Dear Community Partners:

Some of you may be familiar with Community Action's free clothing closet, Play It Again, serving low-income children and families. Play It Again has been an important service for many residents living in Washington County needing clothing. Unfortunately, Community Action can no longer sustain the service and is seeking a new home for the program.

Currently, Play It Again is the county's only clothing closet that serves the entire family, including adults and infants. Without this service, hundreds of low-income families will not have access to clothing. This is a huge concern for us because we know that on average around 353 individual families representing 874 children and 731 adults use Play It Again for clothing every month!

Because the need is so great in Washington County, we are seeking community input and possible creative solutions to either continuing Play It Again, or dismantling the clothing closet with minimal impact on the low-income community. Please consider attending our meeting to discuss the future of Play It Again. Your participation and thoughts are important to us.
