers are near the first floor elevators.

When the House and Senate are in session the public is barred from the chambers but public seating is available in the third floor galleries.

Much of the action at the Capitol is in committee hearings. The daily schedule is available free of charge in the bill room in the basement, as are copies of bills. For hourly changes in the schedule, see the television monitors.

There is a small coffee shop in the basement where visitors can rub elbows with legislators, employees and lobbyists. It is open from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Junk food is available from machines in the hallway nearby, along with newspapers and cigarettes. The cafeteria in the Public Service Building is an easy jaunt through the underground tunnel from the Capitol basement.

Students can arrange to serve as honorary pages—delivering messages for the legislators—by contacting their Senator or Representative.

LOTTERY, MARKET SATURATION SEEN AS THREATS TO HORSE RACING INDUSTRY

The week after the Washington State Lottery was started, pari-mutuel wagering at Portland Meadows Race Track declined by more than $212,000. The State of Oregon receives four cents from every dollar wagered at Portland Meadows on most race days. If the lottery is to blame for a sharp drop in betting at the track, the state treasury lost $8,500 in a single weekend of racing.

Although wagering at Portland Meadows has declined by 14 percent this season, the state treasury will receive a commission estimated at $1.7 million for the 92-day meeting.

According to Michael J. Williams, president of the Wineberg Racing Association, Inc., the operators of Portland Meadows, the state's commission from wagering on horse racing does not begin to measure the importance of Oregon's breeding and racing industry.

"What concerns me is the effect a lottery in this state would have on our industry," Williams says. "The legalized gambling we have at tracks around Oregon supports an important industry. When you consider the jobs, the capital investment, and the tourist revenue created by racing, you are looking at a sizable industry. I think it would be a shame to jeopardize that."

Williams believes the Washington State Lottery is at least partly to blame for a decline in business at the betting windows this season. Through mid-February, 240,000 racing fans had wagered more than $22 million, down $3.5 million from last season.

"A lottery in Oregon," Williams says, "would add to another problem we already have—too many racing dates for our market area. Counting the racing at Salem, we have three major meets in the Portland area—two for horses and one for dogs. That's a total of more than 200 dates each year. In the Seattle-Tacoma-Everett area, a market that is triple the size of ours, there is only one major meet, Longacres, that lasts 131 days. In view of the success that Longacres has had, I think the Portland area is oversaturated with racing dates."

Williams says the importance of horse racing is felt at many levels of the Oregon economy. More than 4,800 people—horse owners, trainers, jockeys, veterinarians, horse shoers, grooms, exercise riders, track employees, and racing officials—get all or part of their income from racing. The total is $5.4 million a year.

Racing supports other businesses—the makers and suppliers of tack, equipment, and horse vans, feed growers and dealers, suppliers of veterinary equipment and medicine, builders of barns and fencing, the operators of training and boarding facilities.

More than 400 thoroughbreds are foaled in Oregon every year. Over 40,000 acres are now committed to raising racehorses and their feed. Oregon's 500 thoroughbred breeders have invested tens of millions in land, livestock, buildings, and equipment. Aaron U. Jones, one of racing's leading figures, is building a major farm in eastern Oregon.

Across Oregon, more than 4,000 horses compete every year at a dozen race meets from Grants Pass to Portland, Tillamook to Klamath Falls. During the Portland Meadows meeting, an average of 1,500 horses are kept in training at a cost of $20 per day. That's $30,000 a day.

Nearly a third of Portland Meadows' patrons come from out-of-state, mostly from Washington. Over a season, that adds up to 120,000 people who spend more than $2 million at local hotels, restaurants, and other businesses.

"We have an industry," says Williams, "that is labor intensive, non-polluting, and compatible with the Oregon lifestyle. Its economic importance is undeniable. It could be a resource for Oregonians for generations to come.

