Business news

A group of employees at Intel Oregon's Hawthorn Farm Campus has donated about $12,000 worth of goods and money for the local community. Kids' backpacks, hand-quilted baby blankets, boxes of crayons and school supplies; toilet paper shampoo, soap, toothpaste and toothbrushes and money are on their way to aid local families. The donations will be presented to the Community Action Organization in Hillsboro at noon on Friday. Intel Oregon's 16,000 employees are committed to contributing to the communities in which they live and work, an Intel spokesman said.
