

After five terms in Congress, a recognized leader in the fight for Soviet Jewry (the only Congressman honored to have been invited and to have attended both of the last two Plenary Sessions of the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council).

From the very beginning, a caring and committed friend of Israel, whose support is in America's best interests. (It was the AuCoin letter from the Congress which prodded the Administration last year to resume and maintain badly needed defense supplies for Israel. Les AuCoin sponsored a major photographic exhibit for the House of Representatives to see Israel's Farag Peri dramatize the Sinai which Israel gave up for peace with Egypt. AuCoin was one of the first sponsors of the Congressional effort to transfer America's Embassy to Israel's capital, Jerusalem. And this year he arranged for Peri's latest exhibit for the House, "In Your Heart - Jerusalem," capturing its essence.)

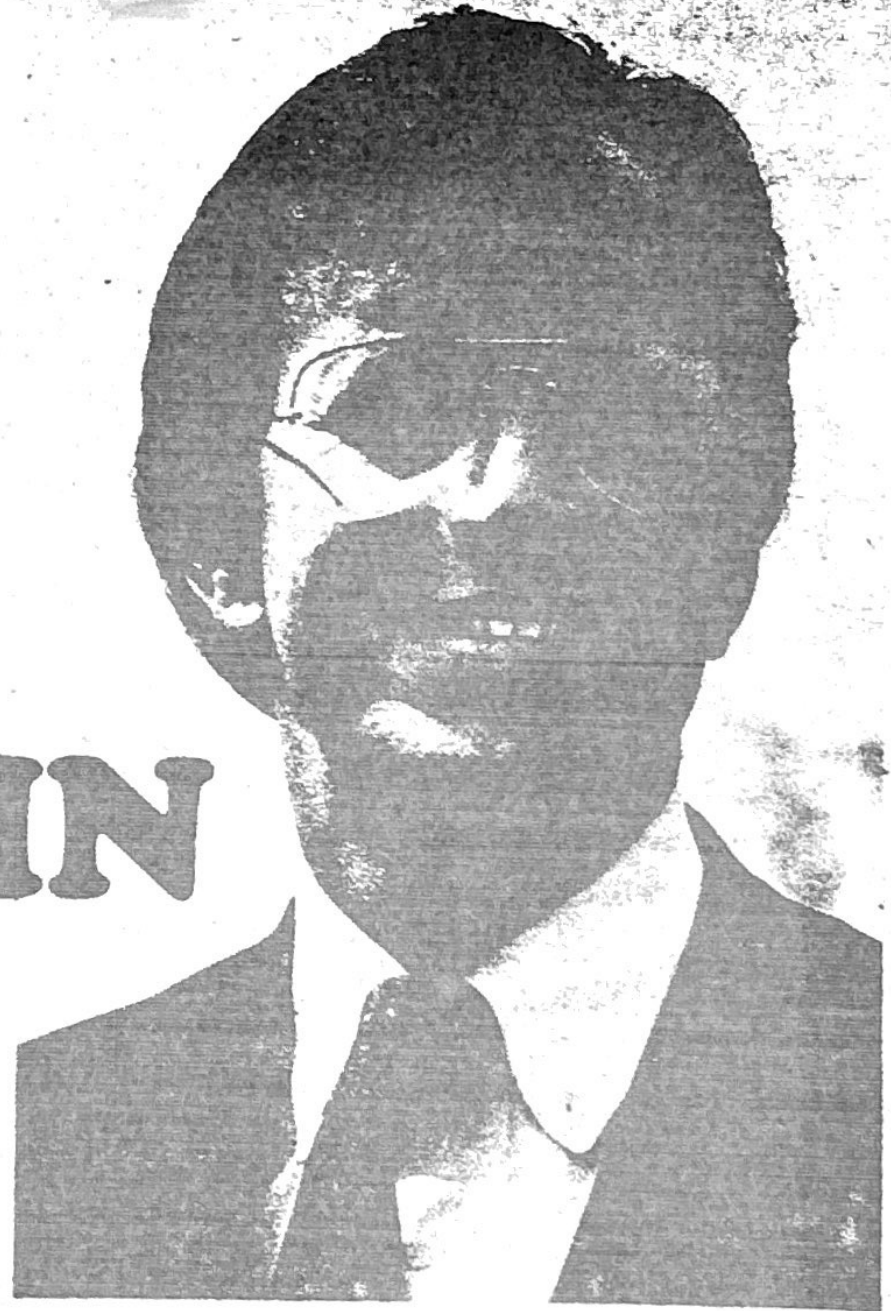

Les AuCoin is responsive and responsible. (A member of the important House Appropriations Committee, he is fighting to reduce unnecessary government spending while maintaining support for vital services to insure our society's essential values.)