"While a state lottery has obvious short-term benefits, I hope our legislators will consider the long term cost if it damages an important industry. Fourteen other states have adopted lotteries, slowing the growth of racing in those states. Have their lotteries made up for the cost in jobs, capital investment, and lost revenue to business? That is the trade-off we face if a lottery is adopted in Oregon."

There's been a lot of bad-mouthing about "Visit-but-don't-stay"... All we were saying was, "Oregon, Queen Bee though she is, is not yet ready for the swarm."... And I think you'll be just as sick as I would if Oregon became nothing but a hungry hussy chasing after every stinking smokestack that's offered.

Much ado is made over the regional split of Oregon's legislature, with the "urban liberals" squared off against the "rural conservatives." Others see a north/south split, or a "Portland versus the rest of the state" alignment. Such cosmologies form the framework for much of our journalistic political analysis, but one can't help but wonder: "Is this all there is to Oregon's political diversity?"

Definitely not, according to Al Jennings, the long-time long-haired former aide to then-Sen. Bob Smith. Jennings, in a parting shot, complained that in the old days one first "amounted to something" before being elected to office. The 1983 legislature, he noted with an elitist sniff, was filled with shoe clerks.

Two questions immediately come to mind: 1) Are we really being governed by shoe clerks? And, 2) is that really bad?

Farmers and lawyers

A quick and very unscientific survey of legislators' occupations over the past 24 years shows some interesting changes. From 1959 to 1983, farmers/ranchers, lawyers and business people have dominated the statehouse, although all of these occupations have fallen off in recent years as Oregonians have elected more educators, homemakers, and laboring folks.

In 1959, the Senate was composed of 7 farmers/ranchers, 10 lawyers, and 5 business persons. The House that year seated 6 women, 3 of whom called themselves homemakers. The rest of the House included 12 farmers/ranchers, 7 lawyers, and 25 business persons.

By 1979, the profile of the legislature had begun to move slightly away from the top three occupations. Only 5 farmers/ranchers, 8 lawyers, 7 business persons, and 0 homemakers sat in the Senate. The House delegation included 8 farmers/ranchers, 7 lawyers, and 16 business persons; however, 9 members listed themselves as homemakers.

A shift toward labor

As the legislative grip of lawyers, business persons and farmers/ranchers began to lessen, the influence of laborers began to grow. In 1959, one senator was a firefighter and another a telephone lineman, while three representatives listed laboring occupations: a metal worker, a fireman, and a millwright. Two labor officials were also members of the House.

By 1979, the Senate included Keith Burbridge (D-Salem), a locomotive engineer, L.B. Day (R-Salem), a Teamster official, and Lenn Hannon (then-D-Ashland), a heavy equipment operator. The real diversity, however, showed up in the House; 2 electricians, a marine clerk, a firefighter, a railroad conductor, and a labor official.

The class of 1983

Our current legislature maintains this trend toward more laboring people and away from business persons, while remaining fairly steady among lawyers and farmers/ranchers, allowing for slight seasonal variations. Homemaking, as an occupation, is listed by 3 out of 5 female senators and by 5 out of 13 representatives.

The Senate has seated 4 farmers/ranchers, 6 lawyers, 7 educators, 5 business persons, a heavy equipment operator (Sen. Hannon), a teamster official (Sen. Day), and a Teamster rank-and-file (Sen. Steve Starkovich, D-Canby). Homemaking was listed by three new senators.

The House shows similar trends, although lawyers are up to 11 from 8 in the last session. Farmers/ranchers are holding steady at 7, business persons are down to 12, with 4 in lumber/construction, 3 in education, 3 in medicine, 5 in communications. Also included in this line-up are a retail clerk, a truck driver, 2 electrical workers, and a mill worker. Out of 13 female legislators, only 5 describe themselves as homemakers. No men listed that occupation.

More representative Representatives?

All these stats go to show that Al Jennings was wrong—Oregon has no shoe clerks in its legislature. If, however, Jennings meant that we are not electing a legislature more representative of our occupational diversity, then he was right. But rather than sneering, we should applaud ourselves for moving away from the old regional distinctions: urban lawyers and business persons; rural farmers and ranchers.

With the homemakers, teachers and laborers contributing to the debate, will we get fresh, new ideas out of Salem? For the near future, the answer, unfortunately, may be no. The

Dorchester moves to Oregon interior

by Rep. Norm Smith

For 19 years the Dorchester Conference has set Oregon politics apart from the rest of the nation. Registered Republicans, young and old, have been meeting on the Oregon Coast in growing numbers to discuss the key issues of the year.

The Dorchester Conference was started by U.S. Senator Bob Packwood while he was still a member of the Oregon Legislature. Since then the tradition has been perpetuated by the board of directors of a non-profit corporation. National speakers usually highlight the Conference along with intimate discussion groups, culminating in a townhall style debate.

This year there is a major change in the format and location of Dorchester. Originally named for the Dorchester House, an inn on the Oregon Coast in Lincoln City, the Conference is moving to the "Oregon Heartland," the Inn of the Seventh Mountain near Bend, Oregon. Many of the traditions of Dorchester will continue, such as the famous "Dorchester Graffiti Slide-show" and the "Tent Show," both taking place on Saturday night.

The Conference, itself, commences at 8 p.m. on Friday, April 15, and concludes at noon on Sunday, April 17. It will be kicked-off on Friday night by greetings from Senator Bob Packwood and Governor Victor Atiyeh at the Convention Center at the Inn of the Seventh Mountain. On Saturday morning Senator Packwood will set the stage with a keynote address, and another major speaker, to be announced, will address the Convention at noon on Saturday.

Registration fees for adults this year are $35 and include lunch and dinner on Saturday, and a continental breakfast on Sunday. Registrants are urged to contact the Inn of the Seventh Mountain for room reservations, the cost of which are in addition to the cost of the Convention. Lists of other motels and hotels in the region can be supplied. Students will be charged $20 for registration.

Dorchester chairman, Terry Kay, has sent out an invitation to all Republican elected officials in Salem saying, "You're needed in the Heartland of Oregon." Kay went on to explain: "This year's Dorchester Conference is the most important one in years. Please take a moment and consider attending. At this point in history Republicans occupy the positions of leadership in Oregon and Washington, D.C. We have the responsibility to address our dismal Oregon economy, staggering deficits, and the crisis of confidence in government."

Because of limited convention space, the number of delegates will be limited on a first come, first served basis to 450 this year. Therefore, if anyone is interested in attending, he must obtain and file a registration as soon as possible. To obtain a registration form one may call Portland telephone number 293-3421.

Senate offered a prime example of the new stalemate during its organizational battles. Urban legislators had enough votes to control the Democratic caucus, but not enough to elect their candidate—a university professor—as president. Rural senators, led by another teacher, joined in blocking the election.

As old power blocks break down, others arise to fill the void. Hopefully, the complexity and interdependence of our urban/rural lifestyles will generate power blocks that avoid the old stalemates. But until that rural/urban split is healed, we can only look forward to more of the same.

You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage-earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred.

You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a person's initiative and independence. You cannot help people permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Sin on Syntax

by Jack Zimmerman, AOI

A corollary of the lawmaking process involves a search for additional sources of revenue whenever the economy slumps and government's tax take diminishes proportionately.

But given the unpopularity of new taxes among voters, it is commonplace among the politically astute to cloak some new revenue-raising schemes in the garb of taxes on sin.

The Oregon Legislature has long been acclaimed for its ability to root out sinful practices and levy special taxes on those who are guilty of all manner of transgression. Those who imbibe alcoholic beverages and puff tobacco being among the most visible sinners suffering the sting of legislative righteous retribution.

Comes now self-appointed members of the 62nd Legislative Assembly who have identified another sin waiting to be taxed. The target is soft drink beverages, their syrups and bases. And such a bonanza it appears. A modest penny a drink or so will generate perhaps as much as $7.5 million in the next two years, they claim.

Furthermore, the vehicle for this new tax—House Bill 2757—designates revenue from the tax is dedicated to a Civilian Conservation Corps, providing minimum wage employment for 17 to 23-year-old jobless young people. Furthermore, what the jobs Corpsmembers do would enhance conservation of natural resources and improve public safety.

Surely such a proposal could readily be embraced by all who savor pies made of apples by child-bearing females. Indeed, when HB 2757 was introduced in Salem, the proposal bore the signatures of 60 of the Assembly's 90 members and one has to wonder if those who failed to sign might not be smarting at being left off.

But consumer cost will be minimal and a whole heck-uvva-lot of those consumers will but those drinks whatever the price. And how many of them are too young to vote, anyway?

Naturally, soft-drink bottlers don't like the idea. They, along with retail merchants, are still learning to cope with the Oregon Bottle Bill. They don't like the idea of being singled out, either. Other opponents think if the CCC plan is so good, it ought to be funded out of government's regular coffers and not made dependent on an unrelated, single commodity's excise tax.

The proposed revenue source certainly isn't new. It was fostered during the late '60s by Oregon lawmakers and soft-drink tax bills were introduced in 1975 and '77. Revenue from those bills supposedly would have benefited public education. At least the Education & School Finance Committee recommended its passage in '75 and a similar bill originated in Revenue & School Finance Committee in '77.

Neither bill managed to face a floor vote—preventing those Assemblies' opportunities to smite sugar. Perhaps it wasn't considered as sinful as in decades past?

The whole issue prompts a closer examination of both motives and descriptions concerning this issue of sin and taxes. Taxpayers and consumers might just figure Salem's revenue seekers are the ones guilty of sinful conduct.

The charge could involve covetousness—described both in the Commandments and Seven Deadlies. At tax time it certainly looks as if someone sure as heck covets something that belongs to his neighbor.

Then & Now

by Cecil Edwards

Economists say the Oregon Legislature of today is dealing with the worst depression since 1933.

Most of us who were there in 1933 and are here now do not believe conditions are as bad today as they were then.

In one sense however all depressions are the worst, particularly if you are among the ones depressed.

There were similarities and differences in comparing the governments of 1933 to 1983. A few will be reviewed.

Oregon's governor then was Julius Meier, the only independent ever elected to that office and like Oregon's governor today, Vic Atiyeh, Meier had a merchant background. Both were born of immigrant parentage. Julius' father, Aaron Meier, and his mother, born Jeanette Hirth, emigrated to Oregon from Bavaria in 1855 and took up a land claim at what is now Wilsonville. Aaron, with Sigmund Frank as a partner, founded Meier and Frank Department Store of Portland in 1867. Similar to Atiyeh of Syrian-Lebanese descent, Meier was the first of his ethnic background to sit in the Governor's chair. Meier was the third native Oregonian to be Governor, and Atiyeh is the eighth native son out of 32 Oregon State Governors, that is if you count Tom McCall a native Oregonian. I do. He was conceived in Oregon, though born in Egypt, Massachusetts, because his mother had more confidence in Massachusetts medical services.

Meier was one of Oregon's strongest Governors. When he became the Chief Executive in January of 1931, the public and private affairs of Oregon were in a sorry condition.

The State Treasury was not only without funds, which was contrary to the mandate of the Constitution, but the state was operating with a deficit. Employees were not paid, but were given interest bearing warrants stamped, "not paid for lack of funds—Rusus Holman, State Treasurer."

The banks that chose to accept the warrants discounted them 6 percent, as I recall. Most banks were less than enthusiastic to loan money to the state. However, Fred Paulus, resourceful and respected Deputy State Treasurer, finagled a loan from a Portland bank to pay state expenses where warrants would not suffice. The bank also required that he sign personally as a guarantor of the loan.

Paulus, now in well-preserved 90s, enjoys discussing those incidents to this day.

Legislators in keeping with the pure citizen concept of the Legislature as opposed to the professional Legislature concept, received only $3.00 per day for 40 days and the sessions ended soon after—clerks received $5.00 per day for as long as the session lasted. There was, according to the Oregon Voter of that time, criticism of Legislators hiring useless employees. Does that sound familiar?

Property tax relief, a perennial problem was as much in the forefront then as now.

Meier, who ran as a free speech advocate, replaced George Joseph, who had been disbarred for criticism of the Oregon Supreme Court and died during the campaign. He advocated a strict economy program in public affairs, made sharp cuts in government expenditures: in Higher Education programs, the Public Utilities Commission, which he abolished, Board of Health and State and County Fairs. Concerning the latter, he said feeding the people had a higher priority than entertaining them. That set the stage for the Paramutuel Racing Act. The growing full shock of the depression was being felt in 1933. Social services were cut heavily.

Property tax delinquency averaged 38 percent, counties and cities were running eight months in arrears, only about 70 percent of the 1932 levy had been collected. An income tax had been passed in an earlier session. In the 1933 Session, the Legislature passed a sales tax, a new 8 percent tax on net incomes from intangibles, and Meier reduced the state deficit 50 percent—this was by temporary elimination of some obviously helpful services. The sales tax never made it at the polls.

He sought curtailment of the volume of legislation enacted. He requested that a hydro-electric commission be created to control water power development. He advocated free textbooks for the young and old-age pensions for the aged. He opposed all salary increases in the depressed period and spoke out for maintain state forests bordering highways and advocated roadside parks, protection of ocean beaches and urged that all highways be kept free of "commercial ugliness," urging that they be beautified with trees and shrubs. Many of his programs have been realized.

There was no constitutional authority for Meier's large lump sum cuts, but he prevailed. He was a hard working but imperious man, and it didn't encourage opposition.

In the private sector, Oregon experimented and repealed certain penalties and interest on delinquent property taxes. The sales tax was defeated by the electors. Oregon experienced very high unemployment, bread lines, apple sellers, soup kitchens and the Works Progress Administration.

Economist believe a depression of the magnitude of the '30s is not likely today.

But then economist gain great eminence and notoriety without ever being right—witness the series of projections on Oregon's present deficit.

Sales Tax Savings

by Allan Widlits

Tom McCall's legacy devotes Oregon to "Livability," an emphasis that devotes much of Oregon's land to non-productive status! That means no income, no jobs. Combine that with the end of the Oregon Economic Meal Ticket that was Federal Timber Tax revenues and you have the full-color picture of Oregon's financial crisis.

In short, fewer resources from which to draw revenues, less income from the resources available, equals double impact on the remaining sources of revenue—personal income taxes, business income taxes and property taxes! And the last, no matter what anyone says, is the most inequitable tax imaginable to the homeowner! Apartment owners can raise rents, office buildings raise leases or charge for extra services, shops and markets raise prices. Home owners just lose! They pay higher income taxes, lose jobs because higher business income taxes chase the employers out of Oregon, and they are left with those property tax evaluations.

Into this void shines a ray of hope named the Taxpayers for a Better Economy, with the gall to propose a sales tax as the bromide to correct Oregon's financial quagmire! Historically, a Sales Tax in Oregon has the same reception as rain at a picnic. But then, historically, Mt. St. Helens was a dormant volcano!

This time, T.A.B.E. has proposed a constitutional amendment that will devote sales tax revenues to specific uses, limit the tax to a specific 5% (roughly 2/3 of Washington's floating sales tax crap game) and exempt all food and drug items!

Revenues derived will be constitutionally requited at 80% to local school aid—spell that property tax relief! The remaining 20% will combine with the savings from the current 30% property tax relief program to fund income tax reductions, an aspirin of between 25% and 30% of average annual state collections!

The T.A.B.E. amendment will also require a lid on the expenditures of ALL units of government—legislatures, boards, councils, taxing districts, et al. No sense proposing a relief structure and then allowing enthusiastic bureaucrats to spend the savings! It would further limit spending growth to a rate no greater than the growth of the state's average per capita growth! The state could increase its spending no more next year than what the average citizen had realized in increases! But to protect Oregonian's cherished local rule philosophy, local units could still appeal to local citizens to tax over and beyond that level.

As a result, Oregonians would receive substantial property tax relief. Non-property tax payers would realize the income tax savings even if rents stayed the same. Teachers and schools—and students, will finally realize a productive, less political financial base from which to budget. The benefits to education cannot be projected in dollars and cents alone! By T.A.B.E. estimates, the Sales Tax will realize $700-$800 million annually, and lower Oregon from second to 12th nationally in terms of personal income tax rates! Oregon would go from ninth to 39th in terms of financial dependence on property taxes, ninth to 33rd in terms of Business Income tax burden! And while Business Income tax relief may not seem important to you as you struggle through those I.R.S. forms, they are singularly most important if your business wants to remain in Oregon—you keep your job!

What T.A.B.E. has proposed is a financial structure that removes government from property tax dependence, which allows government to raise evaluations to the level necessary for government spending! It has proposed an economic development tool that is Oregon's last gasp as a timber-centered economy withers in its dying days and mills close daily or reduce employment to get profitable in a reduced market. Oregon, welcome to the 1980s—and a sales tax!

No to the Sales Tax

by Rich Lochner

Despite business and government efforts to popularize it, a state sales tax remains unnecessary, regressive, and a hindrance to economic recovery. Oregon voters have wisely rejected the tax six times since 1933, and would probably do so again. State legislators would do well to find better alternatives to balance the budget and provide needed property tax relief, rather than referring a bad bill to the voters and risking calamity if it fails.

A sales tax hits low-income people harder than the wealthy. The well-off save much more than those who make less, and savers wouldn't pay sales tax on what they put aside. Current sales tax proposals exclude groceries, housing, utilities, and drugs, but this makes up for only some of the inequity: a 1980 California study shows a household making $15,000 would pay $238 annually with a 4 percent sales tax, over twice the proportion of a family making over $75,000.

People with similar income also pay unequally. Families, especially single-parent ones, must spend more to provide for their children, and thus pay more taxes. The childless, however, can save much more easily.

One proposal to fix the inequities a sales tax causes is a rebate program for low-income taxpayers. But rather than burden taxpayers with another complicated form, as Oregon Senate President Ed Fadeley recently observed, why not use the tax that's designed to tax according to ability to pay, the income tax?

Current sales tax proposals would offset high property taxes. Yet under several, it's business and not hard-pressed homeowners who receive over 60 percent of the benefits. Business would be able to pass much of the sales tax to consumers as higher prices. For homeowners, relief might be more apparent than real: instead of taking taxes in a large chunk, the sales tax would take it bit by bit.

Some sales tax boosters, such as business groups, say the tax would help the ailing state economy. They say it would tax consumption, and encourage saving and investment by business and the well-to-do. This is exactly the Reaganomics argument, which so far hasn't stimulated growth. Moreover, the State of Washington, which has a high sales tax and no income tax, is just as bad off as Oregon. (Portland merchants would also lose the business of Washingtonians who buy here to escape their sales tax.) In a depression, with low inflation, consumer spending should be boosted, not taxed.

There are better proposals to solve the state's fiscal crisis. State Sen. Margie Hendricksen is sponsoring a bill which would take back some of the Reagan tax cuts on high incomes, and retain current temporary taxes, balancing the state budget. Rep. Wally Priestley has proposed a homestead exemption on about the first $15,000 of assessed value, helping the small property owner most. Legislators who say they oppose the sales tax should study these and other positive alternatives, rather than shrugging responsibility by referring the sales tax to the voters.
